PARTY LINES SHATTERED

GRAHAM LEADS THE FIGHT

Gard, Ohio Democrat, Author of First Censorship Measure, Votes with Majority.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—The House voted decisively today against a newspaper censorship, rejecting by a vote of 184 to 144 the censorship section of the Administration's Espionage bill. The bill was sent back to the Conference Committee with instructions to eliminate Section 4. Chairman Webb of the Judiciary Committee, who led the Administration's unsuccessful fight for a censorship, probably will ask the conferees to meet tomorrow to carry out the mandate of the House.

Representative George S. Graham of Pennsylvania, a Republican, aided by the Republican floor leader, Representative Mann, conducted the opposition to the censorship section. Closing a debate of two hours, Mr. Graham is believed to have brought several wavering members into line by showing that the so-called compromise on censorship was more drastic than the original House proposal. He assailed it as a "pernicious section."

Representative Gard, Democrat, of Ohio, who was the author of the censorship provision originally adopted by the House, repudiated the section as modified in conference and voted against the conference agreement. Mr. Gard stressed the fact that his draft of the censorship section provided that the President should declare what was not to be published, whereas the conference agreement [illegible]. Absence of Presidential approval of a certain class of information, it was insisted, would automatically place such matter in the prohibited class.

The motion to recommit the conference report was made by Mr. Graham. Thirty-six Democrats voted to recommit and ten Republicans and one independent voted against. The "Tammany Democrats," who were rumored to be opposed to censorship, finally voted with the Administration. The Ohio delegation furnished the largest percentage of Democratic votes in opposition to the Administration's program. Only two New York Democrats voted against it—Maher and Smith.

Dyer Supports Censorship.

Representatives Graham, Mann, Campbell of Kansas, McKenzie and McCormick of Illinois, and Gard of Ohio made the principal speeches against the conference report. The Administration speakers included Mr. Webb and Mr. Carlin, ranking Democratic members of the Judiciary Committee, and Mr. Dyer of Missouri, a Republican member of the committee. Mr. Dyer said that, although the Republican caucus had decided to oppose the censorship section, he regarded it as his duty "to stand up and support my country rather than to take orders from any caucus or conference of a political party."

"I am in favor of this," he added, "because it will enable the President to protect my fellow-Americans who have to traverse the seas and fight in France for their country."

Mr. Graham in reply contended that a situation might arise wherein better protection would be afforded to American soldiers by a frank discussion than by silence.

"How can you criticise when criticism is needed," he asked, "without being able to state the basis of your criticism? The very fact of the distribution and movement of troops may bring about improper conditions which cannot be discussed under this provision." Mr. Graham refuted the suggestion that any American newspaper would furnish information of value to the enemy, but insisted that healthy criticism should not be withheld when it became necessary.

"My objection to this clause," said Mr. Campbell of Kansas, "is that it indirectly assumes the newspapers of this country are unpatriotic. All the patriotism is not in the bosom of men temporarily in office. The newspapers have proved themselves to be patriotic. They will continue to do so. There have been no leaks to the enemy from our newspapers."

Mr. Graham has led two successful contests in the House against censorship. On his motion the House several weeks ago struck from the Espionage bill the committee censorship section. Afterward the matter was again presented by a parliamentary ruse, and the House voted for a substitute section, which went to conference. In conference this substitute was modified and materially broadened, according to the analysis made by Mr. Graham today.

As soon as the conference report was presented notice was given that there would be a motion to send it back to the Conference Committee. No other portion of the conference report except the censorship section was discussed. Loud applause on the Republican side greeted the announcement that the motion to recommit had prevailed.

Graham and Carlin Clash.

Mr. Graham engaged in a spirited colloquy with Mr. Carlin of Virginia. Mr. Carlin insisted that Mr. Graham "had changed his mind four or five times about censorship," and had voted

Hear Kaiser Told Soldiers Not to Capture British

From a Staff Correspondent of The Associated Press.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, May 31, (via London.)—The German Government continues to fill the air with wireless propaganda against the British, virtually ignoring all the other Allies, including the United States.

The trench version in the Arras district of Emperor William's recent speech was to the effect that no British prisoners should be taken; that the Germans should hate all the English, and if they could not avoid taking some prisoners they were to treat them with the greatest severity.

Emperor William was at Douai and Tournai May 23, and made speeches at both places.

MONFALCONE, May 31.—The battle which commenced May 12, has concluded its first phase and this is the lull after the battle, the entr'acte between victories. Across the water from here, under the hillside of Hermada's outlying slopes and upon the watery flats where the Timavo crawls into daylight, exploration of the conquered ground is yielding curious results.

The Italians have just completed examination of two railway tunnels upon the line to Triest, one 200 yards long, the other slightly less. Both had been turned into shelters for troops and very completely equipped. The roofs are pierced with long ventilating shafts, and water mains have been carried in. There is a mass of arms and ammunition here, and numbers of machine guns.

It is here that they discovered what was never certainly known upon this front, though frequently rumored, namely, machine gunners chained and padlocked to their guns. I understand they have been officially photographed. Each man has a light steel chain of twisted links, like a dog chain, shackled around one ankle and fastened to the tripod of the gun, and a similar chain padlocked around his waist and linked up to the barrel. These prisoners state that the object is to prevent them leaving the gun in Italian hands when falling back before an attack. Another explanation is suggested by the fact that the chief forces on this southern edge of the Carso consist of Rumanians.

Higher up the hill beyond Medeazza, the authorities ascertained the presence of a solidly emplaced heavy battery, stated to be of ten-inch howitzers. The Austrians have been vainly endeavoring to remove them while the Italians, who, as yet have been unable to get up to them, are keeping them under an effective fire. It is known that the Austrians during the last few days have been moving guns back everywhere, notably from the Hermada positions, which for the first time in a long period, is released from the daily torment of shells.

I have been talking to a young Sicilian gunner, who was captured by the Austrians in an observation post and marched back as a prisoner to the park of Duino. There he and his escort were detained on account of the Italian fire. He succeeded in killing his guard and escaping by jumping into the sea and alternately swimming and wading, neck deep, to the Timavo Estuary. He related that the Austrians robbed him of all his property except a small sum of paper money, and beat him and his fellow-prisoners with the butts of their guns. The land on either side of the road, he said, was littered with dead, some among them still wearing full packs, proving they were killed before having gone into line. Wounded were everywhere.

This man's escape is in contrast to an incident further north, when a commander desiring to send back a convoy of 200 odd captured Austrians gave them in charge of the only three men he could spare, one of whom was wounded in the arm and both others in the head. The three men supported one another along the road, but delivered their prisoners.

One needs to see the conquered ground to realize in the fullest sense the fine quality of the work which has been done and the formidable nature of the work which still remains to do when the present victory is made into a stepping-stone to the next advance. The line from Hudilog south was against positions which had become fortresses. From Hudilog to Jamiano was a double trench system whose utter completeness and menace are clear even now, when guns and great trench mortars have knocked it out of shape. It was held largely by Hungarian Honved troops, equal to Austria's best infantry.

The Flondar line was, if anything, a still vaster tangle of works and cellars, and here began a hodgepodge of Czechs, Transylvanians, Dalmatians and other ingredients of the Austrian racial cocktail.

Castagnevizza is ringed around and tangled like a kitten in a ball of string with three separate systems of fortifications. Castagnevizza has not been attacked, save demonstratively. It represented the westward turning point of the line which ran due south from Mount Faiti, upon which Italians held what was judged to be a position already too saliently advanced. The advances across Hudilog and Jamiano not only rectified this but have also given to the southern wing of the army freedom of movement and an advantage as regards the point of departure of the next attack, which in themselves amounts to a valuable objective gained.

ENTHUSIASM FOR SPEECH

Picturesque Assemblage Cheers His Reference to Free Nationalities Within the Empire.

AMSTERDAM, May 31, (via London, June 1.)—The opening of the Reichsrat in the Grand Hall of Ceremonies in the Imperial Hofburg in Vienna today was solemn and brilliant. Numerous Deputies appeared in picturesque national costumes which, with the gold-braided court and military uniforms, the violet garb of the Princes of the Church, and the field gray of the soldiers, made a multicolored picture.

The entry of Emperor Charles was greeted with three enthusiastic "hochs," which were repeated when he took his seat on the golden throne under a red and gold canopy, while the Empress and Archduchesses ranged themselves on the dais beside him. The Emperor read his speech in a resonant voice, which he raised at important passages.

Striking features of the speech were the expression of hope that Russia's renunciation of extreme war aims would be initiated by the other Entente Allies and the assurance that conciliation on their part would be met in a similar spirit by the Central Powers.

Rousing cheers greeted the announcement of the Emperor that he was firmly determined to exercise his solemn prerogatives always in a truly constitutional sense; also when he referred to the heroic achievements at the front, and again when he emphasized the point of free nationalities enjoying equal rights within the monarchy and standing firmly united. There were cheers, too, when he spoke of "our faithful German ally."

At the close of the speech from the throne, the President of the House of Deputies called for cheers, which were given in such a deafening fashion in various languages as to drown the national anthem, which was played simultaneously. The Emperor was visibly moved and gave repeated thanks for the ovation, which was renewed again and again as he left the hall.

In his speech the Emperor, after affectionately recalling the memory of Emperor Francis Joseph, said:

"Summoned in a fateful time to direct the State, I from the beginning have been conscious of the immense seriousness of the task Providence has laid on my shoulders. I feel, however, within me, the will and power loyally to discharge my duties as ruler, following the example of my illustrious predecessor, and to do justice, with God's help, to my sublime office.

"The interests of the State shall no longer be deprived of that effective furtherance which zealous co-operation of a popular assembly rightly comprehending its power, judicious and conscientious, can provide. I have summoned you, honorable gentlemen, to exercise your constitutional activity, and I heartily welcome you today on the inauguration of your work.

To Rule "in a Constitutional Spirit."

"In full consciousness of the constitutional duties taken over from my illustrious predecessor, and from my own deepest conviction, I desire solemnly to declare to you my unalterable will to exercise my right as ruler at all times in a truly constitutional spirit and to respect inviolably liberties according to the fundamental law and to preserve unabridged to the people that share in the formation of the State's will which the prevailing Constitution provides for.

"In the loyal co-operation by my people and its representatives, I see support for the success of my activity, and I think that the welfare of the State, whose glorious existence has been maintained in the storms of a world war by the grim cohesion of its citizens, cannot in times of peace be more securely rooted than in the unassailable rights of a mature, patriotic, and free people.

"Mindful of my obligation to the Constitution and adhering to my intention expressed immediately on my accession to fulfill this obligation freely, I must at the same time keep in mind the provisions of the fundamental law which places in my hands alone the decisions to be taken at the great moment of the conclusion of peace. I am, however, convinced that a happy development of our constitutional life after the unfruitfulness of the past years and after the exceptional political conditions of war time—apart from the solution of the Galician question, for which my illustrious predecessor has already indicated the way—is not possible without expanding the Constitution and the administrative foundations of the whole of our public life, both in the State and in the separate kingdoms and countries, especially in Bohemia.

For "Free National Development."

"I trust that recognition of your serious responsibility for the formation of political conditions and your belief in the happy future of the Empire, splendidly strengthened in this terrible war, will give you, honorable gentlemen, strength, in union with me, speedily to create conditions giving scope to free national and cultural development of equally privileged people. From these considerations I decided to postpone taking the constitutional oath until the time, which I hope is not far distant, when the foundation of a new, strong, and happy Austria will again for gen-

Germans Prepare for Blow by Russia; Expect Combined Attack on All Fronts

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, May 31.—The Germans undoubtedly expect heavy fighting on the Russian front. The fact that naval guns are being moved eastward with heavy reinforcements of troops appears to indicate a shortage of heavy high-angle field artillery.

The latest German communiques continue to refer to the increasing artillery duel along the whole Eastern front, and the Frankfurter Gazette this morning published a leading article emphatically warning the public that the so-called unofficial truce with Russia is now over, and the Entente apparently has succeeded in arranging for a simultaneous offensive on all fronts. The paper says the Kaiser's warning to the troops on the Western front that a decision is now at hand referred to this coming combined offensive.

It is significant that Theodor Wolff in the Tageblatt again warns the German public to abandon all hope of a separate peace with Russia, while the Dutch pacifist press tonight accuses the German Chancellor of clumsiness in his treatment of the Russian situation. THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent learns from very well-informed sources that the German military party was anxious to deal a smashing blow on the Russian front during the crisis of the revolution, but was prevented owing to the impossibility of withdrawing men and guns from the western front.

WILSON SUBSCRIBES $10,000 TO THE LOAN

Canadian Railroad Men and Bankers Send McAdoo Word of Their Substantial Support.

ONE INVESTS $1,000,000

Says There Is "No Better Security in the Universe"—Itinerary of McAdoo's Second Tour.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—President Wilson today joined the ranks of participants in the Liberty Loan by subscribing for a $10,000 bond.

Writing to Secretary McAdoo, the President said:

"May I not send you personally my subscription to the Liberty Loan, which I make with great satisfaction and with the wish that it might be a great deal larger?"

Leading Canadian railroad men and bankers were among those who notified the Treasury formally today of Liberty Loan subscriptions. Lord Shaughnessy, President of the Canadian Pacific Railroad, telegraphed:

"Have been glad to subscribe to the Liberty Loan as a mark of friendly feeling and appreciation of the position of the United States. The Canadian Pacific Railway enjoys important business relations with the United States, and is very glad to participate in this loan."

Frederick Taylor, General Manager of the Bank of Montreal, telegraphed:

"The subscription of the Bank of Montreal of $1,000,000 to the Liberty Loan means that Canada and the United States side by side face a common enemy. It is therefore fitting that the premier bank of the Dominion contribute to the success of the Liberty Loan, which is the first great blow struck by the United States in the world war. I do not hesitate to say that there is no better security in the universe than the Liberty Loan."

"While there is every indication that the loan is progressing satisfactorily, assurance must be made doubly sure," said Secretary McAdoo today. "It is of vital importance that the Liberty Loan be oversubscribed as evidence that the people of the United States are deeply imbued with the purposes of the war and determined to prosecute it vigorously. We want to force an early peace and re-establish justice and liberty.

"Negotiations with the allied Governments for looking after their financial needs are progressing satisfactorily, and if provision is made by Congress for raising sufficient money by taxation and the people invest to the required extent in Liberty bonds, I believe that the foundations for carrying on the immense financial operations of the American Government during the war will be established on a solid basis."

Mr. McAdoo today announced the itinerary for his second speaking tour in support of the loan. His speaking engagements are: New York, June 4; Boston, June 5; Detroit, June 6; St. Louis, June 7; New Orleans, June 8; Birmingham, June 9; Louisville and Cincinnati, June 11, and Pittsburgh, June 12. He will be accompanied to Boston and Detroit by Charles S. Hamlin of the Federal Reserve Board, and on the rest of the trip by W. P. G. Harding, Governor of the board.

An appeal to the 173,564 enlisted men, officers and civil employes of the navy to buy Liberty Loan bonds was issued today by Secretary Daniels.

"As the navy must be first in defense," he said, "let it be first in making investment in bonds which will aid in 'making the world safe for democracy.'"

FIRST NATIONAL MADE LOAN BID OF $75,000,000

Subscription, Mentioned by Frank A. Vanderlip, Said to Include U. S. Steel's $25,000,000.

The First National Bank of New York is the institution which has collected subscriptions to the Liberty Loan aggregating $75,000,000. This figure includes the bank's own subscription of $25,000,000 and the subscriptions of several large railroad and industrial corporations. Frank A. Vanderlip, President of the National City Bank and Chairman of the Liberty Loan Publicity Committee, in a public address Tuesday night mentioned the fact that one New York bank had received subscriptions amounting to $75,000,000, but he declined to give the name of the institution. Wall Street has been guessing ever since, and a canvass of the leading banks made yesterday by a reporter of THE TIMES traced this record subscription to the First National. Francis L. Hine, the President of the bank, when asked if the First National had received applications amounting to $75,000,000, smilingly said that he would not deny it.

The First National has received several large corporation subscriptions, among them $5,000,000 from the Bell Telephone system and $5,000,000 from

BROKERS' MANAGER IN $100,000 THEFT

DOWNFALL DUE TO WHEAT

Accused Employe, Police Say, Admitted He Manipulated Accounts of W. R. Craig & Co.'s Customers.

Admitting, according to the police, the specific larceny of $65,000 from the brokerage firm of W. R. Craig & Co. of 25 Broad Street, where he was employed as manager of the commodity department at $100 a week, Robert Moore, 34 years old, of Rutherford, N. J., was arraigned before Magistrate Krotel in the Tombs Court yesterday on a warrant charging him with forgery to conceal the misappropriation of money. He was held in $25,000 bail to await the action of the Grand Jury. Moore is a son of Robert R. Moore, President of the Commercial Trust Company, one of the five men under indictment in Pennsylvania in connection with the alleged wrecking of the Pittsburgh Life and Trust Company. Mr. Moore was greatly agitated over his son's arrest.

"I have nothing to say, no statement to make," he exclaimed. "My son is 35 years old. I knew nothing about this until night before last. I have not even seen him. It has been a great grief to me, and the notoriety of it seems unfair. I wish I might not appear in this at all. I am terribly sorry, but I have nothing to say."

Although the police said that Moore had admitted that his peculations might amount to several hundred thousand dollars, "possibly half a million," W. W. Cunningham, attorney for the brokerage firm, told Magistrate Krotel that this was an exaggeration. He placed the firm's losses at about $100,000. Moore, pale and studious looking, and wearing expensive clothes, took little interest in the proceedings, and would not make any statement.

According to Detective James Cook, who arrested him, Moore made a complete confession at Police Headquarters, where he was taken before being arraigned. Cook said that Moore blamed his downfall to speculation in wheat, and he gave the following version of Moore's statement: He began speculating two years ago with a fair degree of luck. Then he made one big plunge and lost everything. In order to retrieve his losses he began dipping into the funds of his employers, who placed absolute confidence in him. Moore covered up his thefts by manipulating the accounts of several customers by dealing in commodities in their names. In addition he opened several fictitious accounts in the books.

Then, according to the police, Moore said that on May 12 he falsified an account carried in the name of F. C. Zabriskie of 13 South William Street, which netted him more than $65,000. This led to discovery by his employers, who were at a loss for a reason to explain the smallness of their profits. "I've got to take the consequences of my folly," Moore is quoted as saying when arrested. He expressed great concern for the future of his wife and two small children.

W. R. Craig said yesterday that Moore had been employed by the firm for eleven years. Mr. Craig declined to make any comment on Moore's methods in getting away with the firm's funds, limiting his observations to this statement:

"Recently the attention of the firm was called to serious irregularities on the part of Robert Moore, one of our employes. Mr. Moore was bonded by the American Surety Company since March 26, 1917, to the extent of $75,000, which we understand was 50 per cent. reinsured. After a thorough examination into all the departments of our business we have established the fact that, although the amount involved is substantial, it will not embarrass the firm."

At the American Surety Company's office it was said that no details of the defalcation had been received. A statement was issued by R. R. Brown, Vice President, which said that half of the $75,000 bond on Moore had been reinsured with other concerns.

WAR DEMONSTRATIONS BARRED IN SPAIN

Minister of Interior Says They Are Dangerous in View of Negotiations That Are Now Going On.

MADRID, May 31, (via Paris.)—According to the newspapers, the constitutional guarantees will be suspended again in two or three days. Ex-Premier Count Romanones has told an intimate friend that he regretted he was not invited to the mass meeting held by pro-Ally sympathizers last Sunday. He said that if he had been present he would have maintained the declarations made in his letter to King Alfonso at the time he resigned. He added that many Liberals who were partisans of the Allies would also have liked to be present.

Minister of the Interior Burels has prohibited all public manifestations relative to international questions as "dangerous to the interests of the country, in view of the important diplomatic negotiations now going on." Several such demonstrations had been planned in Madrid and other cities.

HIT DRAFT PLOTS IN MANY STATES; ARREST 3 COLLEGE STUDENTS HERE; POLICE DISPLAY QUIETS ANTIS' MEETING

Make Charge of Treason Against Three Prisoners Held in Ohio's Capital for Anti-Draft Plotting

COLUMBUS, Ohio, May 31.—Charges of treason, a capital offense, were filed by United States District Attorney Bolin tonight against three men who, with several others, were arrested during the day in connection with anti-registration plotting in Columbus. All pleaded not guilty before United States Commissioner Johnson, and were held under $25,000 bond to await preliminary hearing on Saturday morning. A Federal Grand Jury will be assembled on Tuesday to investigate the case.

Those charged with treason are Ammon A. Hennacy, aged 24, a junior last year at Ohio State University; Harry E. Townsley, a printer, aged 43, and Cecil W. Bailey, a mechanic, aged 25.

Others under arrest for investigation are Olb Wulnestro, aged 30, East Columbus, a tinner, and John Lewis Hammond, a miner, arrested at Marietta for distributing anti-registration literature at Coal Run, Washington County.

None of the three charged with treason winced when reminded at their arraignment that conviction on the charge of treason may mean death.

Townsley, who conducts a print shop, has lived all his life in Columbus. He is married. Hennacy is a native of Ohio. He attended Wisconsin University a short time in 1914, and has been a Socialist worker in Madison and Milwaukee. Bailey has lived here since 1910. He was born at Parkersburg, W. Va., and lived for a time at Wellsville, Ohio.

A great stock of brilliant posters, each four feet wide and ten feet long, was confiscated at Hennacy's home. It was reported that the posters were printed in Washington, D. C., and sent to Hennacy by express.

NEW POLICE ARMS AWE SOCIALISTS

Patrolmen with Rifles Massed in Streets and Searchlights Flood Dark Corners.

FIVE PERSONS ARRESTED

Anti-Draft Meeting in Madison Sq. Garden Brings Display of Readiness for Disorder.

The Police Department gave the pacifists and Socialists proof at their mass meeting in Madison Square Garden last night that, while they were willing to permit free speech, they were also ready and able to quell any unpatriotic demonstration that might be attempted by persons opposed to the war or the operation of the selective draft. The meeting was held under the auspices of the First American Conference for Democracy and Peace Terms, which has been conducting a two-day convention in the city, and, although it proved innocuous so far as any outbreak went, it gave the police an opportunity they had been looking for to demonstrate the effectiveness of their new war-time defensive organization.

But there was no serious work for the police to do. Five arrests were made of persons distributing anti-conscription literature on complaints made by soldiers and sailors who attended the meeting and took exception to the pamphlets offered. All of the prisoners, including one woman, were taken to the East Twenty-second Street Station and were held in $500 bail each by Magistrate Corrigan in the Night Court. Today they will be turned over to the Federal authorities. The prisoners said they were Jennie Delmer, 27 years old, of 235 Fifth Avenue, Brooklyn; Louis Kramer, 208 Second Avenue; Louis Sternberg, 94 Rutgers Street; Joseph Walden, 3 West Thirteenth Street, and Morris Becker, 18 West 107th Street. The prisoners were all born in Russia. The complainant in each case is Sergeant Benjamin Silverman, Eighth Company, Coast Defense Corps. Although the arrests were made on the technical charge of disorderly conduct, the prisoners were held to answer a Federal statute against the distribution of seditious literature.

Long before the pacifists began to arrive at the hall—and that was at 6:30 o'clock—the police organization was in full operation. Four hundred and fifty patrolmen in uniform lined the sidewalks, and sudden and swift suppression awaited the man whose actions were in the least suspicious, or who attempted to distribute literature assailing registration or the selective draft. As darkness came on, a battery of electric flood lights attached to lampposts at each street intersection poured their white rays upon the long lines of moving people, bringing into full and easy view every nook and corner where a trouble-maker might seek to hide. At intervals, too, police automobiles equipped with high-powered searchlights passed through the streets and searched with their big lenses roof edges where a brick thrower might be.

Armed with Rifles.

Policemen equipped with high-power rifles rode in these automobiles. Field telephones of the kind in use in France on the war front had been installed in Twenty-sixth and Twenty-seventh Streets, and policemen reported at regular intervals the progress of the crowd to the emergency field police station that had been installed in the building of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Chief Inspector Schmittberger, Inspector Bolan, and other high police officials were on duty, and anything in the way of precaution that might have been overlooked by them and Commissioner Woods was taken care of by the small army of Federal Secret Service men, detectives in plain clothes, representatives of the Department of Justice, and fully seventy-five stenographers in the service of the Federal Government and the Police Department, who took down every word that was said.

The meeting was called last night to demand that the United States make a definite statement of its war aims and to enable those who are opposed to registration to say that the conscription law was, in their opinion, unconstitutional. Resolutions embodying the statement and the demand were adopted. The meeting attracted a crowd larger than the Garden would hold, but apparently many of them were there out of

ONE MAN SEIZED AT SEA

Taken from Pacific Liner Bound for Mexico—Must Have Certificates to Get Passports.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 31. — Attorney General Gregory issued an announcement today that his department was determined that no man subject to registration under the new army law should escape his obligation by leaving the United States before June 5.

He also announced that the department had instructed its agents in California yesterday to remove from aboard a vessel bound for Mexico a passenger whose age made him subject to the provisions of the draft law. It was stated at the department today that this policy was to be pursued generally and that whenever cases were discovered in which such attempts to evade the law were resorted to the individuals in question would be detained.

When the attention of Mr. Baker, Secretary of War, was invited to the attempts of some persons to evade military service by avoiding registration by leaving the country before June 5 he said:

"It is wholly incredible that any substantial number of Americans of military age would take such action. It does not, however, afford a means of escape. The vigor of the law is such that it would be but a temporary evasion."

Interest in the status of Americans abroad, as well as those going abroad, with respect to registration was such today that it was decided late this afternoon to issue a public statement for the information of all concerned. The statement follows:

No provision has yet been made by the Provost Marshal General Enoch H. Crowder for the registration of Americans abroad. Nor has provision been made for registration in any American territory beyond the boundaries of the United States except Alaska, Hawaii, and Porto Rico. Inability to register does not afford a permanent excuse. The registration regulations prescribed by the President provide that "male persons within the designated ages, who, on account of absence at sea or on account of absence within the territorial limits of the United States, may be unable to comply with the regulations herein pertaining to absentees will, within five days after reaching the first United States port, register with the proper Registration Board or as herein provided for other absentees."

The regulation further provides that Americans who have been unable to register on account of residence abroad must make out an affidavit stating the cause of their absence when they register upon their return to America.

The State Department is co-operating with Provost Marshal General Crowder in preventing any possible attempts to leave the country to escape the duty of registration. The State Department has provided that:

"1. Before issuing a passport to a male person who on or before June 5, 1917, shall have attained his twenty-first birthday and shall not have attained his thirty-first birthday, the Department of State requires that such person present, with his application for a passport, a signed statement from the War Department to the effect that the War Department has no objection to the issuance of a passport to him.

2. Each person applying to the War Department for authorization of the issuance of a passport must bear in mind that:

(a) He must register, or in cases arising before registration day he must make arrangements to insure his registration on registration day. These arrangements are prescribed by Paragraph 64, Registering Regulations, and are set forth below.

(b) He must satisfy the War Department that he has so registered, or, in cases arising before registration, day, that he has made arrangements to insure his registration on registration day.

(c) After registration he is liable to draft.

(d) The burden of informing himself while absent from the United States as to whether or not he has been drafted rests wholly upon himself.

(e) If drafted he may be required to return to the United States at his own expense, to appear before an exemption board or to be examined for military service.

The consent of the War Department to the issuance of a passport in any particular case may be obtained as follows:

FEDERAL AGENTS ACTIVE

Seize Youthful Anti-Conscription Agitators Here on Conspiracy Charge.

BARNARD GIRL ACCUSED

Two Columbia Young Men Held —Acted for an Anti-Militarism League.

JUDGE UPHOLDS THE LAW

Dismisses Kansas City Injunction Proceedings and Litigants Are Locked Up Later.

Acting under instruction from the Department of Justice in Washington, Secret Service agents took into custody yesterday two young men, Columbia University students, and a girl, a Barnard College student, on a charge of conspiracy to "counsel and induce male persons between the ages of 21 and 31 years" to refuse to register for military service under the selective draft law approved by President Wilson on May 18 last.

Those under arrest are Owen Cattell, the 19-year-old son of Professor J. McK. Cattell of the Department of Psychology at Columbia; Charles Francis Phillips, 22 years old, a son of Harry Phillips, a clothing manufacturer of 1,799 First Avenue, and Miss Eleanor W. Parker of Asbury Park, N. J., whose father, the proprietor of the Atlantic Hotel at that resort, charged last night that his daughter was the victim of the "false teachings of a group of Columbia University professors."

The students under arrest are members of an organization known as the "Collegiate Anti-Militarism League," and it was for the alleged attempt to promulgate a document said to have been authorized by that league, that they were taken into custody by the Secret Service agents yesterday morning. The document, 2,000 copies of which had been ordered printed, was on the presses when the Government agents acted. The final proofs, now in the possession of the Government, form an exhibit the like of which, it was said yesterday, had never before found a place in the archives of the Federal Courts of the Southern District of New York.

Curbing Anti-Draft Plotters.

Throughout the country the Federal agents were active yesterday to curb the efforts of plotters. In Columbus, Ohio, a raid was made on a printing office, where it is alleged anti-conscription literature was printed. Charges of treason were made last night against three of the persons seized in Columbus. In Topeka, Kan., arrests were made of persons who had been active in an anti-conscription meeting, and in Lawrence, Kan., a former Socialist candidate for Governor was arrested.

An attack made on the conscription law failed in Kansas City, and soon after the court's decision was rendered the two litigants were arrested by Federal officials as plotters.

In this city the Government agents are trying to get at the bottom of the propaganda with which the three young students under arrest are identified. That they may prove to have been the tools of older heads, and that forces, more or less sinister, may have encouraged them in their efforts to stir discontent over the Selective Draft act is the frankly expressed opinion of some of the Government officials concerned in the investigation of anti-conscription plots in New York City.

A man who talked with young Phillips yesterday afternoon, who is numbered among the latter's best friends, said that Phillips had told him that the "Collegiate Anti-Militarism League" had received an offer of "German money," but Phillips added that the league had refused to accept the money. He also admitted, according to that friend, that every member of the league had been asked to accept a free subscription to a pro-German weekly edited by George Sylvester Viereck, but that this offer also had been rejected. Miss Parker is said to have offered as an excuse for her predicament that she was "trying to carry out the principles advocated by William Jennings Bryan."

More Arrests Expected Here.

The arrests of Cattell, Phillips, and Miss Parker are the first in the round-up of selective draft agitators and plotters which is now being made in this part of the country by Government agents. The activities of various anarchists, I. W. W. agitators, so-called Internationalists, and others of similar beliefs are now the subject of investigation, and other arrests may follow at any time. Any spoken or written word uttered or written for the purpose of interfering with the purpose of the Selective Draft act will result in the prompt arrest of the person or persons responsible for them, it was said last night.

One of the organizations which is being carefully watched is the so-called No Conscription League, in the propaganda of which anarchists of the Goldman-Berkman type and certain I. W. W. agitators are prominent. Certain factions of malcontents who style themselves Socialists are also the subject of inquiry.

It is understood that all of the various anti-selective draft organizations are working in sympathy, and the statement was made by a person in authority yesterday that there was now no doubt that there was concert in the activities of these persons throughout the country. For instance, it is known that members of the Collegiate Anti-Militarism League attended a recent mass meeting of the No Conscription League and scattered their own and No Conscription League literature through the crowd. At least two of the persons who spoke at the anarchistic meeting also addressed the Socialist conference held in this city this week to urge, among other things, a separate peace between the United States and Germany unless this country and its allies came to the same way of thinking as the Russian Soldiers' and Workmen's Committee.

Arraignment of the Students.

Cattell, Phillips, and Miss Parker were brought to the Federal Building by agents of the Department of Justice shortly before noon yesterday. They were immediately taken before United States Commissioner Hitchcock and arraigned on a complaint signed by Assistant United States District Attorney Harold A. Content, which charged the conspiracy to interfere with carrying into effect the registration provisions of the Selective Draft act.

The complaint charged the prisoners with having knowingly and feloniously conspired to commit an offense against the United States, and that in order to carry the conspiracy into effect the defendants delivered on May 24 to a printer in New York a typewritten document entitled "Will you be drafted?" which document, when printed, was to have been circulated for the purpose of preventing the enforcement of the Selective Draft act.

The document, it was subsequently asserted, had been submitted by Cattell to Moses Spiegel, President of the Graphic Press, with instructions to print it in pamphlet form. In some manner, not disclosed by the Government, information was brought to the Department of Justice agents concerning the intended circulation of the document. The Department of Justice agents went to the printing office and seized the proofs of the pamphlet, which are now an exhibit in the case.

The proofs of the article begin with what is said to be a quotation from resolutions adopted at a meeting of the Collegiate Anti-Militarism League on May 8 last, which said that "we will approve the action of any one who refuses to register for conscription." The meeting appointed Cattell, Phillips, and Miss Parker a committee to draw up in some sort of form the views of the league, and the document seized yesterday is said to be the result of their work.

The pamphlet first presents the arguments of its signers against conscription, among the various reasons being that the Government did not submit the proposal to a referendum of the people, and that the Selective Draft act, as signed by President Wilson, was abhorrent to democracy.

Would Resist Registration.

Near the end of the document occur the expressions which the Federal authorities have ruled as a direct violation of the law and an invitation to men who are required under the law to register to refuse to appear for registration. These are the expressions in question:

> For those of us who are opposed to the draft and will refuse to be conscripted there remains only the question of how best to make our resistance felt. If we want to strike with the full strength of our numbers we must refuse to register for conscription—even if it means jail for us. There need be nothing negative about our refusal. Every man can present himself at his registration booth, give his name and address, (perhaps on a slip of paper,) and announce that he is unalterably opposed to the draft and will refuse to register for it. (It will not do to register and add the information that one is a conscientious objector. It is likely that only the reasons for exemption now recognized by the law will be recorded, everything else being thrown out as extraneous matter. The public will never hear of your protest.)
> It is only by resisting that we can drive home the force of the no-conscription movement. Only a small proportion of those who register will be conscripted. Of these many will be excused because of physical defects. Very few of us will get an opportunity to resist. Let us not wait until chance conscripts us before making our protest. It is beginning to appear that many a pacifist was born to blush unseen. This is perfectly satisfactory to the conscriptionists.
> The conscription law provides that as soon as a man has registered he is subject to military law. When we resist registration we shall be resisting conscription. Why not attack this whole business of conscription when we can strike with our full strength?
> We urge all conscientious objectors to resist registration—even to the extent of going to prison if necessary. If you are with us and intend to resist either registration or conscription, let us know your name and address.

League Has Many Branches.

Documents in the possession of the Federal authorities apparently indicate that the Collegiate Anti-Militarism League has branches in most of the leading universities and colleges of the East and Middle West. The documents name James W. Danahy of Columbia University as President, Robert W. Dunn of Yale as Treasurer, Devere Allen of Oberlin College, Ohio, as Secretary, Miss Parker as the Executive and Phillips as the Organizing Secretary of the organization. The members of the National Committee are given as Allen Addicke, Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Elizabeth Biddle of Bryn Mawr, Hallowell Davis of Harvard, Charles Common of the College of the City of New York; A. Epstein, University of Pittsburgh; Eva Farrell, Elmira; Ida Glatt, Goucher; Theodore A. Greene, Union Theological Seminary; Henry N. Hallett, Cornell; Warren J. Haid, Hobart College; Clarina Hanks, Rochester; Marcia D. Hill, Mount Holyoke; Harry Janeway, Rutgers; A. E. Jensen, University of Nebraska; Chester Osler, Harvard; Miss Park, Barnard; L. C. Pratt, Columbia; Elizabeth Punderson, Radcliffe; H. Rauschenbusch, Amherst; G. Robinson, Leland Stanford Junior University; C. H. Safely, University of Iowa; R. H. Shelton, Trinity; H. M. Smith, University of Kansas; W. B. Spofford, Berkeley Theological Seminary; Henry H. Strater, Princeton; B. Swattager, Valparaiso College, Indiana; Edith Taylor, University of Nevada; Donald Timmerman, University of Minnesota; Margaret Wilson, Wellesley; Theresa Wolfson, Adelphi College; Edward N. Wright, University of Pennsylvania; W. E. Zeuch, Clarke University, and P. J. Zuris, Syracuse University.

The papers containing the above names say that the league is "an organization springing directly from American college students."

Cattell, Phillips, and Miss Parker did not furnish bail until late yesterday afternoon. Commissioner Hitchcock fixed the bail at $1,500 in each case, and late in the afternoon Professor W. H. L. Dana of Columbia University, who is a member of one of the committees appointed at the Socialist Conference on Peace Terms Wednesday, appeared and furnished cash bail for each of the prisoners. Professor Dana was indignant when a newspaperman tried to interview him, and said that he had no information to impart to the newspapers.

Mr. Phillips, the father of Charles F. Phillips, was said last night to be entirely out of sympathy with his son in the present case, and to have expressed himself forcibly along those lines. The father is said to be ardently in favor of the selective draft. Professor Cattell, father of young Cattell, lives at Garrison, N. Y., and could not be reached last night.

Professor Cattell is one of the best known psychologists in this country. He was educated at Lafayette College, Penn., and at the Universities of Paris, Goettingen, Leipsic, and Geneva. He was at one time an assistant instructor in the University of Leipsic, and subsequently a lecturer on psychology at Cambridge University, England. He is a former President of the New York Academy of Sciences, and also is a past President of the American Psychological Association. He is now the head of the Department of Psychology at Columbia.

Dr. Cattell attained some publicity last Fall by his letter to the Columbia Faculty Club advocating the use of Dr. Butler's home for a new Faculty clubhouse.

Edwin A. Parker, father of Miss Parker, made very plain last night that he considered his daughter a victim of older persons, among them Columbia professors, who, he said, had filled her head with false doctrines.

"I believe," said Mr. Phillips, at his home in Asbury Park, "that my daughter is the tool of some sort of group in Columbia University, among them some of the professors in that institution. Those professors and others of their kind are the real instigators of all this trouble. My daughter is only a little more than 19 years of age, and is really not responsible in this matter. She has simply been victimized by this group of unscrupulous men to whom I have referred."

Miss Parker is a member of this year's senior class at Barnard, and is to be graduated next week. Miss Parker is employed by the New York Telephone Company, and was arrested at the main offices of the company, at 195 Broadway. Cattell was arrested at the university and Phillips at his home, on West End Avenue. Miss Parker, it was said at the Federal Building, is a lineal descendant of one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence.

A. Bertram Samuels of 120 Broadway is counsel for Phillips and Miss Parker, while Winter Russell, who is prominent in Socialist circles, represents Cattell. Russell was said to have been one of the delegates to the Socialist Peace Terms Conference.

"I am pro-Ally and in favor of the draft law," said Mr. Samuels, "but I shall do all in my power to get these young people out of the mess they are in."

The case was set for a hearing at 11:30 o'clock this morning, but it was said last night that all the accused would waive examination, which automatically does away with the hearing. The case may go to the Grand Jury for investigation the first thing next week.

Columbia University will take no official action against the three students who were arrested. President Nicholas Murray Butler would take no notice of the matter, one way or another, it was said yesterday.

Miss Parker was one of the editors of Challenge, the radical magazine that startled Columbia with attacks upon the university and the faculty, and which advocated birth control. Despite the efforts of Miss Parker and several other Barnard girls, however, the magazine failed, lacking student approval.

ARRESTS MADE IN TOPEKA.

Four Participants in Anti-Conscription Meeting Are Held.

TOPEKA, Kan., May 31.—Dr. Eva Harding, former candidate for Congress, and Ike Gilberg, both of this city, were arrested this afternoon by Federal officers. Both were present at an anti-conscription meeting here last Sunday. Both were charged with conspiracy to defeat the draft.

Fred Felten, a garage keeper, and Ernest Newman, a carpenter, later were arrested on the same charge. Felten acted as Secretary at the meeting on Sunday, and Newman introduced the speakers.

Professor George W. Kleihege, Socialist candidate for Governor of Kansas in 1914, was arrested in Lawrence tonight on a warrant charging him with conspiracy in connection with agitation against the selective draft law. Professor Kleihege will be brought to this city.

BOSTON, May 31.—United States District Attorney George W. Anderson and Marshal John J. Mitchell today notified the police of every city and town in Massachusetts to arrest immediately all persons found printing or circulating anti-draft literature and to turn them over to the Federal authorities for prosecution.

Police officials were advised that if the anti-draft movement should become serious and widespread, National Guard forces would assist in enforcing the law.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., May 31.—O. C. Nelson, who was arrested last night charged with distributing anti-conscription literature, told the authorities today that his home was in Rockford, Ill., and he had come to Charleston from Cincinnati. He denied having any connection with the anti-conscription propaganda, but was held in $2,000 bail by a United States Commissioner for a hearing.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, May 31.—Charged with disorderly conduct in making a speech against conscription, Andrew Anderson was fined $25 and costs and sentenced to thirty days' imprisonment here today by Judge Beebe.

UPHOLDS THE DRAFT LAW.

Injunction Proceedings Dismissed—Petitioners Later Taken as Plotters.

KANSAS CITY, May 31.—Judge Daniel Bird in the Circuit Court today denied an application for an injunction to prevent State, County, and city officials from enforcing the draft registration on next Tuesday. Judge Bird held that the draft law was valid and that his court had no jurisdiction to prevent it being carried out.

From the bench he recommended that Thomas Sullivan and Raymond I. Moore, the petitioners, both of whom are eligible for registration, seek out the first enlistment place without attempting to evade the registration law.

Judge Bird, in his decision, referred to the selective draft army law as the "most equitable and efficient" this country has ever had. He also ruled that, in time of war, State, county, and city officials could be used by Congress to further any war measures.

Very soon after Judge Bird's decision had been handed down, information against fifty persons alleged to have been connected with anti-conscription plots was filed in the Federal Court by Federal officials. Five persons were arrested at once. Two of them were Raymond I. Moore and Thomas Sullivan, both of whom had sought unsuccessfully to obtain an injunction.

Of the additional three held as prisoners one was Moore's wife. She was formerly Miss Leonora Warneson, the public school teacher who came into conflict with school board authorities here recently after she had written anti-enlistment mottoes on the blackboard of her schoolroom. The other two were Elsa Luboshey, a photographer, and H. D. Kleinschmidt of Corder, Mo. They were arraigned before the Federal Commissioner and held in default of bonds of $5,000 each.

BRITISH MAKE DRIVE FOR RECRUITS HERE

Hope to Enlist at Least 20,000 of the 500,000 Englishmen in This Country.

The British Recruiting Mission will open offices in the Stewart Building, Broadway and Chambers Street, within a few days, to raise a volunteer force from the 500,000 and more English and Canadians of military age in the United States. The quarters will adjoin the United States Army recruiting headquarters for the eastern district. The name of the mission was painted upon the five doors of the suite of offices yesterday.

Brigadier General W. A. White of the British Army is head of the commission and is assisted by Captain P. F. Sise of the 148th Battalion Canadian Infantry. They have with them a large corps and expect to spend the Summer in their work here. Prior to the beginning of the actual work of recruiting the members of the mission, who are stopping at the Hotel Vanderbilt, will make a public announcement of their aims.

While the raising of the force is an uncertain thing so far as the success expected, the members of the mission feel that if in the next six months they can raise in this country a force of 20,000 they will have justified the effort.

ASK PARTY WORKERS TO AID.

National Chairmen Urge Them to Assist in Registration.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—Vance C. McCormick, as Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, and William R. Willcox, as Chairman of the Republican National Committee, today united in an appeal to the party committeemen throughout the country to do everything possible to help in the work of registration day. They do this because such committeemen are experienced in the work of registration and canvassing. In a signed statement issued today, Chairman Willcox and Chairman McCormick said:

"By the terms of the Selective Draft act, the President has designated June 5 as registration day for the purpose of enrolling those citizens who are of military age and condition. An eligible list of men within certain ages available for service is to be established by this registration, from which it is subsequently proposed to select those who are to bear arms for the United States in the present struggle, and those whose proper sphere of duty is along other but no less useful lines. It is of great national importance that this registration should be as complete as possible, in order that the Government may be enabled to make proper selection.

"The Congressional enactment under which this registration is conducted was supported by members of both houses of Congress affiliated with both of the great political parties. Party lines were not drawn during the consideration of this great measure. Men of both parties supported it, and both parties should now co-operate in aiding the Government in the successful administration of the law. Men of both parties can be of great service in making the coming registration a complete success. Accordingly, we, as Chairmen of the National Committees of our respective parties, have addressed a communication to officers of State political organizations throughout the country, asking them to put into operation the party machinery in their respective districts for the purpose of aiding registration officers in securing a complete enrollment of the citizens affected.

"We have submitted this suggestion to our political organizations in every State, because we believe that these organizations are splendidly equipped for effective work in this direction. The activities of political organizations are usually directed along similar lines, that is to say, work connected with the canvass of citizens in cities, towns, and communities, and their registration and enrollment. The systematic effort of individual members of political committees in their various districts, would and we have urged the various committees to exert themselves to this end.

"We sincerely hope that all members of our organizations, and party workers generally, will join with other citizens in this movement to insure the enrollment of every citizen, who comes within the provisions of this law and is subject to enrollment. We believe that every officer and every member of our organizations will count it a great privilege to serve the nation in this behalf, and we count upon the patriotic co-operation and assistance of our committeemen in this important work.

"VANCE C. McCORMICK,
"Chairman Democratic National Committee.
"WILLIAM R. WILLCOX,
"Chairman Republican National Committee."

SPURT IN RECRUITING; NEW YORK STILL LEADS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—New York is again in the lead in daily recruiting for the regular army, having furnished 303 recruits of the total obtained Tuesday and Wednesday. Illinois was second with 293, and Pennsylvania third with 230. A total of 2,801 recruits was obtained during the two days, bringing the total since April 1 to 90,319. EXCHANGES TO CLOSE JUNE 5

Will Give Their Employes Full Opportunity to Register.

The principal exchanges of the city voted yesterday to close their doors on Registration Day, June 5, in order that their employes who are eligible to conscription may have full opportunity to file their names. The Stock Exchange, the Produce Exchange, the Cotton Exchange and the Consolidated Stock Exchange decided upon this action immediately after the close of business and it is expected that the Coffee Exchange will vote on the matter today.

A Governor of the Stock Exchange said that the pledge made to support the Government in every way possible in its war measures was the direct cause of the decision to declare a recess on June 5. The action taken in this city came soon after dispatches from Chicago said the Board of Trade would be closed, and it is expected that exchanges in many other cities will put up their shutters also.

The price of Stock Exchange memberships declined rather sharply yesterday in two transactions at $55,000 each. The price paid by the buyer at the last preceding sale was $61,000. The membership of Arthur Whitney was posted for transfer to James H. Goss and Francis A. Connolly's seat went to Lyman D. Smith.

WHERE BOARDS MEET TO EXPLAIN DRAFT

Public Schools Selected in Most Cases as Information Centres Opening Today.

NEW RULE FOR TRAVELERS

Washington Decides They Must Register Before Departure—Information Boards Arrange Sessions.

The Central Board of Control, which is in charge of the selective draft registration in New York City, yesterday appointed boards of three members each for each of the sixty-three New York City Assembly Districts. These boards will have headquarters in the various districts for the purpose of supervising all arrangements for the registration. They will also act as boards of information for the benefit of those men, in each district, who are required by law to register on next Tuesday. In every instance except two the headquarters announced is a public school building. The boards will meet today, tomorrow, and Monday from 4 o'clock in the afternoon until 9 o'clock in the evening, and will be in session all day on Tuesday.

The meeting places of the boards as made public last night by Chairman Boyle of the Central Board, are as follows:

The Board of Elections yesterday received from Washington a new ruling on the regulations governing the registration of traveling men who will be out of town on June 5.

Those who have already started on journeys will register by mail, as already announced, but those who plan to leave the city between now and June 5 are to register before their departure. This rule applies to all towns and counties in the country. In New York the City Clerk is the designated official for the registration of residents leaving before June 5.

curiosity, and long before the speaking was over at least a third of the seats were empty.

There was no need for the police or the representatives of the Department of Justice to interfere, because those present, including the Rev. Judah L. Magnes, the President of the meeting; Scott Nearing, John Maurer, Morris Hillquit, Jenkin Lloyd Jones, and others who spoke, were careful not to violate the law or to urge young men of the nation to refuse to register under the selective army law. The law itself was assailed as unconstitutional, but all the speakers carefully explained that they were not there to advise any one to break the law.

Soldiers Cheer the President.

A company of soldiers in uniform, accompanied by three or four sailors, occupied seats just across from the speakers' platform, and it seemed at one time that their cheers for the President and the flag might start trouble. The soldiers waved the flag at every opportunity and insisted on applauding points which the speakers had not attempted to emphasize and which were not favorable to the Socialist or the pacifist cause. Finally Dr. Magnes considered it necessary to warn the audience against the soldiers.

"Do not let the handful of our soldiers disturb you," he said. "If they who wear the uniform of our country which gives us our laws choose to create a disturbance at a peaceful gathering, let them do so, and let the origin of the disturbance be understood."

Aside from this incident, and the confusion caused by people leaving while the speaking was going on, there was little trouble. One representative of the Emma Goldman faction of anarchists attempted to distribute anti-conscription pamphlets, but was hurried swiftly into the street and admonished not to let himself be seen in the neighborhood again under pain of arrest. He needed no urging and was soon lost in the crowd. Dr. Magnes and the other leaders of the meeting complained because the Fire Department had confiscated membership pamphlets they had thought to distribute among the audience, but the incident did nothing more serious than evoke a few "boohs."

Dr. Magnes demanded, in his speech, that the President stated in concrete terms "that every man can understand," what the nation is fighting for and upon what terms the United States would be ready to make peace.

"We urge further," he said, "that when such concrete aims shall have been formulated, the President declare, as a standing peace offer to Germany, that whenever these specified aims shall have been achieved we are ready to end the war.

"The President and Congress have said that we have gone to war because of Germany's illegal and brutal submarine warfare. Will we be ready to end the war and make peace if this ruthless submarine warfare be ended? This question should be answered clearly because as to it there is confusion in the minds of the public.

"The President has said also that we have gone to war because 'the world must be made safe for democracy.' The American people—devoted to this lofty aim—have the right to know just what this means to the President. To make the entire world safe for democracy may take a very, very long time. What particular part of the world, then, do we refer to, and what degree of safety do we require, and what degree of democracy will satisfy us? Does a world made safe for democracy refer to Germany alone, or does it refer to Austria-Hungary, Bulgaria, and Turkey as well, with whom we are not as yet at war? Does it also refer to some of our allies—Japan, for instance—and to some of the possessions held or dominated by our allies—Ireland, India, Morocco, Persia, for instance?

"If it refers to Germany alone, what are we after there? Is a military defeat of Germany absolutely essential before we shall agree to peace, so that Germany and all men may know that Germany's militarism is not invincible? And what will we exact of Germany if she be defeated? The President has said: 'We desire no conquest, no dominion. We seek no indemnities for ourselves, no material compensation.' Do we then demand as a condition sine qua non of a world made safe for democracy the dethronement of the Kaiser, or the reform of the three-class Prussian electoral system, or a Ministry responsible to the Reichstag instead of to the Kaiser? Or must Germany become a republic, copied after our own? If we are to make Germany into a democracy, are we to dictate forms of economic as well as of political life, and is the degree of democracy to be determined by our own standards or by those of the freer democracy of the new Russia?"

"The Russian Republic has announced its war aims and its peace terms. And our own conference is called together upon that very basis: 'No forcible annexations, no punitive indemnities, free development of all nations and peoples and nationalities.'"

Every reference to peace was received with great applause, and there was a great response when Dr. Magnes told of the committee that had been appointed at the afternoon meeting of the conference to organize a People's Council to represent those who are opposed to the war.

Morris Hillquit assailed the stupidity of the press that sought to make their readers believe that war was a "thing of gladness and joy."

"The sane people, even of the most bellicose type, admit that war is evil," he said—"the greatest evil that can visit mankind. The only difference between them and us is that they consider it a necessary evil, while we proclaim that war is the most unnecessary evil, the most wanton of evils—an evil entirely due to the cupidity of the classes and the stupidity of the masses."

Mr. Hillquit contended that it would be a serious mishap if, in trying to make the "world safe for democracy," the United States destroyed its own democracy. He, as well as the other speakers, frequently made caustic references to this phrase of the President, asserting that he owed it to the people he asked to go into the war to make known exactly the scope of it.

Mr. Maurer also assailed the press and the war. He argued that the capitalists of the nation had developed an interest in the cause of the Allies by lending them money, and that, fearing to lose this money, they had helped to plunge the nation into the war.

"When the talk of preparedness was first heard they told us preparedness was to keep us out of the war!" he cried. "There was no talk then of our joining in the war or of making the world safe for democracy."

The anti-conscription resolution adopted by the meeting was in part as follows:

"Inasmuch as we believe conscription laws to be unconstitutional and in violation of the Thirteenth Amendment of the Constitution of the United States, which provides that there shall be no involuntary servitude, we appeal to the Congress of the United States to amend the Conscription act before June 5 so as to grant exemption to all conscientious objectors, whether or not they be members of recognized religious organizations."

A resolution was adopted by the conference at its afternoon session favoring the creation of a "People's Council" similar to the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates in Russia. A committee on permanent organization was selected.

Another mass meeting to give further impetus to the fight on the selective draft law and to the demand for a full explanation of our aims in the war will be held by the conference at Carnegie Hall on Sunday.

Owen Cattell, a student at Columbia and son of Professor J. McK. Cattell, who was arrested yesterday with two others charged with engaging in a conspiracy to violate the selective conscription law and later released on bail, acted as an usher at the meeting.

HOUSE DEFEATS CENSORSHIP BY 40

in committee for the bill as reported by the Judiciary Committee. Mr. Graham hotly retorted that he voted "present" when accused of presenting to the Conference Committee suggestions for a compromise censorship clause. Mr. Graham said he had made such suggestions for others and merely in the hope of harmony on some mild legislation. He had never agreed, he said, to support anything approaching the drastic provisions of the Conference Committee report.

"No man in this House," said Representative Graham, "will go further in upholding, without regard to politics or to any other consideration, the hands of the President of the United States in prosecuting this war. Having voted for his proclamation, having voted for the selective draft, I pledged myself to do all that may be done by a man or a member of Congress to promote the President's work in bringing this war to a successful issue. But I want to say to you, my friends, that this section is not calculated to help, influence, or bring about that result.

"This section is a pernicious section and does not accomplish what I think, perhaps, the members of the Conference Committee hoped to accomplish by its adoption. One gentleman said a moment ago, 'Why, I am told that other parts of this bill would enable you to punish anybody that published information that was useful to the enemy.' Then he said, 'If that is so, why not pass Section 4 also, for it can do no harm?'

"Therein lies the vice of his reasoning, and when he reflects he will understand that is so, and I am sure he will vote, for he is an honest man, to strike out this section. There are other sections of this bill, the first and the second, under which the obtaining of any matter connected with the national defense is made a crime, and in the second section there is provision that the publication of any information with reference to the national defense is made a crime for which the man who willfully and intentionally and with the purpose of aiding the enemy, which is to be found by the jury, publishes it shall be punished under the severe penalties that are prescribed in these sections.

"No man can sit down and sanely and fairly read these two sections without arriving at the conclusion that there is ample power for the punishment of any villainous newspaper that will attempt to publish anything for the benefit of the enemy; but I ask your attention to this distinction. A publication might be alleged to be one that gave information to the enemy, and yet be a subject that the papers of the country and the men of the country in the exercise of freedom of speech ought to discuss, and the question would be—is it more harmful than beneficial?

"It may be something that would give information to the enemy, but at the same time if left without exposure it might bring a calamity upon one's own country. Under such circumstances who is to muzzle the press or who is to leave it to the jury to say whether or not on the single issue that it is helpful to the enemy, for that is what is left to the jury to try? I say that the statement made by my colleague, Mr. Gard, is worthy of serious attention of the members of this House on both sides of the aisle. His amendment was infinitely superior to the one that this Conference Committee has brought forth.

"This is a mongrel production, it is neither one thing nor the other, and when you read it honestly and squarely you must say that the condition of the press, the condition not alone of the press, but of every individual member of the House, will be ten-fold worse under this conference report than it could possibly be under the amendment that the House adopted on the motion of Mr. Gard.

"Why do I say that? When you read the first paragraph of Section 4 you find the prohibition of giving information to the enemy that will be useful to the enemy upon certain enumerated topics, but the language that is used, description and so forth, is so broad that it will cover everything connected with these particular subjects and make the publisher amenable to punishment.

"The next paragraph provides that the President shall from time to time—no not 'shall' even, but 'may'—that the President may from time to time designate what may be published. Ergo, whatever he does not designate is forbidden. Then think of the muzzle in the concluding paragraph of the section which has been amended since it left the House, wherein it attempts to provide the constitutional right of criticism and free speech, but winds up with the sting in the end and says, 'Provided it is not something that is prohibited in this section.'

"Suppose the President made no proclamation of what might be published, then I ask what could a paper say? Then in an attempt to preserve the freedom of the press it provides that only those things may be criticised which are not within the prohibition of this section. The first paragraph of the section prohibits it all. The second paragraph says that the President may from time to time designate what may be published. All else remains prohibited. Then the concluding paragraph of the section provides that nothing in the section shall be construed to limit or restrict any discussion, comment, or criticism of the act or policies of the Government or its representatives or the publication of the same. When you passed the bill you stopped there. But the conferees have added: 'If such discussion, comment, or criticism does not disclose information herein prohibited.'

"That paragraph has all its strength taken out of it and no lawyer will dare argue otherwise. That eliminates the power to criticise—so far as this section goes—anything and everything that is prohibited, and when you start with the thought that the first portion of the section prohibits all publications with relation to the enumerated topics, and when you consider that the President by refraining from ever saying that anything connected with those subjects is food for publication, you leave the whole matter prohibited, and then the press muzzler comes on and no comment can be made upon it at all.

"This is not merely a question of free press, however important that may be, but it involves also the sacred and inalienable rights of American citizens to free speech. Aye, if one of you obtained from the Department of War some information of value touching the question of the defense, and you were to come to me and communicate what you had found, then unless the President had permitted that publication you would be guilty of a crime. Remember the word 'publication' does not mean to print in type in a newspaper, but 'publication' means to utter, and that may be a publication just as much as a paragraph in a newspaper article would be."

Gard Rejects Changed Section.

Representative Gard said:

"I cannot accept the language framed by the conferees in the new Section 4 of this conference report. The particular language which I object to is that the President is not called upon to make a declaration of reasonable rules for the publication of matters affecting the national defense which may be useful to the enemy, but that the absolute power is given to the President to withhold all information concerning the movement, description, or distribution of the armed forces of the United States in naval or military operations, or in respect to any of the works intended for the fortification or defense of any place, which information is useful to the enemy, unless he shall first issue a proclamation, and determine by that proclamation the character of such above-desired information which in his opinion is not useful to the enemy, and thereupon it shall be lawful to publish the same.

"I do not think the question of authority which the Constitution contains, authorizing the President to make reasonable rules and regulations for the carrying on of a war, can at this time be held to include every publication which a newspaper can make, for as I read this language, if it means anything at all, it means that before any publication can be made of anything pertaining to the movement of troops or our fortifications the approval of the President must first be had. I assume that this is a provision which no man would want, and I am sure the present Chief Executive of the United States would not desire to be burdened with this idea of being compelled every time a publication is to be made, concerning the movement of troops, to issue a proclamation saying whether or not in his opinion it is of such a character as is not useful to the enemy. And that thereupon the newspapers may publish it.

Trusts the Newspapers.

"Then, standing to the full for the freedom of speech and the freedom of the press, I yet realize that there may be newspapers—fortunately very few in number I believe they are—that might seek to transgress rules of the Government for our national welfare, and in that light such regulations restricting them or prohibiting them in a sense should be agreed to and should be in the law. But certainly the time is not here, and I trust it never will be here, when it is necessary to see the President of the United States before a newspaper can print anything at all."

Representative McCormick of Illinois said the Administration through Representative Webb had asked Mr. Graham and him to suggest a compromise on the censorship, but after thinking it over they decided they could not support any amendment.

"The difficulty with which we are to deal," said Mr. McCormick, "is that of drawing a censorship section which will meet the exigency in the case, to find language that will protect, without endangering the men enlisted in the army and navy of the United States; because censorship, gentlemen, not merely prohibits publication, but it prohibits misrepresentation, conscious or unconscious."

Mr. McCormick referred to newspaper articles appearing earlier in the week to the effect that the American fleet was in splendid fighting trim.

"Now, I think I am not transgressing the bounds of discretion," he said, "when I say that the fleet is far less ready for action today than when it came from Guantanamo."

Representative Butler of Pennsylvania asked him to give his reasons, but he declined to go into details. However, he said:

"The sick bays are overflowing, the hospitals are crowded, making it necessary to bring men here. I am informed at one point men were herded in sheds. At another point they have no bedding except such as was supplied by private charity."

The Democrats voting to recommit were:

Ashbrooks, Ohio; Bell, Georgia; Borland, Missouri; Brand, Georgia; Brodbeck, Pennsylvania; Burnett, Alabama; Church, California; Claypool, Ohio; Connelly, Kansas; Crosser, Ohio; Dill, Washington; Dominick, South Carolina; Evans, Montana; Gallagher, Illinois; Gard, Ohio; Gordon, Ohio; Hamill, New Jersey; Hilliard, Colorado; Huddleston, Alabama; Humphreys, Mississippi; Keating, Colorado; Kelly, Pennsylvania; Larsen, Georgia; Maher, New York; Olney, Massachusetts; Overmyer, Iowa; Overstreet, Georgia; Rouse, Kentucky; Scully, New Jersey; Sherwood, Ohio; Sisson, Mississippi; Slayden, Texas; Charles B. and have your registration card filled out and certified. Then put the card, together with a self-addressed stamped envelope, (for your registration certificate,) in an envelope addressed to: The Registrar, —— Precinct, care of Sheriff, —— County, —— State.

If your permanent home is in a city of 30,000 population or over, send the card in care of the Mayor. If you do not know the number or name of your home precinct, address the card as above and write also on the envelope which you have so addressed: "Registration card of ——; street and number, —; Post Office or R. F. D., —."

Then leave the card to be mailed by the official who certified to your card or mail it in his presence. Procure from him a signed statement to the effect that he has personally witnessed the proper filling, authentication, and mailing of your card. Mail this statement to the Provost Marshal General, Washington, D. C.

(b) After registration, June 5, 1917, mail your registration certificate to the Provost Marshal General, Washington, D. C. This will be returned to you.

In either case inclose a short statement to the effect that you desire to leave the United States, and that you fully understand and accept the conditions stated in Paragraph 2 of this bulletin. In addition give your Post Office address as it will be after your departure from the United States. Write clearly your name and address to which you desire to have the decision of the War Department sent in your case.

Upon receipt of the papers mentioned in Paragraph 3, the War Department will consider the case and will notify the applicant as to what action has been taken.

Captain Henry L. Watson in the office of Provost Marshal General Crowder is in charge of passport permits.

Seize Shirker at Sea.

LOS ANGELES, May 31.—Frederick W. Fay of San Francisco was taken from the Pacific Mail liner San Juan fifty miles off the California coast today by Federal authorities in connection with the enforcement of the selective draft. United States officials say Fay was on his way to Mexico to avoid army service. Fay was taken aboard a United States coast cutter. He formerly lived in Germany.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., May 31.—Sheriffs along the Florida coast today maintained close watch for shirkers who might attempt to leave the State for foreign shores by launch or steamer to escape registration. Under instructions from Governor Catts, who says he has information that not a few draft subjects have already gone to Cuba, the Sheriffs will from now until next Tuesday detain any person within the age limit who is suspected of trying to escape.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., May 31.—No American citizen of eligible military age will be permitted to leave this country either with or without passports until after the completion of registration June 5. This is the substance of an order received here from Washington late this afternoon and which will go into effect at 12 o'clock tonight. Immigration officers on this side will stop and question each man desiring to cross to Windsor, and if he comes within the requirements of the military act he will be obliged to remain on the Michigan side of the line.

Watch Canada Border.

Special to The New York Times.

ROUSES POINT, N. Y., May 31.—There has been no noticeable exodus of men of military age from the United States into Canada since the passage of the Conscription act, according to immigration officials here. Nevertheless precautions have been taken to prevent any shirkers from seeking refuge in Canada. Canadian and United States Immigration officers have been co-operating for some time. No men of military age are allowed beyond the border without the permission of Immigration Inspectors of both countries.

Usually men must show birth certificates or other identification papers and their reasons for entering the country must be stated.

CANCELS THE QUESTION REGARDING EXEMPTION

Washington Decides That Individuals Need Not Now Make Their Claims.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—Registration officials throughout the country were informed today that answers would not be required on Tuesday next to the question on the registration cards as to whether the individual claims exemption and on what grounds. The War Department has reached the conclusion that no man should be required to claim exemption. There are many who do not care to do so, and under the new ruling none will be required to state his position until he is summoned for actual service and comes up before an exemption board.

HARD GERMAN BLOWS WIN LITTLE GROUND

GUN DUELS ARE FURIOUS

Mines Blow Up French Posts Near Berry-au-Bac—Lull Continues on British Front.

LONDON, May 31.—Severe artillery duels at many points along the Franco-German lines and isolated, but furious, attacks by the Germans upon Pétain's forces were the only features of the day's fighting on the Western front.

With the exception of two fruitless assaults by the Germans northwest of Verdun their efforts were confined to the Aisne and Champagne sectors. During the night, after heavy bombardments in which poison gas shells were used, the Germans in force assailed the French position at the Teton, the Casque and Mont Haut in the Champagne. Northeast of Mont Haut they succeeded in crossing some advanced positions; elsewhere they were driven back, often after bayonet combats.

Today the French counterattacked at Mont Haut and recovered the lost ground.

Near Hill 108, south of Berry-au-Bac, today the Germans blew up some French trench elements and took possession of them.

Fighting on the Anglo-German front today was confined to lively gunfire and raiding.

The day report of the French War Office reads:

> There was pronounced activity by the artillery south of St. Quentin and the Chemin des Dames, north of Jouy, near Cerny, and in the vicinity of Hurtebise, where a number of patrol encounters also occurred.
> In the Champagne the enemy made sharp attacks at several points on our front during the night, following violent bombardment, in which poisonous gas shells and shells from large calibre guns were discharged. Northwest of Auberive and at Mont Blond all the German efforts were checked by our fire. The enemy attacked with particular strength our positions at the Teton, the Casque, and Mount Haut. We repulsed four different attacks after a struggle of extreme severity. The fighting began at about 2 o'clock and was continued until daybreak. Broken up by our fire or repulsed by the bayonet, the attacking troops each time were hurled back in disorder to the trenches whence they came, after having suffered heavy losses. Only at one point on the front attacked, northeast of Mont Haut, did enemy troops gain a footing in some advanced positions. We took a number of prisoners, of whom two are officers.

Counterattack Recovers Ground.

The statement issued by the War Office tonight says:

> Quite spirited artillery actions occurred in the regions of Vauxaillon, Laffaux, and northwest of Rheims.
> In the region of Hill 108, south of Berry-au-Bac, the enemy, after having exploded several mines, occupied some trench elements which had been shattered by explosions.
> In Champagne a vigorous counterattack drove back the enemy from points where he had gained a footing in the previous night northeast of Mont Haut, our line being completely re-established.
> Yesterday five German airplanes were brought down by our pilots. According to late information, other enemy machines previously reported as having been damaged were in reality destroyed.

The day report of the British War Office says:

> A hostile raiding party was driven off early this morning south of Armentières. We secured a few prisoners.

The night report reads:

> Beyond mutual artillery activity at different points along our front, nothing of special interest occurred during the day.
> Two German airplanes were driven down out of control yesterday. One of our machines is missing.

Report the British Repulsed.

BERLIN, May 31, (via London.)—The repulse of several British attacks on the Arras front is reported in today's official announcement, which reads:

> Army Group of Crown Prince Rupprecht—Spirited artillery fighting continues in the Ypres and Wytschaete bends. Directly south of the Scarpe several British companies, which made a surprise advance on our trenches, were repulsed, with heavy loss.
> An increase of fire of short duration was followed by British attacks between Monchy and Guemappe. In a stubborn hand-to-hand struggle West Prussian regiments drove back the enemy, who advanced to the attack several times.
> Army Group of the German Crown Prince.—On the Chemin des Dames Ridge and in the Western Champagne the artillery duel again developed great intensity.
> On the southern bank of the Aisne, after extensive mining operations, West Rhennish troops stormed several French trenches and brought back forty prisoners and some machine guns. Detachments of Upper Rhenish regiments conducted a reconnoitring enterprise east of Auberive, as a result of which fifty prisoners fell into our hands. During the night lively artillery engagements developed on the west band of the Meuse.

BRITISH LOSSES IN MAY TOTAL 112,233 MEN

Second Month of Arras Battle Shows Casualties Nearly Equal to Those of Second Somme Month.

LONDON, May 31.—British casualties as published in May show a total of 5,902 officers and 106,331 men.

The British offensive on the Arras front, involving some of the severest fighting of the war, has naturally resulted in a large increase in casualties as compared with the inactive Winter season. Casualties for the last few months have not been received, but in February the total reported was only 1,243 officers and 17,185 men.

The assertion of the British that their losses were 50 per cent. smaller than in the battle of the Somme, notwithstanding the fact that larger forces were engaged, is not borne out by the May figures, but in the absence of a casualties report for April, in which month the offensive was begun, the showing is not conclusive.

The casualties recorded in the first three months of the Somme drive were 307,169 officers and men. In August, 1916, the second month of the Somme battle, the casualties were 127,945, as compared with 112,233 for May, the second month of the Arras battle.

JAILED FOR PACIFIST SONG.

Austrian Imprisoned for Reprinting Our "I Didn't Raise My Boy."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, May 31.—The Vienna Arbeiter Zeitung comments on the fact that the well-known song of American mothers against war, which it styles "I have not brought up my son to be a soldier," was published in several Austrian papers with a translation, and no objection was made.

A petty official, however, had a few copies made and distributed among his women friends, and when the authorities learned this the official was condemned to five years of hard labor.

The case has been the subject of much discussion, and the Socialists brought it to the attention of the Minister of Justice and the War Minister, but without result. Meanwhile the official is in prison, although no objections were made when the Neue Freie Presse published the poem.

GERMANY CELEBRATES SKAGERRAK 'VICTORY'

Cities Hold Festivals — Admiral Kalau vom Hofe Tells Anew the Story of Sea Fight.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, May 31, (via London.)—Germany is celebrating today the anniversary of the battle of Skaggerak as the "first great naval victory" over the British fleet. Many large cities and towns are holding concerts, picnics, &c. The University of Marburg conferred on Admiral Scheer the degree of Ph. D.

All newspapers devote columns to recapitulations of the events on the coast of Jutland May 31 and June 1, 1916, when the British fleets faced the German Navy.

Admiral Kalau vom Hofe states in the Vossische Zeitung that up to the battle of Skagerrak the German fleet had tried its best to lure the British fleet out, and if it did not succeed it had at least the satisfaction of having compelled the British to abandon all plans of attack and landing on the German coast, and prevented the British Government from forcing Holland and the Scandinavian countries into an alliance with the Entente against Germany. In his article he says in part:

"The battle came about by mere chance and was not planned beforehand. Without having any certain knowledge of the presence of the German high sea fleet the British fleet cruised far north between Scotland and Norway. The German Navy got wind of this fact and its reconnoitring cruisers rushed northward until they sighted the foe off the south coast of Norway. Vice Admiral Hipper immediately engaged the enemy, who were far superior in number. Admiral Scheer hurried with all possible speed to the scene, determined to make the most of this chance meeting.

"The fog bank that shrouded the entrance to Skagerrak was to play an important rôle. Hidden by this fog, the English main fleet reached the scene, and at 7:30 P. M. was east of the German fleet and unobserved by the fighting German cruisers. Despite this advantageous position, Admiral Jellicoe was unable to judge from the gunfire of the German ships their formation and number, so lost valuable time instead of at once attacking the German fleet, unconscious of danger. Not until 8:20 did his battleships succeed in opening fire on the German high sea fleet.

"When the line of British battleships became dimly visible on the horizon at some 10,000 meters' (seven and one-half miles) distance, the German Admiral at once realized the seriousness of the situation. With indomitable courage the German torpedo fleets threw themselves upon the English giants, who received them with a deadly fire of all calibres. It was almost impossible to make out the waterlines of the British ships, which had slipped back into the fog bank, and the gunners had only the flashes of the British guns as guides.

"The battle between the two main fleets lasted over and hour and the careful drill of German gunners was rewarded splendidly. The German ships obeyed in this hell of fire like a parade in the streets of Potsdam.

"The British ships could not keep in contact under the repeated German onslaughts and were compelled to cease fire. Even before nightfall they had disappeared in the fog bank. During the night the German fleet proceeded at moderate speed toward Horns Riff. In the dark the long line of German ships was repeatedly attacked by the British cruisers and destroyers, but at sunrise not a single British ship was visible."

The Admiral concludes his account by saying that Scheer had expected the British fleet to renew the battle next day in the clear weather. He winds up:

"Conscious of his victory, Admiral Scheer conducted his fleet quickly to Heligoland. By his energetic onslaught he had saved the German fleet from the deadly embrace of a superior foe and had punished the latter so severely that he had lost all desire to continue the fighting."

RUSSIA REPRESSES VODKA OUTBREAKS

Severe Punishment Provided for All Persons Found Intoxicated in Public.

PETROGRAD, May 31.—The Provisional Government, on the proposal of the Finnish Senate, has proclaimed the complete or partial remission of sentences pronounced on all Finnish citizens for crimes or offenses committed prior to March 20, 1917.

The Government has also decreed repressive measures against the abuse of alcohol. Persons getting drunk or drinking to excess in public places are liable to eighteen months' imprisonment. Persons while drunk committing robberies, acts of violence or other offenses will be liable to penal servitude for six or eight years.

The Government today approved unanimously the proposal of temporary Finance Minister Teretschenko to raise 2,000,000,000 rubles and take steps for securing for the Treasury "the supply of paper money which already has become indispensable," the officials news agency announces.

ACCUSES EX-WAR MINISTER.

Soukhomlinoff and Wife Charged with Treason to Russia.

PETROGRAD, Friday, June 1, (via London.)—Minister of Justice Pereveizeff has presented the Provisional Government with a report on the charges against General Soukhomlinoff, former Minister of War.

These accuse General Soukhomlinoff of neglecting while War Minister to stimulate the production of ammunition, with the result that the army was short of it. It is also charged that he communicated military information to German and Austrian spies in the years 1911 and 1912 and similar information to two civilians.

The indictment alleges that General Soukhomlinoff's wife aided and abetted him.

PEOPLE DEMAND PLEKHANOFF.

Cabling yesterday from Petrograd, the correspondent there of the Jewish Daily Forward said:

"Big mass meetings at Pskov and Oraninbaum demand that the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates put Plekhanoff on the Executive Committee of the council. As is already known, Plekhanoff was rejected as a member of the committee by a close vote for his pro-war and pro-Ally attitude, and was compelled to limit his activities to the editorship of the newspaper of the Socialist minority, the Unity.

FOOD PRICES CAUSE UNREST IN ENGLAND

Failure of the Control Machinery Largely Responsible for Growing Labor Troubles.

PLAIN TALK TO THE KING

William Thorne, Labor Member of Parliament, Tells Monarch Facts About Food Situation.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 31.—William Thorne, the Labor member of Parliament, who had an interview with King George the other day, told the monarch what Thorne himself described as "some solid, homely truths." Thorne intimated that the King liked his plain speaking and showed familiarity with the questions they discussed—labor unrest and high food prices.

Censorship regulations, which have since been roundly denounced in the press of all shades of opinion, prevented free discussion of the causes of the recent engineering strike, and thereby, in the general view, helped to create a much more serious situation than would have been caused had the strikers' grievances been publicly ventilated. Although the engineering strike was settled by eleventh-hour intervention on the part of Lloyd George, labor unrest still continues, and is closely connected with the continuously increasing prices of food and notorious profiteering, which no adequate steps have yet been taken to check.

When Lord Devonport accepted the Food Controllership he did so with reluctance, after others, including Lord Milner, had refused the post, which was wittily described as "a hanging job" for the holder. Ill-health increased Lord Devonport's difficulties, and sympathy has been expressed for him over the attacks to which he has been subjected, one critic, for instance, asking what but failure could be expected from a "sublimated grocer." The hard fact, however, remains that the British food problems have been complicated, if anything, by the methods by which they have been tackled. The fault is not laid altogether with the Controllership Department. The public's view of the situation was obscured by an injudicious campaign for the immediate introduction of a system of compulsory rationing, which relegated the official appeals for voluntary restrictions to the background.

Must Cut Profits.

Three aspects of the problem which are now receiving chief attention here, and which American reports of Mr. Hoover's plans seem to indicate he has well in view, are a better system of distribution and less profiteering, with a consequent reduction in prices, and due enforcement of the Controller's edicts. At present the last are scarcely enforced at all, and breaches of the law are widespread and habitual. Sales at prices above the legal maximum are almost iniquitous, and some people have made fortunes out of them. Profiteering in various forms flourishes. There is no adequate means of detection and little or no check on hoarding. Oats, for instance, of the harvest of 1915 are still being hoarded in certain parts of the country. The numerous department Controllers and committees which have to do with food are insufficiently coordinated. Thoughtless things have been done for their picturesque effect, such as plowing up the poor soil in Richmond Park. There is plenty of better soil in the country waiting to be cultivated. The producing problem is one not of land but of labor. Recently it was announced that the Government had taken over control of the flour mills. This control remains merely theoretical—the mills are neither inspected nor rationed, nor is the percentage of mixtures enforced. The Food Controller's effective intervention is still limited to fixing the price of imported wheat. When Mr. Hoover fed the Belgians he went much further—the millers, bakers, every intermediary, worked for him for a commission and no more, and he provided a cheaper loaf than is obtainable in England, although his wheat was bought in the same markets.

Easy to Control Mills.

The number of mills which grind for bread in this country is only about 750, and there are no serious obstacles to controlling the millers and wholesalers. They ought to have their profits fixed just as the importers have, and then the baker's price to the public could be fixed. Also, at present the retail baker gets very little profit, and the Government itself is about one penny out of pocket on every two-pound loaf by what is virtually a subsidy on freight and other charges. Yet the six pence or six and a half pence which the loaf costs permits a very considerable profit, nearly the whole of which is scooped up by the middlemen.

Although there is an abundance of meat in the country prices range about double what they were before the war. In several instances the maximum prices fixed by the Food Controller have been higher than the ruling market prices, with the result that prices have been forced up, and experience shows that maximum prices have a remarkable tendency to become minimum prices.

Tobacco, though outside the food controllership, affords a striking example of how the official regulation of price works to the disadvantage of consumers and the advantage of the profiteerer. The Government fixed the price by the pound. The tobacco trade generally augmented its charge to the consumer out of all proportion to the official increase.

The new Food Controller has a gigantic task before him. Public discontent is reaching a high level. The co-operative congress at Swansea yesterday passed a resolution condemning as unsatisfactory the method of food control, which has resulted in high prices and consequent profiteering, and several speakers charged that the poor were suffering while the rich were untouched.

Discontent is not only running high, but is widespread, and, as already mentioned, no small part of the labor unrest can be traced to the food questions. One suggestion which is significant is that labor should be represented in the food controllership.

REGULATES MEAT PRICES.

Profits of Retailers Limited Under Order of British Food Director.

LONDON, May 31.—Lord Devonport, the Food Controller, has issued an elaborate order regulating the sale and prices of meat, including live animals. The order prohibits speculative resales, eliminates jobbing transactions, and stipulates what profits shall be permitted to retailers above the cost of the carcasses.

In an address in London today Rowland E. Prothero, President of the Board of Agriculture, said that under a plan devised by the Government, the success of which he believed to be assured, Great Britain would grow sufficient wheat in 1918 for all the needs of the population, with a liberal supply left over for livestock. Mr. Prothero said this depended upon the solution of agricultural problems facing the country, but if these were disposed of, "even if we started with nothing in hand and not a grain of corn brought into this country, we would still be able, at the normal rate, to get the nine million loaves daily which, roughly, are what we require."

The speaker said he did not believe this year's harvest would produce the required quantity, but he felt that if the country economized in the use of breadstuffs Germany could not starve England even if her submarines triumphed over the allied fleets and not a grain of cereals came into the country. The Germans might inflict some measure of discomfort and livestock might have to be put on short rations, but if economy were practiced the new harvest, plus the amount of grain the Government calculated would be on hand in September, would be sufficient.

THORNE FOR FOOD BOARD.

Labor Member May Have a Place—Lee May Be Controller.

LONDON, May 31.—There is much speculation who will be appointed Food Controller in place of Lord Devonport if he retires, as it is generally expected he will do on account of ill health. The latest unofficial slate gives the Controllership to Major Sir Arthur Lee, Director of General Food Production.

Another report is that William Thorne, a labor member of the House of Commons, will be parliamentary secretary for the Food Ministry, replacing Charles Bathurst, who will take the place now held by Sir Arthur Lee. If Mr. Thorne were attached to the Food Ministry it would give the laboring classes representation in this department, which they have been asking for.

WILSON ANSWERS RUSSIA.

Outlines Our War Aims and Deals With "No Annexation" Slogan.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—President Wilson has sent a document to the Russian Government outlining the war aims of the United States and, it is understood, dealing with the position of "no annexations, no indemnities" set out by Russian officials.

It is not to be published until Ambassador Francis in Petrograd has had opportunity to present it to the Russian Government and then it will be given out in Washington. The terms of the communication meanwhile are regarded as highly confidential.

SAYS JAPAN AWAITS EVENTS IN RUSSIA

Nation Will Enter War Fully, Dr. Iyenaga Declares, if Separate Peace Is Made.

TO PROTECT HER INTERESTS

Meanwhile, She Holds Eastern Seas Safe, and Her Troops Are Ready to Support England in India.

Special to The New York Times.

NASSAU HOTEL, LONG BEACH, N. Y., May 31.—More active Japanese participation in the war will depend on the extent to which the war is carried into the East, and particularly on the potentialities of Russian peace, according to a statement made today by Dr. Toyokichi Iyenaga, head of the East and West News Bureau. In a speech last night at the Conference on Foreign Relations of the United States, Dr. Alejandro Alvarez, the Chilean Secretary General of the American Institute of International Law, expressed the opinion that the interests of the States of the three Americas, and not of the United States alone, require that Japan should throw herself into the war with all her forces.

"If the nations of America take part in the great world war," he said, "their safety requires that they shall not exhaust themselves to the point of falling under the menace of an alien domination. With all the belligerents exhausted, the result will be that Japan, using her powerful army, can impose her will in the future or at least impose the conditions of peace."

In conversation with a TIMES reporter later, Dr. Alvarez pointed out that America will be busy for months to come in training and equipping an army of a million men, whereas Japan has a million highly trained and fully equipped soldiers ready. "If men who are enlisting for a war see another man standing aloof," he said, "though the cause affects him as closely as it does them, they have a right to ask him to go in too. Moral pressure from England and the United States would be sufficient to bring Japan into the war with all her forces."

Without going into the question of possible menace to the American republics from a Japan unweakened by the war, Dr. Iyenaga asked how Japan could participate more fully at present than she is doing.

"Japan is keeping safe the channel of communication from Aden to Shanghai," he said, "and her troops are kept ready in case of need for sustaining the status quo in India, a thing that causes much dissatisfaction among Hindu nationalists, who protest against Japan upholding the English rule and who dislike our attitude that they should not seek to throw off British sovereignty, but should endeavor to satisfy their aspirations for more self-government within the British Empire. Heretofore Russia has needed no help in man power; she had all the men she needed. But she did need munitions and supplies, and these Japan furnished in great quantity.

"The Siberian Railroad is now choked with supplies, and it would be impossible to ship an army which would have to be supplied by that line to Europe at present. If the suggestion is made that Japanese troops should be sent to France via the Pacific and across America, where will you get the shipping? A great army must be supplied and fed; England and France need all the ships they have in the Atlantic, and to send such a force across the Pacific would require the commandeering of all available shipping and the disorganization of the remaining commerce of the world. Moreover, the Japanese troops have no minutely detailed maps of France in their own language such as they had in Manchuria, and the language question would prove very difficult.

"Japan, furthermore, would not send her troops as mercenaries. We are, to be sure, all united in a common cause. But I feel confident that even the United States will want a quid pro quo. You see how the question of compensation in the Caribbean has lately been raised. It has been said that through the war Japan has already gained a commanding position in the Orient, but this position has never been recognized. At present we are holding our troops to safeguard allied interests in the East.

"Now the danger that these will be threatened comes from the possibility of a separate peace by Russia. Japan will throw her energies fully into the war if it becomes essential for the success of the allied cause; but if Russia makes a separate peace she will probably have to throw them in anyway to protect her own interests. Germany's chief war aim, in my opinion, has been the Hamburg-Bagdad scheme, and if the formula of 'no annexations' is adopted she will have won that. This means that the Allies will not accept such a formula, and that if Russia makes peace she will be thrown under the guidance and leadership of Germany. This would throw under German control potential resources almost equal to those of the United States, and would create the very great danger of Russo-German aggression in the Far East, which would threaten to recreate the situation of 1904. Japan would again be threatened from Harbin and Vladivostok; and the menace would create a tremendous pressure, not only on Japan, but also on China, so strong that I do not know if we alone could resist it. It is against that eventuality that Japanese resources are being held, and if that should take place Japan will be forced actively into the conflict with all her energies."

favored patrols. North of the Tonale ridge last night the enemy made a surprise attack on two advanced posts on Punta di Albiolos, but was discovered and driven back. The enemy also made two attacks on our lines on the northern side of Monte Pizzul and in the Rocolana Valley, but failed completely.

On the Julian front our artillery replied effectively to the enemy's fire, and assaulting parties hindered the enemy in his efforts to strengthen himself in his new positions. In the Vodice area our artillery dispersed enemy troops which were massing for attack.

The Austrians, says a dispatch from Udine, in attempting to recapture San Giovanni came into a terrible hand-to-hand fight with the Italians. Among the latter was Gabriele d'Annunzio, the poet and playwright, whose word and example animated the soldiers in the heroic struggle which ended in the annihilation of the enemy.

VIENNA, May 31, (via London.)—The Austrian official communication issued today says:

> On the Isonzo front yesterday there was artillery fighting. During the day and night near San Giovanni, southeast of Monfalcone, two Italian thrusts were repulsed.

ITALIAN MOVE IN ALBANIA.

Four Villages Occupied and Held Against Austrian Attacks.

ROME, May 31.—Italian troops in Albania have occupied the villages of Cerevoda, Velisest, Osoja, and Cafa, the War Office announced today in the following bulletin:

> In Albania on Monday night our Albanian troops attacked enemy irregulars on the upper reaches of the Osum River, twenty-five kilometers east of Berat. Heavy fighting continued throughout Monday and the following night. We occupied the villages of Cerevoda, Velisest, Osoja, and Cafa and successfully resisted regular troops sent to dislodge us.

AUSTRIAN RULER TALKS ON PEACE

erations to come be firmly consolidated internally and externally.

"Today, however, I declare I shall always be the just, affectionate and conscientious ruler of my dear peoples in the sense of the constitutional idea which we have taken over as a heritage from our forefathers and in the spirit of that true democracy which, during the storms of a world war, has wonderfully stood the ordeal of fire in the achievements of the entire people at home and at the front.

"We are still in the midst of the mightiest war of all times. Let me, from your midst, with thankful heart offer my imperial greeting to all the heroes who for nearly three years on our far-flung fronts have loyally discharged the heavy duty, and on whose iron resistance between the Alps and the Adriatic the renewed desperate enemy attack even now is breaking to pieces.

"Our group of powers did not seek the sanguinary trial of strength of this world war. Aye, more than that, it has, from the moment when, thanks to the imperishable achievements of the allied armies and fleets, the honor and existence of our States no longer appear seriously threatened, openly and without ambiguity made known its readiness for peace, guided by the firm conviction that the true formula of peace can only be found in the mutual recognition that the positions have been gloriously defended.

"The future life of the peoples should, in our view, remain free from animosity and thirst for revenge, and for generations there should be no need to employ what may be called the last resource of the State. But this high aim of humanity can only be attainable by such a conclusion to the war as will correspond to that peace formula.

Hopes for Peace With Russia.

"The great neighboring people to the east, to whom old friendship united us, is gradually becoming conscious of its true aims and tasks, and it lately appears to approach this point of view and seek from an obscure impulse a direction of policy which will save the treasures of the future before they have been devoured by a senseless war policy. We hope that in the interest of humanity this process of internal reformation will manifest itself externally in a strong development of will, and that such enlightenment of the public mind will also extend to the other enemy countries.

"While our group of powers is fighting with irresistible force for honor and existence, it is and remains toward everyone who honestly abandons the intention to threaten us, readily prepared to cease hostilities, and whoever wishes to reopen better and more human relations will certainly find our side ready in a conciliatory spirit. In the meantime, however, our fighting spirit will not relax; our sword will not become blunt.

"In true co-operation with our old ally, the German Empire, and the allies whom our just cause won during the war, we shall remain ready to force, if necessary by arms, a good end to the war, which we should like to be able to attribute to a victory of reason.

Deplores Increasing Sacrifices.

"I deplore the increasing sacrifices which the long duration of the war imposes on our population. I deplore the blood of my brave soldiers, the privations of brave citizens, and all the distress and hardships which are heroically endured for the sake of the beloved Fatherland. The efforts of my Government, supported by well-trained officials, are incessantly directed toward facilitating the maintenance of the population—whose loyalty to the State and public spirit find my thankful recognition—and toward guaranteeing that the stock of food will be made to go around by suitable organization.

"Just now is the hardest time, before the faithful soil brings us its gifts of the year. My thanks for the industrious labor of those at home, who are not wanting in co-operation, inspired by discretion and experience, in order successfully to overcome the difficulties which until then will confront us. The demand of the present moment is for the full exertion of all the energies in the State. But also we must not neglect to prepare ourselves for the great tasks which the future has in store and to the happy solution of which the further prosperity of the State depends."

The Emperor then recalled the gigantic financial demands of the war, which, he said, the State was able to meet from its own resources. He declared that the success of the sixth war loan was the best proof that the calculation of Austria's enemies, who perhaps thought they could expect a change in the war situation from the decline in the internal resources of the State, was doomed to failure.

The Emperor emphasized the necessity of directing the economic policy into regulated channels, and of creating an adequate State revenue, and then dwelt upon the necessity of restoring the devastated districts and providing for the dependents of fallen soldiers. He recalled the wonderful elasticity shown in home production in war time, and said:

"Based on an economic compromise with Hungary and on the commercial policy of the monarchy systematically developed, all our energies will have to be combined to render production more fruitful and cheaper."

Wants Women's Work Regulated.

The Emperor dwelt on his solicitude for the social welfare of the people, and instanced various social measures, especially the regulation of the work of women and youths. The middle classes, he said, were also hit by the war and needed the zealous solicitude of the State. The population had exceeded the expectations of the State, and should therefore not be disappointed by it. In conclusion he said:

"I know that you will allow nothing but your consciences to influence your mandate, but you will only interpret rightly the voice of your conscience if you direct your eyes constantly on the lasting purposes of the whole community. In the conscientious discharge of duty is to be found the best guarantee of the welfare of the empire, and the surest guarantee of the rights of the peoples. The great time in which we live has created a new sense of responsibility to the State and a new sense of relative values in politics.

"I was a long time at the front and saw at work the heroes who are defending our frontiers. I know the vivifying force of their victorious spirit and do not doubt that the moral rejuvenation which the fatherland has drawn from the world war will penetrate our entire political life and be mirrored in the labors of the popular assemblies.

"Always, remember, however, that the strength of the monarchy is rooted not the least in its historic associations, and that only affectionate regard for it can maintain and develop its living strength. Therefore, I hope you will zealously cultivate a loyal sense of unity with the [illegible] of my Hungarian holy crownland, which has recently proved itself one of the principal supports of the monarchy. I hope you will promote unanimous collaboration among the various races in the State, which all have a share of the glory of this war.

"Honorable gentlemen of both houses, once again accept my cordial greetings. It is a great moment which brings a new ruler for the first time face to face with the representatives. May it be the beginning of a time of flourishing progress, a time of power and prestige for venerable Austria, and of happiness and blessings for my beloved peoples. God grant it!"

Dr. Gross Heads the Lower House.

Dr. Gustav Gross, leader of the German National League, has been elected President of the lower House of the Austrian Parliament, according to a Vienna dispatch. In his opening address Dr. Gross promised freedom of speech and impartiality in debates. He urged the House to see to it that the expectations of Austria's enemies that great dissensions would develop during the session should remain unfulfilled.

"We are one in our unshakable determination," he said, "to continue the fight which was forced on us to the greatly desired honorable peace which will guarantee our safety and independence in the future. At the same time, nothing is further from our thoughts than suppression of other nations."

After the policies of various parties had been stated by their representatives, Premier Count Clam-Martinitz said, the Government would make a declaration in regard to all the questions raised in one of the first sittings after the speech from the throne. The next sitting was fixed for June 5.

Commenting on the meeting of the Austrian Parliament, the Tageblatt of Berlin says divergencies of opinion were marked, especially between the Germans and the Czechs, and that the Austrian Government has done nothing to improve this situation. It continues:

"The fact is that the Government appears before the House without a majority behind it, and it may easily happen that the Government will find itself in the minority."

Various possible successors to Count Clam-Martinitz are already mentioned.

GERMAN SOCIALISTS WOULD KEEP ALSACE

NOT INDORSED BY BERLIN

Dr. David Admits That He and His Colleagues Can Discuss Peace Only as Socialists.

COPENHAGEN, May 31, (Via London.)—The lavish promises of some of the intermediaries in the peace movement, to the effect that the German Socialists and the German Government, in order to arrange peace, would be ready to negotiate a settlement of the Alsace-Lorraine question under the guise of "frontier regulation," have no basis in fact, according to a statement made to The Associated Press by Dr. Eduard David, one of the most prominent of the German Socialist delegates to the Stockholm conference. Dr. David was emphatic in declaring that no German party and no German Government could or would be found which would consent to the alienation of territory which was regarded as a fixed part of the German Empire.

According to the Socialist leader, the only alterations of frontier which could be contemplated by the German Socialist party were such minor ones as were based on local conditions and considerations. Among the phrases he used were: "The question of Alsace-Lorraine is purely a German internal one," "Alsace-Lorraine is German land," "the formula of peace without annexations does not apply to Alsace-Lorraine, because there has been no change in possession during the war;" "neither the German Government nor the German Socialists are willing to surrender Alsace-Lorraine."

In further explanation of the program with which the German majority Socialists are going to Stockholm, Dr. David said that it included the "restoration" of Belgium, but his language left it uncertain whether he meant financial aid toward restoring the desolated country to its pre-war condition. As far as Russian Poland is concerned, the majority Socialists advocate a plebiscite to determine whether the population wishes the establishment of a kingdom under Austro-German auspices or alignment with Russia, either as part of that country or as a Polish State with close relations to its great Eastern neighbor.

From the statements of Dr. David it is evident that the program of the Socialist delegates carries no indorsement by the German Government. He clearly intimated that the action of the delegation was binding only upon its party, and that the envoys had no definite pledges or authorization from the Administration at Berlin.

The hopes of the delegates that the German Government ultimately will be found amenable to their program of peace without annexations or indemnities are based partly upon the party's strength and influence in Germany and partly upon the indefinite statements of that master phrase-maker, Chancellor von Bethmann Hollweg, like his declaration that the Government was ready to conclude a peace "which will leave no thorns to rankle." Dr. David does not hope that peace will result directly from the Stockholm movement. The utmost he expects is that the conference will lay a basis for a peace movement in which peace advocates in all countries can unite.

In answer to a question regarding the present German attitude toward America, the Socialist leader said that there was no one in Germany who did not regret the break with the United States, and that it was the general hope that the war would be concluded before America's participation in the conflict could become actual.

Questioned as to the fate of the reform movement, Dr. David asserted that reform was sure to come, but did not specify whether the change would be effected during or after the war. "We are in some respects ahead of America," he said, "in that we have a more democratic central Parliament. We are also ahead of England in this respect. We need a more democratic franchise for Prussia, and we are going to obtain it."

The German Socialists apparently intend to remain in Copenhagen for some days before proceding to Stockholm. Their stay there will be limited by the prospect of results and the reassembling of the German Reichstag in July.

Dr. David's statement regarding Alsace-Lorraine is illuminated by an article in the Socialist organ of Mülhausen, Alsace, edited by the Socialist Reichstag Deputy, Joseph L. Emmel.

As quoted by the Berlin Tageblatt, the Socialist organ argues against any cession on the ground that in a centralized State like France there is no place for racial particularism or for a population like the Alsatians, marked out by names and dialect from the great body of the French nation. The paper argues that a federated structure like Germany just meets, on the other hand, the need for a State form in which Alsace-Lorraine can fit as an independent portion of the Empire.

ATTACKS FRENCH SOCIALISTS.

Temps Says They Are Inviting "a Diplomatic Sedan" at Stockholm.

PARIS, May 31.—The decision of the National Council of the French Socialist Party to send delegates to the coming Socialist conference at Stockholm is strongly condemned by the Temps, which says in an article today:

"The route to Stockholm is the route to a diplomatic Sedan. France cannot permit the delegates to risk, in this adventure, its prestige and morale. It owes it to itself to disavow them. It is not because the Stockholm procedure is irregular or is called revolutionary that we reject it. In time of war, when it is a question of saving French lives and liberating French territory, peoples should not be too tolerant.

"In the garb of new words, we recognize in this move an old and dangerous terror. The Stockholm delegates have not yet comprehended that the German Social Democracy is incapable of giving the slightest guarantee of peace so long as the army of William II. is not conscious of having been vanquished. They will be subjected at every step to brutal rebuffs like that which the Social Democrat, Molkenbuhr, has just inflicted in declaring that Alsace and Lorraine should remain German.

"Hypnotized by a mirage of the past and turning back from the veritable way of emancipation, they embarked on this sinister undertaking. France cannot permit and should disavow it."

LABOR MISSION TO RUSSIA.

British Government Sanctions the Sending of Three M. P.'s.

LONDON, May 31.—In connection with the approaching visit of George H. Roberts, Parliamentary Secretary to the Board of Trade; James Ramsay MacDonald, Chairman of the Labor Party, and Frederick W. Jowett, President of the Independent Labor Party, to Russia, the following authorized statement has been issued:

"Sincerely desirous of meeting the views of the Russian Government that they should be enabled to learn at first hand the opinions of all sections of British thought, the Government is facilitating the journey to Russia of the representatives of different political opinion. Among these are factions with a very small following, who latterly have not been overenthusiastic in the vigorous prosecution of the war.

"The British Government has nothing to hide. It entered the war in defense of the rights of small nations and democracies, freedom, and justice. A brutal war was forced upon the Allies, who were in a state of total unpreparedness, and now they are in a very different position. They cannot allow Germany to profit by the gains wrested from them unscrupulously and in defiance of all right.

"Desiring, therefore, the fullest investigation and having nothing to conceal, the Government gladly will allow all sections of the public to advance their views. These delegates, including Messrs. Roberts, MacDonald, and Jowett, will only further inform the Russian people how we were driven into the devastating war and will throw additional light on Germany's manoeuvres at this juncture to distort the predatory objects she had in forcing war on peaceful neighbors."

STOCKHOLM, May 31, (via London.)—The Dutch and Scandinavian Socialist committee has been informed that the British Labor Socialist organization will send representatives to the Stockholm conference. G. H. Roberts and Ramsay MacDonald, Labor members of Parliament, are expected.

RENOUNCES ANNEXATION.

Bethmann Hollweg's Organ Says Germany Wants No More Territory.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, May 31, (Dispatch to The London Daily Express.)—"Germany wishes no increase of territory nor any political or economical increase of power. Germany merely wants to defend its own national territory against foreign plans of conquest, and also wants the guarantees necessary for future defense and self-protection."

Such is the Chancellor's latest statement on the German Government's peace aims, published on Bethmann Hollweg's authority in today's Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung.

The publication is the direct outcome of the failure of Bethmann Hollweg's attempts at bribing Russia into a separate peace, while it is also calculated to impress the Socialist delegates on their way to the Stockholm conference.

It is the first time, however, that the German Government has admitted officially that it does not wish "territorial aggrandizement." The Chancellor's present declaration still lacks clearness and frankness, but Liberal and Socialist circles in Germany consider that it must pledge the Chancellor, and behind him the Kaiser and Hindenburg, to peace without annexation.

The Chancellor's restrictions about "guarantees" evidently concerns Belgium, where Germany still hopes to retain some sort of military control.

Saks Suits for Men at $20

Are the safest clothes investment in New York

YOU cannot get more style nor better tailoring for your money than in Saks' suits for men at $20. We know how they are tailored and of what they are made—we make them ourselves. The majority of suits sold in New York are aliens. They are the product of an unknown, sold by middlemen, who subsist on second profits.

¶ Saks suits at $20 are in a class by themselves. They are ready-for-service suits with all the original touches of made-to-order garments. They yield more value to the square inch than any other $20 clothes. And they are shown to-day in a variety of woolens so varied and beautiful as to defy detailed description.

JEWISH REFUGEES HERE FROM POLAND

Traveled Through Germany Shut in Cars Labeled "Russian Wanderers."

There arrived at the headquarters of the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society, 229 East Broadway, yesterday 500 Jews, mostly women and children, from German Poland. So many came to meet them or to inquire about relatives in the war zone that the reserves of the Madison Street Station had to keep the street open for a time, and later, when the crowds thinned out, two policemen had almost to fight off the crowd at the foot of the stone stairs of the building. Inside in the large waiting room the immigrants met their relatives. Most of the men were far above military age, and the boys too small for military service. Scores wept for joy over their arrival in a country safe from the war horrors all had recently experienced.

The story of those who got here seemed to justify the inscription placed on the train in which the travelers journeyed through Germany. "Russian Wanderers" was the sign on the cars, box cars some described them, in which the men, women, and children were shut up with little to eat and drink. A majority of the arrivals came from Wilna, but there were others who came from Bialostoyck, Lunza, and even Warsaw.

Their travels began early in January, when the German Government finally consented that those who desired, and whose presence was not needed for military reasons, could leave the country. There were many obstacles placed in the way of obtaining passports by the military authorities, and there was delay before the officials were satisfied and the coveted permission given. A majority of the arrivals reached Rotterdam late in January, and sailed from that port two weeks ago.

Their voyage was interrupted when they were about two days out, and because of submarine activity the vessel was ordered back to her home port. It was upon their return that a school was organized under the patronage of the Russian and British Consuls in Rotterdam. The older children and some of the elders entered the English class, and these were vastly proud of their ability to speak a few sentences in English. There were some who were still skeptical when they landed that the Czar had been dethroned and a republic set up in Russia.

"We heard the news in Rotterdam, and though the people talked about it, we could not believe it to be true," said one aged man. "If you know anything of the old Russia you would know just how hard it is to credit such a report. It is like the impossible made possible."

From the waiting room there came to the office the sounds of a woman screaming, the sounds of loud crying, and a jumble of loud conversation. An attendant said the mother of seven small children had just met her brother, from whom she had been separated for several years, and from whom no word had come since early in the war.

Mrs. Esther Wologniski came from Wilna with her seven children. She and her husband kept a butcher shop.

"When the Germans came," she said, "it was not so bad at the first. They did not interfere with business. Indeed some of them bought in our shop and paid the prices asked. Germany had occupied the town about ten days when, acting under a military order the authorities seized the shops, the manufactories, and the other places of business. We wanted to know why our things were taken, but we had to be content with the reply that everything was done under orders. Two of our sons were seized by the soldiers. They were released on the payment of $1,000."

The refugees had to pass a literacy test and as a result some 400 are still on Ellis Island awaiting for a Board of Special Inquiry to pass on their cases. Of those detained fifty arrived in the cabin of the steamship. It was required that they read at least fifty words and in passing the test the lessons learned in the school in Rotterdam stood them well.

While some of the arrivals have only slender purses and others have no relatives here the Aid Society has guaranteed that none will become public charges.

GERMAN MEASLES INVADES NAVY YARD

Twenty Bluejackets Moved to City Hospitals in the Last Three Days.

U. S. HOSPITAL CROWDED

Health Commissioner Says Outbreak Is a Natural Result of Gathering Recruits.

United States bluejackets at the Brooklyn Navy Yard have had their first taste of Teutonic frightfulness in the form of German measles. It was learned last night that there are in the Kingston Avenue Hospital for Contagious Diseases in Brooklyn twenty cases, taken there from the navy yard in the past three days. They were moved to the city hospital, it is understood, because the navy yard hospital was crowded. It has accommodations for fifty cases of contagious diseases. One case of ordinary measles has been taken from the navy yard to the Willard Parker Hospital in Manhattan.

Officers at the navy yard refused information last night as to how many cases of German measles there were on the Government reservation.

Immediately after the declaration of war by Congress, the City of New York offered to the Government the services of its Health Department. Last Sunday afternoon Health Commissioner Emerson got a telegram from the Navy Department telling him to prepare to care for a number of cases of contagious disease from the Brooklyn Navy Yard. The first cases of German measles were taken to the Kingston Avenue institution on Tuesday, others were taken Wednesday and still more yesterday.

Although an anomaly, it is true, the Health Commissioner said, that German measles is not half so serious as the ordinary kind. He said he hoped it would not be supposed that there was an epidemic of German measles at the Navy Yard, and that it was no cause for alarm that a number of young men coming from many parts of the country should bring some contagious diseases. He said it was always so.

"In the first place," said Dr. Emerson last night, "German measles is an unimportant affliction. The men will soon be well.

"There have been cases of German measles in many parts of the United States in the last year, and it was brought to the Navy Yard by some recruit from an affected district."

Dr. Emerson said he had no information as to the number of cases of measles or any other disease in the Brooklyn Navy Yard. He said he considered it likely that the Navy Yard had called on the Health Department because the contagion ward of its hospital was crowded.

"The whole thing is a detail," he said, "and nothing to make a fuss about."

MOTOR CARS KILL MORE.

32 Deaths Last Month Compared with 23 in May, 1916.

The police record of deaths by vehicle traffic in New York for May is 52—10 more than in the corresponding month of 1916. Auto trucks killed 17 last month, as compared with 11 in May, 1916, and passenger automobiles killed 15, as compared with 12 in May, 1916.

Four died as the result of being run down by street cars, compared with 3 in May of last year. Horse-drawn trucks and delivery wagons killed 4 this year and 10 last year.

YANKEES CELEBRATE RETURN TO POLO GROUNDS BY SUCCUMBING TO TIGERS

YANKS FEEL BRUSH APPLIED BY TIGERS

Score of Thirteenth Game at Home This Season Is 2 to 0 Against Donovan's Men.

CALDWELL HAS BAD DAY

Ray's Pitching and Fielding Are Wabbly, While Mitchell Holds Mild Bill's Clan Safe All the Way.

The Yanks came back to the Polo Grounds yesterday, after more or less distressing visit among their Western baseball brethren, and suffered a more or less distressing homecoming in the form of a 2 to 0 trimming from the Detroit Tigers without as much as a whisper of protest. It was the thirteenth home game the Yankees have played, and the kind of game they put up had all the earmarks of the jinx connected witht that mystic number.

The game was also the occasion of the first visit of Ty Cobb since he pummeled Charley Herzog, Captain of the Giants, during the Spring training trip. A full-throated chorus of hoots and hisses greeted Cobb when he first stepped to the plate. Cobb is popular enough as a ball player here, but he excites no admiration for his pugilistic propensities. If he feels that he must trim somebody at fisticuffs, New Yorkers would be just as well satisfied if he picked out somebody besides a resident of this town. Cobb once beat up a butcher and didn't hurt anything except his thumb, but when he beat up Herzog he dislocated his local reputation.

Ty is getting heavy, but it doesn't seem to slow up his gait in approaching first base. In the third inning yesterday the Georgia Gem spilled a wee bit of a tap to the infield, and before Al Walters could field it Cobb was on first in about three jumps. That was the only thing that Cobb did during the afternoon to attract any attention.

The game was a quiet affair, mainly because of the silence of Hughey Jennings. It was such an easy effort for the Tigers to claw up the Yanks yesterday that Hughey didn't feel that it was necessary to get out on the coaching line and encourage his players with his inexhaustible chatter. Jimmy Burke and old Sam Crawford acted as the strategy twins in the coaching business, and seemed to serve the purpose.

Caldwell Lacks Control.

Detroit isn't setting the league on fire this season, and it was something of a shock when the Yanks tolerated anything as depressing as a whitewash. Manager Mild Bill Donovan elected Ray Caldwell to show up the Tigers in the opening game, but the lanky telegraph-key puncher got all mixed up in the meshes of the hoodoo thirteenth game. Caldwell didn't have very good control, and scattered a few passes just about the time the Tigers were making hits. Besides that, the Panama tourist was very shaky in fielding his position. On one occasion he failed to cover first and on another, with two men aboard the cushions, he leisurely made a play at first when he could easily have made a forceout at second.

Caldwell wasn't the only one of Donovan's crew who didn't have much speed under his cap yesterday. Taking the afternoon's diversion as a whole, it can easily be recalled that the Yankees have played far better ball.

Willie Mitchell southpawed the Yanks into defeat. Left-handers have been no pie for the Yanks at any time this season, and Mitchell exercised his left-handed spell over them with good effect. He was effective in the pinches and twirled his best the few times that the New Yorkers had a chance to score. He struck out Yankees on more than one occasion just when the sad operation did them the most harm.

Frank Baker and Hughey High, two of the Yankees regulars, were out of the game. The unfortunate home-run third baseman is carrying around a life-sized black eye he received in Philadelphia. No, he didn't get into any argument with an umpire. He was hit by a bounding ball, but will be back in the game in a short while. Angel Aragon is subbing for Baker, and Miller is in the sun field for High.

Spencer Brings Runs In.

Tub Spencer, who is constructed architecturally along the graceful lines of a rain barrel, did the catching for the Tigers yesterday, and drove in both of their runs. Spencer casts a shadow like a full-grown oak tree. From a point directly behind him in the grand stand only about half of the playing field is visible to the naked eye. Tubby has all the appearance of a man who doesn't eat a mouthful over five meals a day.

Caldwell walked Bob Veach in the second inning, and Heilman tapped a single to left. Burns's sacrifice sent the lads along a station, and Oscar Vitt was patient and got a pass, loading the corners. Spencer then rolled a grounder to Peckinpaugh, who played the ball as if he had the impression that a double play was just a matter of course. He soaked the ball to second, retiring Vitt on a forceout, while Veach chased in with a run. Mitchell did nothing for the cause, being tossed out at first by Caldwell.

The best chance the Yanks had to score was in the fourth. Miller singled to centre and Maisel pushed him along with a nifty sacrifice. Pipp got a general invitation from every one of the 5,000 folks present to hit the ball as hard and as far as he liked. He fanned. Aragon, the Cuban stogie, smote a hit to right, and Miller came dusting home as fast as his young feet would carry him. Heilman, from right field, made a dead straight heave to Tub Spencer, who tagged Miller as he was about to cash in at the plate.

The other Tiger tally was realized in the sixth. Veach spanked a single to left and Heilman got a pass. Miller made a mad gallop and captured Burns's foul fly to left, and Vitt's rocket was gathered by Hendryx. The large crowd now gathered around the plate was none other than Tubby Spencer. My, but that man has an abundance of health. He pickled a hit to right centre, and Veach romped home. The Yanks got two on in the ninth when Maisel walked and Pipp's single sent him to third. Aragon fanned and Hendryx skied to Veach. Nothing to that.

MAMAUX WINS FIRST GAME.

Pittsburgh Springs Surprise and Beats Phillies, 3 to 2.

PITTSBURGH, May 31. — Pittsburgh defeated Philadelphia in the opening game of the western series here today, 3 to 2, thereby giving Mamaux, the Pittsburgh pitcher, his first victory of the year. Mamaux was wild, however, at times, and in the eighth inning, with two men on bases and one out, he was relieved by Jacobs. A double play stopped the threatened rally of the visitors.

Errors by Bancroft, Cooper, and Stock and hits by Hinchman, Brief, and Ward, gave Pittsburgh two runs in the second inning. The third run was scored in the third inning on Hinchman's pass, Brief hit by a pitched ball, and McCarthy's single.

Philadelphia scored a run in the fourth on a pass to Luderus and singles by Niehoff and Killifer. Another run resulted in the fifth inning on Whitted's single and a triple by Luderus.

Steele's Passes Help Cincinnati Beat St. Louis by 4 to 2.

CINCINNATI, May 31.—Cincinnati took the third game of the series from St. Louis, 4 to 2, here today. Steel was responsible for St. Louis's defeat, passing the first man up in three innings, and in each case the runner was worked around.

MISS VANDERHOEF WINS HARD MATCH

Beats Miss Browning in Spirited Sets to Reach Tennis Semi-Finals at Ardsley.

Play in the women's invitation tennis tournament at the Ardsley Club yesterday advanced to the semi-final round, four of the most prominent player in the metropolitan section making their way through the third round of the singles event. The four contestants remaining in the tournament are in the upper half of the draw, Miss Marie Wagner and Miss Helene Pollak and in the lower half, Miss Marion Vanderhoef and Miss Molla Bjurstedt. In the matches of both Miss Bjurstedt and Miss Wagner, little difficulty was experienced in vanquishing the third round rivals. The former triumphed over Mrs. David C. Mills at 6—1, 6—3, and Miss Bjurstedt defeated Mrs. Rawson Wood at 6—2, 6—3.

The other two, Miss Pollak and Miss Vanderhoef advanced only after spirited three-set matches. Miss Pollak had to bring all her skill and endurance to bear in beating down the strong opposition which was presented by Mrs. Benjamin F. Briggs, the score being 3—6, 6—4, 7—7 and default in favor of Miss Pollak. This sharp encounter, following a second round match, so fatigued the victor that she was obliged to default in the doubles event. Miss Vanderhoef's path to victory was also strewn with many dangerous places. It was not until the score reached 3—6, 8—6, 7—5 that she disposed of the aspirations of Miss Natalie Browning. It was Miss Vanderhoef's greater steadiness that played a determining part in the match.

A match which promised much, but which failed to live up to expectations, was that between Miss Bjurstedt and Mrs. Wood. The latter, not long ago in the Pelham invitation tournament, played the Norse girl to a close score before she was vanquished. Yesterday, Mrs. Wood was not in such good stroke and there was in Miss Bjurstedt's play a pronounced improvement. The latter was particularly adept on her placing shots, those down the lines seeming to predominate. By their effectiveness, Mrs. Wood was forced away from the barrier to the deep court. This is not to say, however, that there were not some sharp rallies at the net for these were interspersed here and there in the contest. Mrs. Wood's stop volley was one of the prettiest strokes in her kit.

The summaries:

Singles.—Second Round—Miss Helene Pollak defeated Miss Margaret H. Taylor, 6—4, 6—4.

Third Round—Miss Marie Wagner defeated Mrs. David C. Mills, 6—1, 6—3; Miss Helene Pollak defeated Mrs. Benjamin F. Briggs, 3—6, 6—4, 7—7, default; Miss Marion Vanderhoef defeated Miss Natalie Browning, 3—6, 8—6, 7—5; Miss Molla Bjurstedt defeated Mrs. Rawson L. Wood, 6—3, 6—3.

Doubles.—First Round—Mrs. Rawson L. Wood and Miss Molla Bjurstedt defeated Miss Grace Gilleaudeau and Miss Helen Gilleaudeau, 6—0, 11—9.

Second Round—Mrs. Wood and Miss Bjurstedt defeated Mrs. F. K. Van Winkle and Miss Emily Scott, 6—3, 6—2; Miss Marie Wagner and Miss Natalie Browning defeated Miss Margaret Taylor and Miss Barbara Hooker, 6—0, 6—2; Miss Adele Cragin and Mrs. Lorillard Spencer, Jr., won from Miss Helene Pollak and Miss Helen Bernhard by default.

MAYS PUZZLE TO INDIANS.

Red Sox Meet Western Invasion by Repulsing Cleveland.

BOSTON, May 31.—Boston defeated Cleveland 5 to 1 in the first game of the Western invasion today. Mays held the visitors to four hits. The sixth was the world champions' big scoring inning, when, with two out, Lewis doubled, Walker singled, and Gardner made a home run for three tallies. Boehling started his first game of the season for Cleveland, but after six innings was replaced by Coumbe.

REACH FINALS AT YONKERS.

Mrs. Huff and Miss Means Come Through at Amackassin Club.

Most of the playing in the Amackassin Club tennis tournament yesterday was done in the women's singles event, in which Mrs. M. B. Huff and Miss E. Means came through to the final round. The former defeated Mrs. F. Waring with the score 6—3, 6—4, and Miss Means triumphed over Mrs. Ingo Hartman in a three-set match at 5—7, 6—4, 6—3. Mrs. Hartman's play during the day was of superior quality, and she almost wrested victory from Miss Means. Just before this contest Mrs. Hartman had been forced to a three-set match in scoring a victory over Mrs. F. J. Strauss, and this tired her a bit. Her play against Miss Means was therefore robbed of some of its effectiveness.

Only two matches were contested in the men's singles. In the upper half of the draw, Ingo Hartman and Benjamin Letson came through to semi-final-round brackets, the former by reason of a default and the latter by defeating Herbert Taylor at 6—3, 6—4. The men's doubles event also started yesterday.

The summaries:

Men's Singles.—Fourth Round—Ingo Hartman won from Willard Botsford by default; Benjamin Letson defeated H. Taylor, 6—3, 6—4.

Women's Doubles.—First Round—Mrs. F. Waring won from Mrs. G. B. Hirsch by default.

Second Round—Mrs. Ingo Hartman defeated Miss D. Seal, 6—1, 7—5; Mrs. F. J. Strauss defeated Mrs. E. Henderson, 6—4, 6—1; Mrs. Jenkins won from Mrs. H. Blumenthal by default; Miss Mary Lowerre defeated Mrs. F. Damrau, 6—1, 6—1; Mrs. W. H. Pritchard won from Miss T. Blum by default; Mrs. Waring won from Miss Helene Pollak by default.

Third Round—Mrs. Ingo Hartman defeated Mrs. F. J. Strauss, 3—6, 6—4, 7—5; Miss E. Means defeated Mrs. Jenkins, 7—5, 9—7; Miss Mary Lowerre defeated Mrs. W. H. Pritchard, 6—4, 6—3; Mrs. M. B. Huff defeated Mrs. F. Waring, 6—3, 6—4.

Semi-final Round—Miss E. Means defeated Mrs. Ingo Hartman, 5—7, 6—4, 6—3; Mrs. M. B. Huff defeated Miss Mary Lowerre, 6—3, 7—5.

SCARBORO DOUBLES PLAY.

Whitney and Throckmorton Defeat Alexander and Parker.

Frederick B. Alexander and Harry S. Parker made their début into the Sleepy Hollow invitation tournament yesterday, and after winning one match in doubles, this team was forced to acknowledge defeat in a semi-final round encountered against E. H. Whitney and Harold A. Throckmorton, with the score 6-4, 6-2.

The doubles play was the feature of yesterday's competition in the tournament, and it progressed to the final round. Whitney and Throckmorton won a bracket in the lower half of the event. In the upper half, the team to come through is made up of Lyle E. Mahan and A. W. MacPherson.

The summaries:

Doubles.—Second Round—Fred B. Alexander and Harry S. Parker defeated Fred C. Inman and Howard A. Plummer, 6—1, 7—5; E. H. Whitney and Harold Throckmorton defeated Alrick H. Man, Jr., and Robert Le Roy, 6—3, 9—7.

Semi-final Round — Whitney and Throckmorton defeated Alexander and Parker, 6—4, 6—2.

MURRAY LOSES IN DOUBLES.

Karl Behr and Seaton Porter Win Greenwich Tennis Event.

Karl H. Behr and Seaton Porter won the Decoration Day round robin lawn tennis doubles on the clay courts of the Field Club of Greenwich of Greenwich, Conn. In their opening match Behr and Porter outplayed R. Lindley Murray, the great Californian, and Frederick C. Inman after three sets at 6—4, 3—6, 7—5. Murray, rated at No. 4 on the national list, played his usual volleying and smashing game. The match marked his first tournament appearance this season.

Behr and Porter, in their second contest, defeated Cedric A. Major and Charles L. Johnston, Jr., at 4—6, 7—5, 10—8. Major and Johnston were within a stroke of victory in the second set. The latter team won second honors by defeating Murray and Inman in the odd match at 11—9, 6—1.

MILITARY FLAVOR TO MEET.

Special Events for Soldiers at N. Y. A. C. Games Tomorrow.

Everything is in readiness for the New York Athletic Club's ninety-eighth annual Spring games, which will be held tomorrow afternoon at Travers Island. A decided military flavor will attach to this year's competitions, for the officials of the New York A. C., following their policy of continuing athletic competitions through the war so that potential soldiers may have opportunity to get themselves into proper physical condition, have arranged a special series of three events for those enlisted in any branch of the army or navy service.

These events have not only been recognized by the Army Department of the East, but leaves of absence have been granted for those who wish to compete. Company B, Seventy-first Regiment, has arranged to defray the traveling expenses of the competitors from their camp somewhere up-State. The events for the enlisted athletes are a four-fifths of a mile relay race for teams from companies of the National Guard, regular army, marines, Naval Militia, &c.; a one-half-mile walk, and a one-mile run. In the two first-named events the competitors will wear their service uniforms, and in the mile event they will wear athletic costumes.

Red Cross nurses will be on the field selling programs. This privilege has been turned over to the local chapter of the Red Cross, and all the proceeds from the sale will be donated to the society's fund. Another feature of military flavor will be an exhibition drill and review by the members of the New York Athletic Club's Military Training Battalion, which has been organized for the last several weeks.

For the other athletic competitions nearly 500 entries have been received, and among this number the names of many stars are found.

WHITNEY'S REGRET FINISHES IN FRONT

Beats Yankee Witch by Eight Lengths—Al. M. Dick Also Wins at Belmont.

Though the enthusiasm created by a Memorial Day crowd was lacking at Belmont Park yesterday there was no falling off in the interest of the 5,000 spectators that attended the third day of the Westchester Racing Association meeting. Larger fields went to the post and the races were as exciting as on the two previous days.

Harry Payne Whitney's Regret, the queen of the turf as a two- and three-year-old, made her first appearance of the season, and, being suited to the conditions of the third race, galloped home eight lengths in front of the Glen Riddle Farms' Yankee Witch. It was only an exercise canter for the daughter of Broomstick-Jersey Lightning, but the turfmen present were delighted to see that as a matured racer Regret retains the good looks and speed that made her a universal favorite early in her career.

The Hollis Selling Stakes and the Mineola Handicap were the features of the card, and both developed rattling contests, with the Mineola Handicap taking preference because of the class of horses engaged. H. H. Hewitt's Skeptic, a starter in the Kentucky Derby, was the original favorite in the Mineola, which was run over the mile course. There were so many supporters, however, for Roy T. Yager's Al M. Dick that he closed a slight favorite over the Hewitt youngster. Both these three-year-olds were highly considered by the handicapper, and had to concede weight to the older horses, the handicapper's judgment being sustained when the finish was fought out between them.

Al M. Dick had a victory at Jamaica to reinforce the reputation he gained at Pimlico by his defeat of Fruit Cake and others of his age, and in the race yesterday he proved himself a genuine race horse, which will be likely to make trouble for the best in his division. He showed speed enough at the start to pinch off Flittergold, which had the rail, and withstand challenges on the part of Brooklyn, Celandria and Daddy's Choice in the run along the back stretch.

Going around the turn Robinson brought up Skeptic to try conclusions with Al M. Dick, and the race thereafter was between this pair. Williams, who guided Al M. Dick, held close to the rail position, and managed to forge ahead in the final drive and win by a neck. Skeptic beat Celandria by three lengths for the place.

The Hollis Selling Stake at six furlongs on the main course also brought out a well-matched field, the brisk speculation resulting in O. C. Rasch's Gloomy Gus closing a slight favorite over to R. T. Wilson, Jr.'s, Killdee. R. F. Carman's Startling also had many friends, and justified the confidence of his admirers by setting a hot pace, with Gloomy Gus and Killdee in close attendance.

Going around the turn Collins rushed Gloomy Gus to the front, but Startling was holding on so closely that it was a toss-up as the pair raced through the stretch. Robinson, who had the mount on Startling, again was courting defeat, for Gloomy Gus persevered long enough to win by a head. Startling was a length and a half in front of Killdee.

The largest field of the season went to the post in the first race for two-year-olds, in which John E. Madden's Paganini graduated from the maiden ranks. Troise got the Plaudit colt away winning in the field of seventeen, and he reached the finish line a length in front of Gifford A. Cochran's Amackassin, with the Whitney candidate, Santiago, third.

The steeplechase for horses of the selling class provided one of the best contests ever seen through the field at Belmont Park, with Robert L. Gerry's Crest Hill winning by a nose from Meshach and J. E. Widener's Esconaba, the favorite, only a head away. Esconaba made all the running, and a dangerous competitor was eliminated when Ballybay fell in the back stretch. Meshach and Crest Hill moved up then, and the three crossed the line locked so that only the judges could determine the winner.

John E. Madden took advantage of the victory of Paganini in the first race to sell that youngster, as well as the three-year-old Milkman, to the Brighton Stable. The same stable also purchased the two-year-olds Tippity Witchet and Corydon from Harry Payne Whitney.

Between the third and fourth race C. K. G. Billings's Omar Khayyam showed that he is fit for the Withers Stakes tomorrow by working a mile in 1:42 3-5. This winner of the Kentucky Derby will be offered for sale before the races tomorrow.

SEVEN BLUES WON BY MOORE HORSES

Also Capture Two Reds at Devon Show—Tissington Amity Is Star Performer.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., May 31.—Seven blue ribbons and two second awards out of eight events in which he had entries were the achievements today of Judge William H. Moore, the harness horse exhibitor of Prides Crossing, Mass., at the second day of the thirteenth annual Devon Horse Show. In only one class was he forced to bow to another exhibitor, Miss Isabella Wanamaker, whose chestnut pair, Eve and Suave, took first in the class for pairs of high steppers. Judge Moore's bay team, Lord Seaton and Mathias Pick 'em Up, took second ribbon.

The other red ribbon won by Judge Moore was in the class for heavyweight harness horse pairs, in which the Judge himself drove the bays Micah and Bountiful. Ruxton and Robinhood, also bays, took second ribbon in this class.

Miss Constance Vauclain, who was yesterday's notable winner on the opening day of the show, was unable to place any of her entries first today and was forced to be content with three red ribbons. Judge Moore's Whitewall Ariel defeated Miss Vauclain's Lady Dilham in the class for harness horses between 14.2 hands and 15.1 hands. Micah and Bountiful each took a blue over Miss Vauclain's The Whip, the former in the class for the best harness horse suitable for a gig and the latter in the class for harness horses over 15.2 hands.

Charles E. Coxe, owner of the Willsbrook Farm stables, was another notable winner today, capturing five blues in the classes for saddle and harness ponies. Tissington Amity, his diminutive bay mare, was the star performer of the afternoon, taking a blue in the class for harness ponies between 13.2 and 14.2 hands high, annexing another first with Dinarth Fancy as the best tandem of ponies between 12.2 hands and 14.2 hands, and concluding the day's performance by winning high honors in the class for the best collection of three harness ponies, 14.2 hands and under, in single harness, with Rusher Calvino and Shinfield Antelope as running mates.

HERMAN IN RING TONIGHT.

Will Box Joe Lynch at Pioneer S. C. —Other Bouts.

Pete Herman, the New Orleans bantamweight, who, since his victory in twenty rounds over Kid Williams, former champion, has been claiming the bantamweight title, will make his first appearance before New York boxing enthusiasts since that victory this evening at the Pioneer S. C., where he will oppose Joe Lynch, the promising west side boxer, in the principal ten-round exhibition. Another ten-round bout will also be staged in addition to the usual preliminaries. Other clubs holding shows this evening are:

Harlem S. C.—Harry Wills vs. Battling Jim Johnson; Benny McCoy vs. Terry Martin. Both ten-round bouts.

New Polo A. A.—Danny Fields vs. Billy Kelly; Joe Malone vs. Bobby Lyons. Both ten-round bouts.

Vanderbilt A. C., Brooklyn.—Terry Kellar vs. Sailor Schmader. Ten rounds.

Brown's Far Rockaway A. A.—Tex Kelly vs. Chick Nelson. Ten rounds.

Freeport S. C.—Walter Nelson vs. Billy Fitzsimmons. Ten rounds.

McPartland Will Referee.

Kid McPartland, who officiated as referee in the recent championship bout between Benny Leonard and Freddie Welsh, was yesterday selected to referee the ten-round bout between Carl Morris, the Oklahoma heavyweight, and Frank Moran, the blond Pittsburgh boxer, which will be staged at the Harlem S. C. next Monday night.

ITALIAN KING'S MESSAGE TO AMERICA

Senate Hears Prince of Udine Deliver Appreciation of Our Entry Into War.

NATIONS' IDEALS IDENTICAL

Problem of Shipping the Greatest for All the Allies—But It Will Be Solved.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—The Prince of Udine, of the Italian war mission, on the floor of the Senate today delivered a message to the American people in the name of King Victor Emmanuel, welcoming the entrance of the United States into the war as the final moral justification of the cause for which the Allies are fighting. The message breathed confidence in ultimate victory, and stressed the necessity of destroying the prestige of a perverted German science and philosophy.

Of the entrance of the United States after the violent offenses against right had become clear and the American flag had been insulted, he said: "You bring us the sacred recognition of our right, you bring us moral confidence, and the conviction that our cause is holy and that the great free democracy shares our feeling, our spirit, and our hope."

The Prince was received with great enthusiasm when introduced by Vice President Marshall. He appeared in full-dress uniform of a naval Captain, and was accompanied by the other leading members of the mission. The Senators, many members of the House, and officials followed his slow English with deep interest. He said in part:

"In this hour of danger, in which military absolutism is threatening every one, there are nations that have forgotten old and new competitions and have united to defeat this menace to the common safety. We are in a more fortunate position. Between the United States of America and Italy there has never been any cause of conflict. This new and closer union means for us a greater bond of sympathy and solidarity, added to those which already linked us.

"This long friendship without strife, this union without mistrust, this cloudless future, are enhanced by the fact that both our peoples are at war to defend the same ideals of humanity and justice.

Little Nations Sacrificed.

"Nearly three years have elapsed since Europe, without any justifying motive, perhaps without any motive at all, beyond the will of a small military oligarchy, was driven into the greatest conflict which human history records. Little nations, which were entirely guiltless and which within their small territory contained masterpieces of art and treasures of industry, have been barbarously sacrificed. In the conquered countries personal slavery has returned as in the worst periods of mediaeval invasions.

"In the enemy's camp science has perhaps sought to justify all these excesses. Will human conscience ever be able to justify them? Your wars have been fought for independence and for liberty. In your wars and in ours an ideal light has guided us, and our efforts were all directed toward a most noble aim. What ideals did those who have brought so much suffering upon the world aim at, outside the dominion of force and the triumph of violence?

"For nearly three years our Continent looked with anxious eyes toward your great and free country. We knew that the European war had increased your trade and given new vigor to your industries. Many feared that because of the ocean that divides us the great cry of grief from oppressed Belgium would only sound faintly in your ears; many feared that, absorbed by the activities of industry and labor, you would fail to take an interest in our struggles and in our sorrows.

"We, however, looked toward you with trusting sympathy; we felt that the great fatherland of liberty, the noble democracy which offered its hospitality to all the peoples of Europe, without distinction of race, of religion, or of language and granted to all of them the protection of the same just and humane laws, could not remain indifferent.

"Nevertheless, we waited your decision with anxiety, and it seemed to us that the holiness of our cause was in need of recognition by those who from afar would judge us with more serenity. You waited to intervene until violence and offenses against right had become clearer and more evident.

"You bring all the enthusiasm of your national youth to science and to labor. Our enemies are aware that you will bring into the war which is flooding Europe with blood and making the earth barren, the invaluable strength of your men and of your wealth. For this most noble adherence to our cause, given without any thought of conquest or of material wealth, we shall always be grateful to you.

President's Message a Classic.

"The message of your President as our sovereign has said, is worthy, by the nobility of its conceptions and the dignity of its form, to rank with the most inspiring pages in the history of ancient and immortal Rome. It was greeted with the enthusiasm of faith when it made clear the objects of the war and defined the aims of American action.

"By proclaiming that right is more precious than peace; that autocratic Governments, supported by the force of arms, are a menace to civilisation; by affirming the necessity of guaranteeing the safety of the world's democracies; by proclaiming the right of small nations to live and to prosper, America has now, through the action of her President, acquired a title of merit which history will never forget.

"Italy entered into the war with aims equal to those which you pursue. Her territory had not been invaded, her insecure boundaries had not been violated. Our people understood that the sacrifice of free nations was the prelude to their own sacrifice, and that we could not remain indifferent without denying the very reasons of our existence.

"Italy wants the safety of her boundaries and her coasts, and she wants to secure herself against new aggressions. Italy wants to deliver from long-standing martyrdom populations of Italian race and language that have been persecuted implacably, and are nevertheless prouder than ever of their Italian nationality. But Italy has not been and will never be an element of discord in Europe, and as she willed her own free national existence at the cost of any sacrifice, so she will contribute with all her strength to the free existence and development of other nations.

"By increasing the ruthlessness of submarine warfare and thus rendering navigation unsafe and dangerous, our enemies hope to win the war by increasing misery and suffering. They hope that our powerful ally, Great Britain, will lack food; that France will lack food and men, and that Italy will lack especially food, and that which is more important, coal for the war, for industries and for railways. The problem of shipping is for all of us the greatest problem of the war.

"With our united efforts we shall vanquish all these difficulties, and that which the force of arms, secretly prepared and unexpectedly employed, was not able to accomplish, will not be accomplished by disloyal means on land and water. We shall triumph over all these difficulties if we continue our efforts in brotherly agreement, united by the great duty which we now have voluntarily taken upon us for a cause which is superior to all worldly interests, and which partakes of an almost divine nobility.

"The mission of which I have the honor to be the head and in which there are representatives of the Senate of the kingdom, of the Chamber of Deputies, and members of the Government, desires to express through me the liveliest sympathy to the representatives of the American people.

"May God protect our two nations. A day will come when we shall be proud of our suffering and when our sacrifices will be rewarded. Let us endeavor to bring that day nearer which shall put an end to the sorrows of so many who are suffering and dying without guilt. Let us hasten its coming, worthy representatives of the American people, by our firm will to obtain the victory and by our complete solidarity of ideals, of sacrifices, and of deeds."

After delivering his address, the visitors were introduced to Senators.

To Join in Central Purchase Plan.

The financial and economic members of the Italian mission this afternoon held their first formal meeting with American officials, when they discussed with Secretary McAdoo and others at the Treasury Department the merging of the present intricate Italian purchasing system in this country into the general central committee proposed for all the allied nations. Italy already has signified her desire to join in the plan worked out by the British and French mission for the erection of one monster purchasing agency for all the Allies' supplies here, with the idea of preventing competition and inflated prices and securing a fairer distribution.

A second loan of $100,000,000 is to be made to Italy for June, and announcement of it is expected shortly. Of the original $100,000,000 about $60,000,000 already has been expended by the present Italian purchasing agencies here, and the balance is expected to be used up in the next few days.

The Prince of Udine today sent a telegram to Captain Eberle, Superintendent of the Naval Academy, expressing his gratification over the mission's visit to Annapolis and congratulating the Superintendent upon the institution.

COMMUNITY SINGING FOR THE ARMY CAMPS

Urged by H. Barnhart in His Demonstration of "Psychology of Crowds" at Music Conference.

More than 350 delegates to the National Conference on Community Music were present at Washington Irving High School last night when Harry Barnhart gave his demonstration of the "psychology of crowds singing," and told them there was work like that this Summer for all who could get out into the army camps. A new feature along the same line was added to the morning program today at the Hotel Astor, where Lee F. Hammer, member of a War Department commission on various camp activities, was announced to speak on "Community Music in the Training Camps."

The delegates were welcomed yesterday at the Astor with speeches by Mrs. Howard Mansfield and Park Commissioner Cabot Ward, as well as Arthur Farwell, J. C. Freund, and Peter W. Dykema of the University of Wisconsin. During luncheon, at which Kate Dougles Wiggin presided and spoke, Percy MacKaye also read a poem, Mrs. Edward MacDowell told of pageants given at Peterborough, N. H., and John Collier discussed "Music in Relation to Americanization." In the evening, after visits to a dozen settlement houses uptown and down, there were moving pictures of the Bohemian Club "Jinks," shown by W. J. McCoy of San Francisco, with some of the songs sung by David Bispham.

Today's speakers at the Astor include Claude Bragdon of Rochester, Mrs. David A. Campbell of Chicago, Arthur Nevin of the University of Kansas, Frances Brundage of Chicago, and Margaret Barrell of Buffalo. The sessions end tonight with Haydn's "Creation" at the Hippodrome, where the soloists are Florence Hinkle, Harriet Foster, Dan Beddoe, and Frederick Gunther.

"AIDA" IN CITY STADIUM.

Claudia Muzio to Sing Title Role in Performance June 16.

The open air festival performance of Verdi's "Aida," on June 16 at 8:20 P. M., in the City College Stadium, 137th Street and Amsterdam Avenue, will be for the benefit of the American Defense Society.

By consent of Giulio Gatti-Casazza, Claudia Muzio, the Metropolitan opera singer, will appear in the title role, and Andres de Segurola will appear as the High Priest. Other members of the cast will be announced on Sunday. Tickets will range from $1 to $5.

FOR CITY-OWNED BUS LINES.

Municipal Ownership League Objects to Additional Franchises.

The League for Municipal Ownership and Operation in New York City last night made public a letter written to Mayor Mitchel protesting against the granting of further franchises to the Fifth Avenue Coach Company and demanding that the city take over the operation of the bus lines. The letter pointed out that the Fifth Avenue Coach Company last year earned 900 per cent. or $422,996 on a capital stock of $50,000. This the league contends is a loss of revenue to the city.

"May we note," the letter continues, "that the average wage paid the 725 employes of the company last year was $822.59 or nearly $140 less than your Committee on Standardization of Salaries found to be a living wage; while the average salary paid the eight officials was $5,063.62."

Livermore, the Atlantic Mutual Insurance Company, the American Tobacco Company, Endicott, Johnson & Co., H. P. Goldschmidt & Co., and the Travelers' Insurance Company of Hartford, Conn. Kean Taylor & Co. announced that $1,961,350 had been subscribed by 201 of its customers, and in Philadelphia it was reported that the Pennsylvania Company for Insurance on Lives and Granting Annuities had applied for $2,000,000 for itself and clients.

Many Subscriptions Announced.

Some of the other subscriptions announced were $800,000 by W. H. Goadby & Co., $500,000 by the Chicago Title and Trust Company, $250,000 by Crane & Co., $200,000 by Victor Morawetz, $125,000 by the Lawrence Manufacturing Company of Boston, $100,000 by Jacquelin & de Coppet, $100,000 by the Travelers' Indemnity Company, $100,000 by Bloomingdale Brothers, $100,000 (additional) by John Muir, $100,000 by New York Lodge, No. 1, B. P. O. E., and $100,000 by the Neptune Meter Company.

According to a report circulated about the New York Stock Exchange, two large traders have subscribed to $1,000,000 each of the Liberty Loan bonds. Steel common made a new high record of 136 during the forenoon trading yesterday. These traders, it is said, have been heavy speculators in steel and leather issues, and with the profits made in the stock market they bought Liberty Bonds.

The ten-dollar participation certificates issued by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York were placed on sale yesterday. Various banks and stores sent their messengers early in the morning to buy large blocks of these certificates, which they will sell to the public. The bank officials have not yet received replies from all of the stores to whom letters were sent concerning the certificates, but judging from the responses that have come in, it appears certain that the bank will have to print several thousand more.

The Liberty Loan Committee issued the following statement:

> His Eminence, Cardinal Gibbons, has authorized a statement to the Publicity Committee of the Liberty Loan Committee, for Maryland, in order that it should be promulgated in the press to emphasize the fact that he is in the heartiest sympathy with the nation-wide movement to encourage the widest dissemination of information regarding the character and objects of the Liberty Loan. Cardinal Gibbons let it be known that in the near future he would address an open letter to the clergy of the diocese, exhorting them to use their best endeavors to the furtherance of this project. The statement is authorized that his Eminence has purchased for his own account as a personal investment a block of these securities.

Appeal to Vassar Alumnae.

The Class of 1911, Vassar Alumnae, has just issued 300 letters announcing to members of the class that the participation of college women in the Liberty Loan is important, and is to be encouraged by a new plan worked out in connection with the million dollar Vassar educational endowment campaign now under way. The Class of 1911 has just completed arrangements whereby its remaining share of the endowment fund may be paid in Liberty bonds. The Gift Committee, of which Ruth Danenhower is the spokesman, and the members of which are Mrs. Isaac F. Harris, Chairman; Marjorie McCoy, Helen Paine, Geraldine Shaw, and Mrs. Alanson T. Enos, Jr., are urging immediate participation in the loan and have signified their ready acceptance of these bonds in payment for endowment pledges already made or to be made.

A campaign to popularize the loan on the east side and other similar districts of the city has been opened by Walter Sachs of Goldman, Sachs & Co. More than thirty settlement houses and neighborhood associations have been asked by Mr. Sachs to co-operate by means of educational meetings. Nathan D. Levy will address a meeting to be held this evening at the University Settlement in Eldridge Street.

The demand for seats for the big mass meetings to be held at Carnegie Hall and Cooper Union next Monday is five times the number at the disposal of the Liberty Loan Committee, which announced yesterday that no seats would be reserved. Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo is expected to speak at both meetings. Mayor Mitchel will preside at Carnegie Hall, and the other speakers will be E. H. Outerbridge, President of the Chamber of Commerce; Major Charles W. Gordon, Forty-third Cameron Canadian Highlanders, and Dwight W. Morrow of J. P. Morgan & Co.

At Cooper Union Oscar S. Straus, Chairman of the Public Service Commission, will preside, and the speakers will be Sheriff "Al" Smith and Governor Edge of New Jersey. The Seventy-first Regiment band will play at both meetings. Mme. Alda of the Metropolitan Opera Company will lead in the singing of patriotic songs.

Frank A. Vanderlip, Otto H. Kahn, and Thomas W. Lamont will speak at the Liberty Loan meeting to be held this afternoon by the Merchants' Association at the Bankers' Club.

Instructions for Certificate Buyers.

To correct a misunderstanding which has arisen in some quarters, the Liberty Loan Committee desires to call particular attention to the fact that persons desiring to use the short-term certificates of indebtedness in payment for Liberty Loan bonds must make a formal subscription to the bonds, as the certificates of indebtedness are not directly convertible into the bonds except in payment of formal subscriptions. In other words, a subscription to the certificates of indebtedness is not in itself a subscription to Liberty bonds. The formal bond subscriptions must be entered by holders of certificates as well as others. Of course the certificates may be used in payment for the bonds.

The Liberty Loan of 1917 Campaign Text Book, or "Speakers' Primer," made up of fifty-two pages of information, arguments, and explanatory material in regard to the Liberty Loan bonds, was issued yesterday by the Liberty Loan Committee. The booklet has been compiled for the benefit of those who have volunteered to tell the American people the story of the loan, and who will take this great national problem to the citizens of the nation and ask them to provide the Government with the sinews of war to crush Prussianism by buying the bonds.

Among the contents is "A Call for Service," by the Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis; editorials from the newspapers, an article describing the loan as the "World's Premier Investment," another by George E. Roberts of the National City Bank on the importance of the loan from an economic point of view, and "Why and How to Subscribe for the Loan," by Edwin Bird Wilson.

The American Sugar Refining Company, which some days ago announced its $1,000,000 subscription to the Liberty Loan, has established a plan for aiding its 10,000 employes to purchase the bonds. Employes may pay only $1 a week, and each subscriber receives a button indicating that he has bought a bond, and displaying the legend, "The Nation's Food Service—Sugar."

In addition to the International Mercantile Marine Company's own subscription of $2,000,000 to the Liberty Loan, President P. A. S. Franklin has issued a bulletin to all the company's employes stating that the management is most desirous of encouraging and assisting them to invest in this patriotic fund. The company will arrange to purchase the bonds at par for its employes, and repayment will be made in installments of 10 per cent. a month. On unpaid balances the company will charge the same rate of interest (3½ per cent.) as is received from the Government, and will credit employes' accounts with the value of interest coupons as they are collected.

CALLS LOAN SMALL FOR U. S.

J. S. Alexander Says $20 Per Capita Is Far Below Allies' Share.

James S. Alexander, President of the National Bank of Commerce in New York, issued a statement yesterday at the request of the Liberty Loan Publicity Committee regarding the per capita apportionment of the Liberty Loan. It reads in part as follows:

"Two billion dollars, the amount of the Liberty Loan, sounds like a staggering figure, but measured in terms of per capita apportionment, wealth, and income, and compared with the war borrowings of other peoples who are fighting in the world struggle for liberty, the men and women of the United States are being asked to make a relatively small contribution. That this is true is made strikingly obvious when the Liberty Loan is compared with the $220,000,000,000 national wealth and the $38,000,000,000 annual aggregate income of the people of this country as a background.

"Two billion dollars in the United States means only $20 from each of our people. The per capita income of each person in this country averages $380, the per capita wealth, $2,200; and it is the plan of the Government that the $2,000,000,000 called for in the Liberty Loan shall come from every part of the population, apportioned in accordance with its ability to contribute so that the war for liberty shall be truly a people's war.

"Comparison of the above per capita figures in detail with the corresponding figure for the four leading nations of the Entente Allies will make clear how very little the people of the United States as a whole are being asked to do. The United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland with a per capita wealth of about $1,763, or more than $440 less than that of the United States, and with an annual per capita income of $231, or $149 less than ours in this country, has already made borrowings for the war, at the rate of $444 per British subject. And this country now is asked to loan at the rate of $20 a person, less than one-twentieth of the average war obligations of the English. The war loan obligations incurred by the British as a nation mean that, on the average, English subjects have personally loaned or been made responsible for $444, inasmuch as the national wealth, which is composed of the aggregate wealth of all the individuals in the nation, is pledged as security for war borrowings.

"Even more striking is a comparison with the financial burdens which France, Russia, and Italy have assumed. France has a per capita wealth of $1,767, and a per capita income of only $151; yet to do her share in making the world safe for democracy, France has already assumed financial obligations at the rate of $531 per every man, woman, and child in her population.

"Russia, vast as it is, has a per capita wealth of only $280, and a mere pittance of income for each person of only $36; yet with all her disorganization and internal stress, the Russian people have made war borrowings at the per capita rate of $47. Italy with per capita wealth of $694, and income of $111, has borrowed at the rate of $80 a head.

"Equally prodigious financial efforts have been put forth by the two chief Teutonic allies who are warring to make the world unsafe for democracy; with the added significance that their borrowings have been made out of the pockets of their own people, since their military isolation has prevented them going outside their own borders for ready money. Germany, with a per capita wealth of $1,338 and income of $161, has made borrowings at the rate of $230 per person. A negligible percentage of her $11,000,000,000 war loans has been placed outside the German Empire.

"Germany's chief ally, Austria-Hungary, with a per capita wealth of $808, and income of $111, has borrowed at the rate of $96 per person, every cent of her loans having been raised either within her own borders or in Germany.

"With $220,000,000,000 at their backs and with $38,000,000,000 pouring into their pockets each year, the people of the United States are asked to loan on imperishable security and for lucrative interest, at the rate of only $20 apiece. Oversubscription to the $2,000,000,000 Liberty Loan many times over will manifest our national determination to play as heroic a part in the world war as has already been so clearly manifested by the nations which are our allies in this world war. There is no reason why there should not be a Liberty bond in every home."

DETROIT TO RAISE $33,000,000.

New England Subscriptions in a Day Exceed $18,000,000.

DETROIT, May 31.—Detroit's Liberty Loan drive to obtain $33,000,000 was started today. It was stated at committee headquarters at the Board of Commerce that it was hoped to obtain this amount in one week.

BOSTON, May 31.—The First National Bank of Boston has subscribed for $10,000,000 of the Liberty Loan. A subscription of $1,000,000 also was reported at New England headquarters here by the Providence committee.

Other subscriptions announced today were: Merchants' National Bank of Boston, $5,250,000; Chase & Sanborn, Boston, $200,000; Fitchburg Bank and Trust Company, $150,350; Appleton Bank of Lowell, $200,000; Greylock Bank of Adams, $160,000; Hadley Falls Trust Company of Holyoke, $250,000; First National Bank of Bangor, $130,750; Bridgewater Trust Company, $108,850; State Bank and Trust of Hartford, $200,000; Ludlow Manufacturing Associates, $300,000; Bangor & Aroostook Railroad, $125,000.

CHICAGO, May 31.—Liberty bond salesmen, armed with Mayor Thompson's belated permission to visit offices in the City Hall, invaded the building today. The first result was a $10,000 subscription in the City Treasurer's office. Joseph Rushkewicz, Assistant City Treasurer, subscribed in the name of the Polish Roman Catholic Union of America, of which he is Treasurer.

NEW YORK, FRIDAY, JUNE 1, 1917.

GERMAN PEACE.

The Austrian and German delegates to the Stockholm Socialist Conference have had a conference or caucus of their own. They have put forth a peace program that marks again their official and instructed character. They represent their Governments. Whatever uninstructed, unofficial Socialists go to Stockholm, these are manifest agents of the Ballplatz and the Wilhelmstrasse.

The academic or millennial talk about the "internationalization" of maritime and trade routes and interoceanic canals, restoration of "freedom of commerce on land and sea," return to the maritime principles of the Paris Congress of 1856, restriction of the mechanical means of sea and air warfare, is but moral and virtuous scenery, the poetic decoration of a practical Teuton scheme of plunder.

"No annexations and no indemnities" is the saccharine German phrase so eagerly gulped and regurgitated by the impromptu statesmen of the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates. For the moment it will not do to favor the annexation of Belgium, bent as the still unbeaten and unconvinced Pan Germans are on that annexation. The Russians must be kept in mind. The Teuton Powers must "pander to the moral sense of the community," as FERNANDO WOOD said. Without an indemnity for the ruin done by Germany, how is Belgium to be restored? Northern France, too. "No indemnities" is become the German-born gospel of the Petrograd proletariat. The Austro-German delegates make skillful use of it.

On Serbia, Austria's special victim, they turn a moist eye. They are "friendly" to her independence. They say patronizingly that Serbia, by joining herself with Montenegro, can assure herself an outlet to the sea. How kind, in view of Austria's previous exclusion of Serbia from the Adriatic! Who is to guarantee the independence of Serbia and Montenegro? The Balkan States, the Teuton delegates say, should be allowed to "settle their affairs without outside interference." What is to keep Austria-Hungary and Germany from interfering? Only the recognition of nationalities, only the erection of one or two Slav States in Austria-Hungary, of a Bohemian-Moravian, a Czech-Slovak State in the north, a union of the South Slavs in Carniola and Dalmatia, of Slavonia and Croatia, Magyar-misruled, in the Reichsland of Bosnia and Herzegovina. Perhaps a federation of these with Serbia and Montenegro can assure the independence of Serbia and Montenegro.

All the Slav peoples in Austria-Hungary are to remain as they are, but the Teuton delegates will "support" their efforts for autonomy. Again, how kind! Austria-Hungary gives nothing, keeps all. All her Slavs, the Italians of the Trentino, the Rumanians of Transylvania, must be ruled against their will.

The treatment of the Polish question is equally saturated with altruism. The Poles of Galicia are to have autonomy. This was promised them last year. Finland and Russian Poland are to be independent States. Russian Poland, as the Teutonic program of 1916 indicated, is to be an "autonomous "State under a ruler selected by the "Teutonic Powers." Amiably crying "No annexations!" Germany and Austria annex, economically and politically, a vast Polish domain, rich in minerals and resources, before the war a mighty industrial region in the west. The Kingdom of Poland is taken from Russia and bestowed in effect upon Germany and Austria-Hungary. Austria keeps her Poles, whom, by the way, she has treated well. Prussia keeps her Poles—Poles of Posen, East Prussia, West Prussia, Upper Silesia, Poles she has vainly tried to Germanize, and whom she has usually treated ill. Why, this is another partition of Poland!

"An enduring solution of the Polish problem can be expected to be reached in the future," the official Socialists say with no visible grin, "by free agreements between the Central Powers and the independent State of Russian Poland." For "independent" read "German." More than fifty years ago the King of Prussia, afterward the Emperor WILLIAM I., said:

> It is equally the duty and interest of Prussia to do everything in her power to prevent the establishment of an independent Polish Kingdom * * * the existence of Prussia would be seriously menaced, as the first effort of the new State would be to recover Danzig.

And that would be fatal. It is an utterly dishonest and impossible scheme that these Socialist dummies of Austria-Hungary and Germany have been instructed to offer. Of the just restoration of Alsace-Lorraine to France, not a word. "No annexations, no indemnities!"

CONSTITUTION REPAIRING.

We New York folks, who have seen a mighty good revised Constitution rejected by a colossal majority, look with a certain humorous pity upon the efforts of other States to patch the fundamental laws. The Massachusetts Constitutional Convention begins on June 6. On June 26 Arkansas will choose delegates to a Constitutional Convention to be held in November. In July Tennessee will decide at the polls if she wants such a convention in October. In September the Hoosiers will choose their delegates. In November Illinois will vote for or against a convention. So the whole year is an almanac of Constitution repairers, and far on into 1918, and all the years ahead, doubtless, this busy, thankless work will go on.

Meanwhile those sisters that don't treat themselves to conventions can always afford amendments, some of them 8,000 words long. Amid this tempest of amendments and conventions, some conservative souls must remember with regret RUFUS CHOATE's saying, as applicable in the sphere of government as of health: "I have no "constitution. I live under the by-"laws."

FOR THE COMING HARVEST.

In the last few days there has been a decided change for the better in all reports about our coming crops. The harvest of most food products promises to be one that will break all records. This will not be true of wheat, but we shall have more of this grain than was expected a month ago. Crop experts predict that in its June report the Government will increase its estimate of only 366,000,000 bushels of Winter wheat to 400,000,000, and possibly to 420,000,000. Probably there is a small increase of Spring wheat acreage, the reductions in two or three States having been overcome by additions in others. Last year's deficient wheat crop was 640,000,000 bushels. There are indications now that this year we shall have as much, and probably a little more. Some expect that 700,000,000 bushels will be harvested. About 620,000,000 bushels are usually required for home consumption and seed. Our European allies will look to us for 200,000,000 bushels. Exports from this country and Canada have recently been about 5,000,000 bushels a week. If our Government assumes control of the apportionment of foodstuffs it will begin with wheat. It is estimated that our cornfields exceed last year's by 15,000,000 acres, and this addition of 14 per cent. will give us the greatest crop ever known. Much land where Winter wheat was killed has been replanted with corn, and in the South the reduction of cotton acreage by about 3½ per cent. is accounted for in part by new cornfields. Acreage increase for oats is more than 10 per cent., and there will be an unprecedented crop of rye, with large gains in vegetables all over the country.

A shortage of labor has not prevented this preparation for a bountiful harvest. Throughout the land, farmers have been aided by State Governments, railroad companies, and local committees. The planting of seed will soon be finished. Canada has had the same labor problem and appears to have solved it with the help of high-school boys, university students, railroad workmen, factory employés, and business men in the cities who gave their vacations to labor in the fields. Commercial organizations bought tractors and loaned them to the owners of land. Canada's wheat acreage has been increased. There will be a labor shortage here at harvest time, but our National and State Governments will find a way to save what has been produced. There is time to prepare for that emergency. It is comforting now to know that so much has been done in the planting season.

GOVERNMENT PRECEPT AND PRACTICE.

In his appeal to have appropriations for the army made available immediately, Secretary BAKER said that the Treasury balance available for payments was barely sufficient to meet the Government's needs until today, and that contractors for clothing and equipment are clamoring for payment of bills totaling $18,000,000, with further bills immediately in sight. "Default of the Government at this junc-"ture spells disaster," said Secretary BAKER. Default in the sense of refusal to pay is not to be imagined. The difficulty is persistence in the idea that there is some especial virtue in excess of care in Government disbursements, and stolidity upon the part of paymasters who have too little sympathy with those whose solvency may depend upon their getting what is coming to them when it is due.

An example is afforded in the contrast shown by the railways' methods toward the Government and the Government's methods toward the railways. The Atchison Railway paid a $760,000 corporation tax seven weeks in advance of the due date, merely as an accommodation to the Government. In that the Atchison does no more than thousands of individual citizens have done to a total of millions of dollars in our district. Never was the Government more willingly supported in all it asks from either corporations or individuals. In return, the Government asks especial concessions in its contracts, and then does not promptly pay its bills. In the request of the railways for advanced rates the Chairman of the Southern Pacific Railway testified that its charges for the Mexican mobilization had only just been paid, after a delay which had cost the company $750,000 interest.

Only those whose resources are ample, or those who know the ropes and have inside influence, can venture to supply goods on the risk of remote payment, and perhaps a dispute with an auditor over some obscure statute or regulation not familiar to business men. Now, above all other times, the Government should be the promptest of pay. The people are pouring out their resources like water, and the purveyors are providing the Government more cheaply than others at the same time that they are turning away better private business. For example, it was announced yesterday that the lumber dealers of the Pacific Coast had named a price to the Government of $35 per thousand for the lumber needed for shipbuilding. That is about $5 below the market on ship timbers. Those who sell on such terms ought to get their money as quickly as the Government gets its much-needed lumber, and the proposal is to furnish it within two days between the forest and the ship side. It may be doubted that there is any record of the payment of a Government bill within two days.

That is the difference between the Government's precept and practice in business affairs. Government thinks it can teach business to men of business. They return the compliment by thinking that they can teach government to Government. At a time when it is so apparent that war is business it is desirable that Government should manage war upon business principles, promptness of payment being a leading virtue both practiced and appreciated by business men.

THE LIBERTY LOAN'S "SUCCESS."

Unofficial estimates put the total subscriptions here to the Liberty Loan at more than twice the minimum apportioned to New York by the Treasury and an increase above the maximum by half. If those estimates are true, and the rate is continued, New York would come pretty close to taking the entire loan itself before the books are closed. If the country also meets expectations, there will not be enough of the loan to go around, and somebody must go without. On no other basis could the loan be called wholly successful. It would not be successful if New York took the whole two billions. It would not be successful if the entire country covered the loan with a little to spare. The loan will not be as successful as it ought to be unless it carries to Germany the conviction that the masses of Americans are pledging their lives, their property, and their sacred honor for the defeat of Kaiserism.

It is a mistake to measure the success of the loan solely by the dollars subscribed. The real test of the loan is its measure of popular sentiment. If the entire two billions were to be taken by the hundred-odd persons whose incomes are over a million dollars a year, the loan would be a miserable failure. It would show how many wanted to evade their taxes rather than how many wanted to pay to beat the Germans. The inference would be similar if New York should take enough more than its share to enable the country to take much less than its share. The success of the loan will be measured as much by the numbers who subscribe as by the dollars they subscribe all together. The success of the loan should be calculated along the lines of the figures of the recruiting. The West is proud of its men volunteers, and with right. The West would be entitled to still greater credit if it showed itself as willing to support its fighters as to furnish them. The same is true of every State of the country. It is just as true of the East that it ought to be as forward with its men as with its money.

There should be an honorable rivalry between States, as between individuals, each to do its best, and to see that all the rest do as well. The greatest success which could be wished for the loan would be that the subscribers were so many that there would be no allotment to those who took over $100. If the result shall be that no allotments above $1,000, or above $5,000, are made, there would be a waiting line for the next few billions, and all subscribers to this loan would have something worth more than they paid for it, with the Kaiser's chagrin for an added attraction. The modest subscribers for the smaller amounts, if they take the entire loan among them, will have two strings to their bow—they will make the rich pay their taxes unless they pay a profit to the fortunate owners of the bonds now offered, and they will give the Germans their worst reading since JOFFRE stopped them. They know that we are rich and will not care if our millionaires are against them. It will be different if the loan shall prove that Americans by millions, practically with unanimity, are against all that Germany's dynasty stands for. That is the message that the loan ought to take over the sea, both to Germany and to our allies against Germany.

GERMANY'S TWO HANDS.

The trial and conviction of Captain VON RINTELEN, the German conspirator who was so active in organizing plots here in 1915, illuminated Germany's methods of starting trouble in the United States. He hired such Americans as were for hire, and for such as were not he made use of high-sounding catchwords and enlisted their ignorant enthusiasm. With one hand he organized strikes and riots and tried to bring about a war with Mexico; this was his red hand. With the other he organized mass meetings to prate about the freedom of the seas, about universal peace, and anything else that sounded well; this was his white hand. Neither was his hand, both were the hands of the German Government, which sent him here.

The two hands are still busy, though RINTELEN himself is in jail; the methods are the same. The red hand stirs up the mountaineers of the feud region to massacre the landowners and Government officers, stealthily reaches out for ignorant young men who can be induced to join in anti-draft movements that will lead to rioting. The white hand still organizes mass meetings, though now the watchwords have changed; now the tools of Germany—and it makes no difference that some of them are entirely unconscious that they are tools of Germany and think they are crusaders for the millennium—are prating about forcing the President to state the terms of peace, about ending the war when Germany stops her submarine lawlessness.

In RINTELEN's day, in 1915, the Government was patient with both the hired tools of Germany and the innocent goslings who were Germany's tools without knowing it. Now, however, we are at war. The object of RINTELEN's plottings, whether of the red hand or the white, was to create disaffection and bloodshed and to arrest the arm of the Government. The object today is the same. A plausible talker reciting fraudulent platitudes from a platform in the name of universal and immediate peace, a German agent stirring up massacre in the mountains, both contribute their labors, whether one of them knows it or not, toward a sure end, which is disaffection and bloodshed and the arrest of the Government's arm. The Government will not wait for the bloodshed, and it should not even wait for the disaffection. What could be tolerated in 1915 cannot be tolerated in 1917. The time to show a firm hand is at the beginning, when the harm has not yet been accomplished. The consciously disloyal and the unconsciously disloyal must be stopped now, stopped by the arm of the law, and stopped hard.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

United to Serve the Country. Between no two men, probably, is friendly co-operation for the attainment of a common end less often seen, or more astonishing, on general principles, when an instance of it is to be observed, than between the Chairmen of the Democratic and the Republican National Committees. Of course the occupants of those high places are not necessarily personal enemies, but in their official capacity it is so distinctly the business of each to antagonize the plans and thwart the hopes of the other that all their relations naturally tend to be at least "strained," and for them to sheathe the metaphorical knives with which it is the profession of each constantly to lunge at the other's metaphorical vitals—that is a spectacle to make politicians gasp and ordinary folk wonder if they are awake.

Yet this next-to-impossible conjunction has come to pass! It took nothing less than the great war, however, to bring it about, and, in the midst of that most dreadful storm, one finds a centre of calm where WILLIAM R. WILLCOX and VANCE MCCORMICK, all their grudges forgotten and all their grievances assuaged, have sent out a jointly signed appeal to Democrats and Republicans.

This unique document half orders and half entreats every member of the two organizations to work amicably and energetically for the success of next Tuesday's registration. The two leaders remind all their subordinates that the law under which the registering will be done was passed by Congress by a vote showing no trace of party lines; that the national safety and welfare are involved in the thoroughness with which this preparation for the selective draft is accomplished, and that the good citizen will support and obey it simply because he is a good citizen.

All this is fine, sound doctrine, and the two Chairmen have set an admirable example for partisans all over the country.

Cossacks Are Not So Awful. If inclination to say a good word for Cossacks had not been a stranger to so many minds, possibly the present very obvious opportunity to do just that would not come as the surprise it does to most of us. We have been accustomed to think of Cossacks only as the ruthless instruments of an archaic despotism—to picture them as wild horsemen riding through a crowd of helpless civilians and beating them brutally with heavy whips.

That conception, of course, is not without excuse, but, had observation been a little more careful, it would, or at any rate might, have been seen that in all these cases the Cossacks were illustrating the soldierly quality of executing without question the orders that had come down to them from the Commander in Chief of the army of which they were a trusted and highly efficient part. Responsibility for their acts rested on other shoulders than their own—all of it, as responsibility is counted in every military organization—and that the Cossacks have intelligence as well as courage has been shown by the attitude which they have taken since the revolution gave them their first chance without disloyalty to act on their own judgment and initiative.

While so many other sections of the Russian army became utterly demoralized as soon as the Czar fell, the Cossacks have preserved their sense of discipline. They have indulged in no wild vagaries in regard to a ruinous and treacherous peace with the enemies of free Russia and her allies, and they have made plain their determination to support the new Government as faithfully as they did its predecessor. The address which they have sent to Petrograd contrasts most agreeably in its good sense with most of the other expressions of opinion that have come from the Russian soldiers, around whose name cluster no such evil associations as around that of the Cossacks, and it is upon the latter, evidently, that the Provisional Government can rely most confidently for help in carrying out its plans.

Alternative Loans Suggested. Sober consideration is deserved by a statement made by S. STANWOOD MENKEN at the National Security League's meeting on the upper east side. "If you don't subscribe to the Liberty Loan," he said, "you will subscribe later to an indemnity loan."

There may be some sacrifice of the probabilities in this, but to do that is sometimes permissible, when the object is to force and fix attention, and in this particular case the improbability is that the Liberty Loan will fail, not in the assertion that, if it should fail, there would come a day when everybody would be compelled, not asked, to pay his part of a sternly exacted indemnity to a victorious enemy.

That contingency is indeed remote, and of course Mr. MENKEN, no more than the rest of us, believes that the Liberty Loan will not be subscribed and oversubscribed. The dread alternative is there, however, for again and again have the intentions of Germany been explicitly asserted by serious exponents of her policies and expectations.

Her losses have been colossal, and she knows where money can be had for the taking if she wins the war. The United States is now her only enemy with huge resources as yet hardly touched. The choice really is between the Liberty Loan and an indemnity loan, and it was no empty phrase that Mr. MENKEN used.

What Are They Trying to Prove?.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It would be interesting to know just what the suffragists are trying to prove by the statements made in Helen C. Mansfield's letter published May 28. The eleven States having the highest percentage of enlistments may be suffrage States—no one intends to deny this — but what possible connection can there be between a woman's voting and a man's enlisting in the army? Are we supposed to infer that in the suffrage States the men are being persuaded to enlist by the more patriotic women? Perhaps this is true in some cases in all the States, but such an argument would be absolutely contradictory to the theories of the suffrage agitators. For, if women have so strong an influence over men, why can they not exercise it in questions of politics, instead of demanding the vote for themselves? As usual, the suffragists have forgotten to be consistent.

And is a woman who votes more patriotic than one who does not? Most emphatically, no! The majority of women do not want to vote, and yet nearly every woman in the country is striving to do whatever lies in her power to be of patriotic service. Who has ever, as Miss Mansfield states, "made light of the patriotism of women"? She seems to imply that this has been done by persons opposed to woman suffrage, but surely most of us would scorn an argument so unfair, knowing as we do that, since the beginning of this nation's history, the women have stood by her loyally in every crisis. There are, no doubt, a few weak women who, like Jeannette Rankin, "want to stand by their country"—conditionally—but Miss Rankin is no more a fair representative of America's women than Senator La Follette and Champ Clark are fair representatives of America's men.

Syrians Are Not Turks.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I wish, through your paper, to bring out one point with strong emphasis, namely, the fact that the Syrians are not Turks. This is of extreme importance just now, in view of the coming conscription. The Syrians differ from the Turks as regards their race, religion, and language, and the tendencies of the two races are entirely opposed. As a matter of fact, there is nothing that binds the Syrians to the Turks except a sense of revenge for the Turkish atrocities in Syria. The Syrians in the United States hail with enthusiasm the entry of America into the war, and both as a community and as individuals are preparing to fight under the Stars and Stripes. Some of them are already fighting under the French tricolor. The writer has enlisted in the United States Medical Reserve Corps, but was told that his services may not be accepted, although he has his first naturalization papers. It will be a great pity if, through failure to distinguish between two races, which are entirely antagonistic, the United States will prevent the Syrians from doing their bit in the great world work of ending Turkish atrocities and overthrowing German autocracy.

F. I. SHATARA, M. D.

New York, May 30, 1917.

THE SURGEON.

What! Pedro wounded? Pedro! Good old scout!
 A dozen men here owe their lives to him,
That brave, fine comrade of the trench and march,
 Doing his bit like any poilu grim!

After the heaviest charge, in blackest night,
 He'll find a man with just the spark of life
Beneath a heap of dead. Oh, say, it's tough
 That he, poor fellow, must endure the knife!

How did it happen? Flying shrapnel? M-m!
 Honest! if it had gashed my own left side
It could not hurt me more! There'll be some tears,
 If word goes 'round that he, old chum, has died!

Why, just this morning he stood by me, fond,
 Those big brown eyes so knowing and so sad!
He seemed to wonder at such misery—
 That men could fight and hate and be so mad!

Jack's holding him? On Billy's service coat?
 They're waiting—and for ME?—I've lost my nerve,
Though my old knife's been true these hundred times,
 And done its work, and never dared to swerve!

I can't! Let Jenkins do it! Pedro? Why he watched
 While I was snatching just a daybreak nap!
That prince of Red Cross dogs! Still—yes—I'll go!
 Brace up!—and quick! For we must save him, dear old chap!

THE HOUSE REVENUE BILL

A Constructive Criticism.

SECOND ARTICLE: How Shall the Taxes be Apportioned? and Conclusion.

By EDWIN R. A. SELIGMAN,

McVickar Professor of Political Economy, Columbia University.

In considering the apportionment of the extraordinary burden of taxes in war times certain scientific principles are definitely established:

(1) The burden of taxes must be spread as far as possible over the whole community so as to cause each individual to share in the sacrifices according to his ability to pay and according to his share in the Government.

(2) Taxes on consumption, which are necessarily borne by the community at large, should be imposed as far as possible on articles of quasi-luxury rather than on those of necessity.

(3) Excises should be imposed as far as possible upon commodities in the hands of the final consumer rather than upon the articles which serve primarily as raw material for further production.

(4) Taxes upon business should be imposed as far as possible upon net earnings rather than upon gross receipts or capital invested.

(5) Taxes upon income which will necessarily be severe should be both differentiated and graduated. That is, there should be a distinction between earned and unearned incomes and there should be a higher rate upon the larger incomes. It is essential, however, not to make the income rate so excessive as to lead to evasion, administrative difficulties, or to the more fundamental objections which have been urged above.

(6.) The excess profits which are due to the war constitute the most obvious and reasonable source of revenue during war times. But the principle upon which these war-profit taxes are laid must be equitable in theory and easily calculable in practice.

Tested by the above principles the House bill sins in numberless respects.

Title 1 includes the income taxes, both new and retroactive. The retroactive tax is clearly inequitable. It applies to corporations and individuals alike, and it seeks in the case of corporations to tax something which is non-existent, for the 1916 corporate earnings have been for the most part distributed in the shape of dividends.

The additional income tax as passed by the House runs up to a rate of 60 per cent. This is a sum unheard of in the history of civilized society. It must be remembered that it was only after the first year of the war that Great Britain increased her income tax to the maximum of 34 per cent., and that even now in the fourth year of the war the income tax does not exceed 42½ per cent. It could easily be shown that a tax with rates on moderate incomes substantially less than in Great Britain, and on the larger incomes about as high, would yield only slightly less than the $532,000,000 originally estimated in the House bill. It is to be hoped that the Senate will reduce the total rate on the highest incomes to 34 per cent., or at most to 40 per cent., and that at the same time it will reduce the rate on the smaller incomes derived from personal or professional earnings. If the war continues we shall have to depend more and more upon the income tax. By imposing excessive rates now we are not only endangering the future, but are inviting all manner of difficulties which even Great Britain has been able to escape.

Title 2 is the excess-profits tax. Unfortunately, the House contented itself with doubling the rate of the existing tax, which is 8 per cent. on the surplus over 8 per cent. of the invested capital. This has given rise to much discontent, for not only is the restriction of earnings to 8 per cent. unjustifiable, but the criterion of capital invested creates all manner of inequalities, injustice, and administrative difficulties. If we are to have an excess-profits tax it should be levied on the excess over profits secured in the period before the war.

Strictly speaking, the tax ought to be limited to industries which have dealt in war materials. The difficulty, however, is to distinguish between those industries directly and indirectly affected by the war. Increase in the output of finished products utilized in warfare means an augmented demand for the raw material, and in one way and another the impetus created by the war's demands affects industries in general. The difficulty, therefore, of distinguishing between war profits and other profits becomes so great as to warrant an extension of the war-profit tax to virtually all excess profits. The pre-war period should, indeed, be an average of, say, three to five years. But what pre-war period should be taken? Should we take an average of the three years before the European war or an average of the three years before our entrance into the war? If the period before our own entrance into the war is selected it will be urged by some that the average obtained is too high and that we have not taken sufficient account of the large profits of the last year or two. We must remember, however, that we are only fixing a base, the excess over which is to be taxed. Obviously, it fits existing conditions better to fix that base as near as possible to the period the profits of which are to be taxed. If we took the years 1912-13-14, the administrative difficulty of assessing plants started since 1914, as well as of measuring the earnings of the then existing plants by the side of the now existing plants, would be much greater than if we took the years 1914-15-16. It must not be forgotten that the last three years in this country have been epoch-making, so far as industrial growth is concerned. The exports of America have increased from $2,465,884,149 in 1913 to $4,333,658,865 in 1916. For the ten months of the present fiscal year ending April 31 the total exports were $5,167,000,000. A tremendous amount of additional plant facility has been required to produce the goods which have gone into those exports. It would seem, therefore, that the best base would be, say, the three years 1914-15-16. Of these only the last was an abnormal year. The 1915 year was a year of rapidly rising earnings; the year 1914 was the worst year in our recent history. If these three years were deemed not to constitute a fair average, the years 1912 and 1913 might be added, making the base the five-year period from 1912 to 1916, inclusive.

In any case, whatever base is taken, it would be essential not to discourage increase in plant capacity at a time that it is sorely needed by the Government. Therefore, some allowance should be made for the additions to plant which will be producing the earnings of 1917 and subsequent years.

It makes, however, little difference as a producer of revenue which one of the two average periods is selected. A careful estimate has shown that if the three-year period before the outbreak of the great war were selected, the profits of 1916 in excess of the average of the three-year period before 1914 would amount to some three and a half billions of dollars, so that every 10 per cent. of tax would yield about $350,000,000. On the other hand, if the three-year period before our entrance into the war were taken, a rate of at least double the amount would be necessary to yield the required sum. Whatever be finally decided upon with reference to the criterion, it is to be hoped that the rate will be so adjusted as to yield at least $500,000,000 revenue from the excess-profits tax.

Titles 3 and 4 deal with liquors and tobacco, which are universally conceded to be proper objects of additional taxation. Title 5 includes the tax on transportation, electric lights and gas, telegraph and telephones, advertising and insurance. To this title there are serious objections. The tax on electricity and gas is a tax upon what has become in modern times a prime necessity. A tax on insurance is a tax on thrift. A tax on advertising is from many points of view injudicious. The passenger tax, calculated to yield $65,000,000, is perhaps the least burdensome of the set; but the tax on freight and express, calculated to yield $90,000,000, ought to be imposed only in the case of urgent necessity.

Title 6 contains as the most important element the automobile tax. The bill bases the tax upon the erroneous principle of gross receipts from sales. It is far better to levy an excise or consumption tax, according to one of two criteria, either horse power or selling value. The advantage of horse power is that it can be absolutely determined by standard formulas. The advantage of selling value is that automobiles with the same horse power sometimes vary considerably in price. On the other hand, the disadvantage of value as a test is to be found in the case of used cars. Perhaps the best test would be a combination of the two criteria—selling value in the case of cars that have been purchased within the year, and horse power in the case of those used for a longer period.

The other items in Title 6 are of comparative insignificance. No one should object to a tax on proprietary medicines and perfumes, although in persuance of the fundamental principle explained above it would be better to levy it in the shape of a stamp tax. The tax on musical instruments is not unjustifiable. It is questionable, however, whether the tax on motion picture films might not wisely be replaced by a tax on admissions to the motion pictures themselves. The tax on jewelry is defensible as a tax on luxurious expenditure.

Title 7, covering admissions and club dues, is fairly satisfactory. The revenue to be expected from club dues has, in all probability, been seriously underestimated, and it might be desirable for that reason to impose a smaller rate of tax.

Title 8 includes stamp taxes designed to yield about $33,000,000. This errs on the side of exclusion. There is no reason why a tax on bank checks should not be included. The objection arising from the fact that in the South it is customary for the farmers to pay even very small bills by checks can be overcome by making the tax applicable only to checks over a fixed amount like a dollar.

Title 9 is the war estate or inheritance tax. Opposition has developed to this tax because of the existence of inheritance taxes in the separate States. This, however, seems to be an inadequate reason for the disappearance of a tax which is a peculiarly fit resource for extraordinary or capital expenditures. It would indeed be necessary to adjust the relations between the nation and the separate States, but this adjustment is becoming increasingly desirable in many other imposts besides the inheritance tax. The revenue that is anticipated from this tax is so slight, however, that it may be passed over.

Title 10 imposes a 10 per cent. flat increase on all imported articles, and is calculated to yield $200,000,000. It needs but the slightest reflection to show that this tax—which was only an afterthought with the Ways and Means Committee—is completely indefensible. It levies a tax upon certain articles now on the free list, which ought always to remain on the free list; it imposes a burden on certain raw materials which will have the most injurious and unlooked-for results upon industry; it levies a tax which, in some instances, will be of such a highly protective nature that it may call into existence industries which will be dependent upon a continuance of the tariff after the war is over. It has, in short, all the earmarks of an unconsidered hodgepodge. If, as it may become necessary, a certain additional revenue is desirable from customs, the committee ought certainly to begin with purely revenue taxes like those on tea and coffee. It is much to be desired also that if the tax on sugar be found requisite, it be imposed in the shape of an excise rather than of a customs duty. For owing to the fact that a certain proportion of our sugar supply enjoys a preferential rate, and owing to the further fact that an increase in the tax on imported sugar would mean a rise in the price of all sugar, beet as well as cane, the imposition of customs duties would inevitably take out of the pocket of the consumer far more than it would bring into the Treasury. Such a tax would, therefore, sin against a cardinal rule of taxation.

Title 11, dealing with the Virgin Island products, calculated to yield only $20,000, may be passed by. We come finally to Title 12, with the much debated taxes on mail matter. Some increases in the charges on second-class mail matter may indeed be abstractly defensible. But the proposition itself is open to doubt, and this is, of all times, the most inopportune to attempt to introduce a new scheme. It does not follow that because second-class mail matter is not self-supporting the rates ought to be increased. The European Governments all try to make money out of their mail service; the United States has always pursued the contrary practice. As President Grant pointed out over a generation ago, cheap communication by mail is an adjunct to democracy. In large parts of this country the periodical literature supplies the chief source of community education. To do away with classification in the railway system would introduce an economic revolution. Greatly to increase the second-class mail matter rates might produce almost equally undesirable consequences.

The augmented rates on first-class mail are not so unjustifiable, but even these ought to be levied only in case of urgent necessity.

Conclusion.

From the above review it will be seen that the House bill is open to the most serious criticism. Entirely apart from the fact that it is predicated upon an erroneous theory of attempting to raise too much by taxation, the measure bears evidence of undue haste in its consideration, perhaps excusable because of the exigency of the situation. Its fundamental defects may be summed up as follows:

(1) It pursues an erroneous principle in imposing retroactive taxes.

(2) It selects an unjust and unworkable criterion for the excess-profits tax.

(3) It proceeds to an unheard-of height in the income tax.

(4) It imposes unwarranted burdens upon the consumption of the community.

(5) It is calculated to throw business into confusion by levying taxes on gross receipts instead of upon commodities.

(6) It fails to make a proper use of stamp taxes.

(7) It follows an unscientific system in its flat rate on imports.

(8) It includes a multiplicity of petty and unlucrative taxes, the vexatiousness of which is out of all proportion to the revenue they produce.

The Senate has a great opportunity to effect a reform which will be at once democratic and equitable. The fundamental lines on which the Senate ought to proceed have been indicated above. They are summed up herewith:

(1) The amount of new taxation should be limited to $1,250,000,000—or at the outset to $1,500,000,000. To do more than this would be as unwise as it is unnecessary. To do even this would be to do more than has ever been done by any civilized Government in time of stress.

(2) The excess-profits tax based upon a sound system ought to yield about $500,000,000.

(3) The income-tax schedule ought to be revised with a lowering of the rates on earned incomes below $10,000, and with an analogous lowering of the rates on the higher incomes, so as not to exceed 34 per cent. A careful calculation shows that an income tax of this kind would yield some $450,000,000 additional.

(4) The tax on whisky and tobacco ought to remain approximately as it is, with a yield of about $230,000,000.

These three taxes, together with the stamp tax at even the low rate of the House bill, and with an improved automobile tax, will yield over $1,250,000,000, which is the amount of money thought desirable. If it becomes necessary to raise another $250,000,000 it can be done in the following order: The tax on admission and club dues, yielding $75,000,000; import duties on tea and coffee, yielding about $50,000,000, and an excise tax on sugar, yielding about $40,000,000. The small balance could then be raised by a revised tax on freight transportation and on first-class mail matter.

The above program would be in harmony with an approved scientific system. It will do away with almost all of the complaints that are being urged against the present. It will refrain from taxing the consumption of the poor. It will throw a far heavier burden upon the rich, but will not go to the extremes of confiscation. It will obviate interference with business and will keep unimpaired the social productivity of the community. It will establish a just balance between loans and taxes and will not succumb to the danger of approaching either the tax-only policy or the loan-only policy. Above all, it will keep an undisturbed elastic margin, which must be more and more heavily drawn upon as the war proceeds. It will make the war loans a success and will not damp the enthusiasm of the community. It will, in short, satisfy all the requirements of a wise fiscal policy in a period of storm and stress. Our Senators have now an opportunity of showing their true statesmanlike qualities and of proving to the world that a democracy can also pursue a fiscal policy which is both sane and progressive.

Ships of Steel or Wood.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The motives which lie back of selection for ship material may, some day, be more fully known, but just now the 'lamp of experience' is a beacon worth noting. Let the Commission or Shipping Board, in their contest with General Goethals, call on practical ship brokers, who are putting up hard cash for bottoms, for testimony as to seaworthiness.

When they buy four-masted schooners built in 1896 they know what a wooden ship will do. But they also know how many have broken their backs. Many vessels after a second cargo are "hogged," making a drop between stem and stern of fifteen inches or more. In case of especially large hulls, this has been found to measure more than thirty inches. With this condition the keel twists and the stem may be several degrees to one side of perpendicular and stern post to the other.

If this occurs with well selected ship stock, the use of green lumber multiplies the risk, as well as introduces the quick soft rot of sappy timber. The best of material must be thoroughly salted to keep sound.

Faulty lading, with extreme weight in bow and stern, the continuous strain of mast and spars, unceasingly apply leverage to distort the frames, open seams, and spring planking.

No spruce or Oregon fir is fit for frames to stand up under these conditions.

Most of the practical ship men will give Goethals their indorsement for a steel fleet.

Because the Shipping Board know where lumber can be had, and an almost unlimited appropriation secured, if they estimate how much tonnage is needed and have the drawings for patterns at hand, still they may not be competent compared with one who has watched our canal traffic and knows what the west coast freighters must endure, as well as the Atlantic coastwise bottoms.

"The German War."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Noticing in your columns a discussion on the subject of naming the present war, I desire to add my suggestion that it should be known as "The German War." The war should be named for those who made it, and theirs should be the stigma fixed thereby. The deep damnation of this infernal strife should not be shared by any one with Germany, not even by her accomplices among the nations. Germany and Germany alone is to blame, and she should bear the burden of ignominy.

Chicago's Unpatriotic Mayor.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mayor Thompson's refusal to invite the French mission to Chicago, and his obstruction of the Liberty bond campaign are unpatriotic and disloyal in the extreme. Such conduct is a blot upon the national honor and may be classed as treasonable, since it gives aid and comfort to the enemy. Chicago would earn the praises of the entire country by the removal of her unpatriotic Mayor.

PILGRIMS HONOR CHOATE'S MEMORY

SERVICE AT OLD TRINITY

Prominent Men of State, and City and Numerous Organizations Join in Tribute.

A memorial service for the late Joseph Hodges Choate was held at noon yesterday in Trinity Church by the Pilgrims of the United States, of which organization Mr. Choate was President. Mayor Mitchel and other city officials, Commander Arthur Temple Blackwood, R. N., representing the British Embassy; C. Clive Bayley, the British Consul General in New York; Gaston Liebert, the French Consul General, and representatives of many organizations were present at the invitation of the Pilgrims. The Rev. Dr. William T. Manning, rector of Trinity Church, delivered an address on the public services and personality of Mr. Choate, special emphasis being laid upon "his last crowning act of service" in receiving and welcoming the British and French Commissions.

Solemnly impressive music, reading of Scriptural passages, and prayers preceded and followed Dr. Manning's address, the Trinity choir and organ adding their usual powers to the ceremonies. The service opened with Chopin's Funeral March, after which came versicles from the Bible and the Ninetieth Psalm. The lesson, from 1st Corinthians XV:20, followed, and then the choir sang the anthem beginning, "Souls of the Righteous in the Hand of God." Dr. Manning's address was next, and, following it as an organ solo, the Dead March from Saul, by Handel. "Rock of Ages" was sung by the choir, then came the final prayers and benediction. The hymn, "God of Our Fathers" preceding Beethoven's Funeral March, played as the closing voluntary.

Address of Dr. Manning.

"For more than fifty years," said Dr. Manning in his address, "the name of Joseph Hodges Choate has been known conspicuously in our public life. We find it difficult to think of New York without him. His help was always to be counted on in any effort for human progress, for better Government, for the public good. He was the spokesman for all good causes and the representative of whatever is best and finest in our city's life.

"It is no exaggeration, nor mere figure of speech, to say that he was our chief citizen. His title was conceded to him without question, and by all alike. His part in affairs, civic, national, and international, is known to all of you. You know of his unexcelled service to our country as Ambassador to Great Britain. His influence in that high office was a powerful factor in deepening the mutual understanding and strengthening the ties between the British and American peoples. And we who are here today know how he furthered this great end as President of the Pilgrims of the United States. His name itself was a symbol of the object for which the Pilgrims Society exists, the promotion of that close and enduring fellowship among all the English speaking peoples which shall be the support, and the guarantee of liberty and righteousness and peace throughout the world.

"His highest service to his country and to his fellow-men was given during the years just past, since the outbreak of the world war. From the beginning he saw the true significance of this tremendous conflict. He saw that it was a fight for democracy, for justice, for civilization, for every truth for which the Christian religion stands. He saw that a world dominated by the principles of Prussian militarism would be a world unfit to live in. And he lifted up his voice in fearless advocacy of the right.

"The last five days of his life stand out in our minds as a chapter by themselves. He was Chairman of the Mayor's Committee appointed to receive and welcome the members of the French and British War Commissions on their epoch-marking visit to this city. Never in all of his life had he performed a task for which he was better fitted, nor one more wholly congenial to him. He gave himself to it to the uttermost, and his gifts and power never shone more brightly than in the continuous succession of meetings and functions, public and private, during those momentous days.

"It was his last crowning act of service, and having performed it he entered into his rest. We mourn his death, but the fitness of it almost takes the sting from our grief."

Present at the Service.

Joseph H. Choate, Jr., and Arthur Choate, sons of Mr. Choate, and Carl A. von Gersdorf his nephew, were present. Others in the congregation were: Charles E. Hughes, James M. Beck, Police Commissioner Woods, Fire Commissioner Adamson, Dock Commissioner Smith, Controller Prendergast, Theodore Rousseau, Secretary to the Mayor; Nicholas Murray Butler, F. Cunliffe-Owen, Edward F. Darrell, William Curtis Demorest, Chauncey M. Depew, Bishop Greer, John W. Griggs, Job E. Hedges, A. Barton Hepburn, Alton B. Parker, Herbert L. Satterlee, Cornelius Vanderbilt, Lewis Cass Ledyard, Robert Bacon, Willard Straight, J. P. Morgan, H. C. Frick, Thomas W. Lamont, George F. Baker, George W. Wickersham, Oscar S. Straus, Cleveland H. Dodge, Coleman du Pont, Charles H. Sabin, John B. Stanchfield, Morgan J. O'Brien, Cass Gilbert, the Marquess of Aberdeen, Jacob H. Schiff, Mortimer L. Schiff, Otto H. Kahn, and General Daniel Appleton.

Delegations were present from the St. Andrew's Society, St. George's Society, St. David's Society, Canadian Club, Canadian Society, the British Schools and Universities' Club, and the Harvard Club, Chamber of Commerce, Merchants' Association, Union League Club, and Toronto University Club.

WILL BE JUNE BRIDES.

Dates of Weddings of Misses Bishop, Fox, and Kennedy.

Miss Nathalie H. Bishop, daughter of James C. Bishop of Torresdale, Penn., formerly of New York, and Charles F. Choate, 3d, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Choate of Boston, will be married on June 14 in St. James's Church, this city. Mr. Choate, who served on the border last Summer in the Second Massachusetts Field Artillery, expects to join his regiment soon. Only the immediate families are to attend the wedding, owing to the recent death of Joseph H. Choate, an uncle of the bridegroom.

Miss Alice Fox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Austen G. Fox of 37 East Thirty-ninth Street, will be married to Dr. John Gerster, son of Dr. Arpad Gerster, on June 6, at her home. The couple obtained their marriage license yesterday. The wedding was originally set for June 25, but the date was advanced as Dr. Gerster, who is a member of the Officers' Reserve Corps, has been ordered to Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana.

Henry Savage Page, a widely known horseman and promoter of polo, and Miss Mary Kennedy of Warrenton, Va., will be married on Tuesday next at the home of Dr. and Mrs. William Beverly Mason, brother-in-law and sister of Miss Kennedy, in Washington, D. C. Mr. Page for many years was identified with the Meadow Brook Club, and moved to Bluemont, Va., a year ago. His fiancée is 30 years old, being several years Mr. Page's junior.

MISS WITHERBEE ENGAGED.

Daughter of Mrs. Frank S. Witherbee to Wed Charles D. Miller.

The engagement of Miss Evelyn S. Witherbee, the only daughter of the late Frank S. Witherbee and of Mrs. Witherbee of 4 Fifth Avenue, to Charles Duncan Miller, son of Mrs. Charles Addison Miller of 26 West Thirty-seventh Street, has just been announced.

Miss Witherbee, who made her début several years ago, is a niece of William Rhinelander Stewart and Lispenard Stewart, her mother having been Mary Rhinelander Stewart, and she is a cousin of Anita Stewart, who married the Prince Miguel de Braganza.

Mr. Miller was graduated from Yale in 1902. His mother was formerly Miss Mary Ely, and he is a brother of Mrs. Edward Swift Isham and of James E. Miller, who married Miss Gladys G. Kissel. His clubs include the University and Union and the Seawanaka Yacht.

No date has been mentioned for the wedding.

MISS MORAN WEDS ARTIST.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Moran Marries Mark D. Dodd.

The marriage of Miss Vivien Moran, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Moran, and Mark Dixon Dodd of this city, formerly of St. Louis, Mo., took place last evening at 7:30 o'clock at the bride's home, 518 West 182d Street. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Merle St. Croix Wright.

The bride's only attendant was young Isabelle Babcock, who acted as flower girl, and Dr. John S. Hawkins was best man.

The couple will motor to Maine, where they are to spend the Summer.

ELKUS WAS WELL TREATED.

Sultan Sent Representatives to Bid American Ambassador Farewell.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—Every courtesy was extended to Ambassador Elkus and his party upon leaving Constantinople. Advices received today by way of Stockholm say representatives of the Sultan, the Grand Vizier, and the Ministers of Finance and Foreign Affairs said farewell at the station, while a representative of the Minister of Foreign Affairs accompanied the party to the frontier. The party is due at Berne on June 1.

The party includes Ambassador and Mrs. Elkus and three children; the Misses Johnson, Hewes, and Tupper and two servants; Secretary G. Cornell Tarler, Second Secretary Oscar I. Milmore, Legal Adviser Arshag K. Schmavonian, Special Assistant George R. Montgomery and his family of four, Assistant Secretary Arthur H. Leavitt and family of two, A. Van H. Engert, and Samuel Edelman, interpreters, and Frederick Wirth.

VOTES FELONY BAN ON FOOD HOARDING

GERMAN AGENT ACCUSED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—A stringent amendment to the Gore Food bill, making it a felony to hoard food products or other necessaries of life, or to resort to any scheme to create a food shortage, was adopted by the Senate today by a viva voce vote. It is regarded by the Senate as by far the most potent of all the food legislation considered by Congress, and is interpreted by Senators as carrying the real solution of the food problem.

During the debate on the amendment Senator Sherman of Illinois said he knew the name and the address of a Wall Street agent for the German Government who had been buying up quantities of wheat and food products and having them shipped from American ports so as to be sunk by German submarines.

"I will supply this German agent's name to any Senator or to any Cabinet Minister who wants it," said Senator Sherman. "This is the character of food hoarding we want to stifle. It is the most criminal of all. This man ought to be jailed."

Senator Hoke Smith of Georgia asserted tonight that the passage of the anti-hoarding amendment was a bigger step toward absolute food control than any other legislation yet before Congress. The Senator bitterly criticised the Lever bill and predicted that, if it came to the Senate, with its provision for a food administrator, "hardly a Democrat would vote for it."

"The Lever bill is vicious because it puts control of the whole food problem into the hands of a dictator," said Senator Smith. "We don't want dictators. We want the country's food resources stimulated and regulated against hoarding and against the arbitrary fixing of prices due to hoarding. The amendment passed by the Senate today aims at exactly that, and is the only legislation yet considered that will do it."

Bill Likely to Pass Today.

The Gore bill, intended to stimulate agriculture and facilitate the distribution of food products, carries an appropriation of $15,000,000. It will be voted upon in its entirety tomorrow and is expected to pass. The vital feature of the bill, embraced in the anti-hoarding amendment, offered by Senator Stone of Missouri, reads as follows:

> Section 8—Any person carrying on or employed in commerce among the several States or with foreign nations or with or in the Territories or other possessions of the United States in any article suitable for human food, fuel, or other necessities of life, who, either in his individual capacity, or an officer, agent, or employe of a corporation, or member of a partnership, carrying on or employed in such trade, shall store, acquire or unreasonably hold, or who shall destroy or make way with any such article for the purpose of limiting the supply thereof to the public or affecting the market price thereof in such commerce, whether temporarily or otherwise, shall be deemed guilty of a felony and be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary for not less than six months nor more than three years; provided that any storing or holding by any farmer, gardener, or other person, of the products of any farm, garden, or other land cultivated by him shal not be leemed to be a storing or holding within the meaning of this act.

Debate on the amendment was focused on how far the storing of food might go before it might be called hoarding. In this connection the regulation of wheat and other Exchanges dealing in foods was considered, Senator Sherman insisting that such Exchanges must exist, and that their handling of food products did not mean monopolization or unlawful fixing of prices to rule the market.

"No one denies that unlawful control of wheat and other products is sometimes affected by Exchanges," said the Senator. "But when that happens there is always the remedy at law, and punishment can be meted out. We must have grain and wheat Exchanges, for who else is to regulate the movement of crops? We must have foodstuffs in warehouses so as to conserve our surplus stocks. No one can call that hoarding. Would you destroy the food warehouses because there is gambling sometimes by wheat speculators? If you did you'd impair the country's food supply, and the country would face a grave food shortage.

Accuses German Agent.

"The sort of hoarding we must get after is that which is done with the obvious intent of cutting down the food supply and waiting for the time when prices may be raised and the foodstuffs released to the market. That is the character of food control at which this amendment aims.

"Another species of control of the food supplies of this country is the work of German agents who have been buying up all they could and shipping it to Germany on ships that would have to run the perils of the submarines. It has been an audacious and a criminal operation, and is something that should at once be investigated.

"The idea of these agents is to have all our food supply that they can lay their hands on sunk in the Atlantic. I know the name of one agent in Wall Street who has bought up millions of bushels of wheat during this war and has had it shipped from our ports to steer into the danger zone. How many cargoes that he managed to get shipped from our ports were actually sunk I have no way of knowing, but it is fair to assume that at least some of them fell victims to the submarines.

"Now, I have the name and address of this German agent, and I will be glad to give them to any Senator or any Cabinet officer who is interested in his criminal work. This agent is still on the job, buying up all the food he can, and I suppose he is still getting it shipped off with the hope that it will be sunk in mid-ocean. He's doing all he can to cheat this country and its allies out of their food supply. He's a danger to this country, and yet he keeps on with his operations apparently unhindered."

Senator Sherman reverted to the operation of grain exchanges, insisting that they were a necessary element in this country.

"Suppose they are broken up," he went on. "What would happen? Why, the Government would have to get a substitute for them and what would the Government get? A food dictator, who would have power to take over everything pertaining to the country's food products. He would supplant the exchanges that would be driven out of business as felons. You'd be putting the food control of this whole nation into the hands of a man who wouldn't know anything about it. You'd substitute men who are experts in their business for men taken from a civil service list, who would be ignorant of these affairs. What sort of food regulation would that be? It would only make matters worse."

Senator Poindexter sought to modify the Stone amendment so as not to work injury to the wheat and grain markets and offered an amendment which provided that the measure should "not be construed to prohibit the acquiring, storing or holding of such food articles in the ordinary course of business for the sale thereof at such prices as may prevail in a free, unrestricted market."

The Senator said he believed there ought not to be any regulation against fixing of prices according to the market conditions, and what he sought to do was simply to make it clear that legitimate storing would not be interefered with.

Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, suggested that the Federal Trade Commission, created two years ago, had power to decide what was "unreasonable storing," and that it could act upon specific complaint and take summary action against offenders.

"This commission was created to prevent unfair competition of big concerns with small ones," said the Senator. "It certainly would have power to prevent big concerns from hoarding the food supply."

Senator Walsh of Montana challenged Senator Hitchcock's interpretation of the authority of the Federal Trade Commission, contending that it was created simply to prevent unfair competition that would crush small business, and that its power did not run to preventing the hoarding of food or fixing of prices unfair to the consumer.

Senator Hitchcock's suggestion that food regulation be placed in the hands of the Federal Trade Commission was abandoned. Senator Poindexter's amendment was voted down, and the Stone amendment then went through without a dissenting vote.

Senator Hoke Smith's criticism of the Lever Food bill means that there is going to be bitter opposition when it is reported by the Senate committee. Before it reaches the Senate, however, there will be changes that will greatly modify it.

DR. BLAKE'S HOSPITAL OPEN.

Poincare Makes American Surgeon Member of Legion of Honor.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 31.—President Poincaré pinned the Cross of the Legion of Honor on Dr. Joseph A. Blake today at the formal opening of the American Red Cross Hospital of Paris, of which Dr. Blake is surgeon in chief, and in a speech thanked him in the name of the republic for his valuable services since the beginning of the war.

Mme. Poincaré was present; also Ambassador Sharp and a host of prominent Americans, besides hundreds of visitors, including representatives of the various Ministries and many French surgeons.

There was a large delegation of doctors and members of the committee of the American Ambulance at Neuilly, where Dr. Blake served in the first year of the war. Dr. Alexis Carrell came down from his hospital at Compiègne.

The Presidential party remained several hours. The Chief Executive visited every bed in the hospital and talked to each of the hundred wounded. None was more enthusiastic than M. Poincaré over the magnificence of the institution, which all the surgeons agreed was the best equipped hospital in France.

PUTS HEAVIER TAXES ON COFFEE AND TEA

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—A war tax of 2 cents a pound on coffee and 5 cents on tea was decided upon today by the Senate Finance Committee, which is revising the House War Revenue bill. This is an increase from the House rates, which were 1 cent a pound on coffee and 2 cents a pound on tea. The Senate rates, it is estimated, will yield $18,000,000 on coffee and $3,000,000 on tea. A tax of half a cent on sugar and 3 cents on cocoa were other changes. The sugar tax is expected to raise $50,000,000 and the cocoa tax $7,000,000. The total of $78,000,000 will serve to make up for loss of revenue due to the Senate committee's elimination of the 10 per cent. tariff tax on all imported foodstuffs.

The Senate Committee cut the proposed 10 per cent. tax on transportation tickets to 5 per cent., but widened the scope of the tax to include every character of vehicle or boat propelled by mechanical power within the United States, and also include transatlantic steamer tickets.

The 5 per cent tax on all gas and electric light consumed was stricken from the bill. The tax on gas and electricity used for "domestic purposes" was eliminated on Saturday. The final change means a cut of $25,000,000.

The committee also adopted a new method for taxing express packages, levying 1 cent. upon each 25 cents paid, and decided to make the same rate apply to parcel post packages. The House rate was 6 per cent.

Another change was the inclusion of radio-telegraph in the 5 per cent. tax on long distance telephone and telegraph messages. The tax on local telephone and telegraph messages was cut out last week.

The committee cut out the flat 12½ per cent. tax on manufacture of munitions, which last year brought in approximately $25,000,000. The excess profit tax, fixed by the Senate Committee last week, takes the place of this.

In an effort to agree upon an equitable tax upon newspapers, magazines, and other publications now transported for 1 cent a pound the committee arranged today for a general conference Saturday night, when Chairman Simmons and other member will meet representatives of the publishers and the Post Office Department.

The proposed 2 per cent. tax on all advertising and the Hardwick amendment, recommended by the department, to increase postage charges on the portions of the publications devoted to advertising, were discussed today, but no conclusion was reached.

"The newspapers want to do their share in paying the war expenses," said Senator Simmons tonight. "They do not object to paying a tax, but there has been dissatisfaction expressed not only over the proposals contemplated in the House bill but also over some that have been proposed to the Finance Committee. I feel sure that we can come to an agreement."

SUNDAY SPEAKS AT PLAZA.

Addresses 800 Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Simeon B. Chapin.

In the ballroom of the Plaza yesterday morning 800 persons, who had accepted invitations from Mr. and Mrs. Simeon B. Chapin of 930 Fifth Avenue to meet Billy Sunday, heard the evangelist discuss in the course of his religious talk such things as "changing fashions in woman's garb, craze for money, and ambition to hold public office." Next to Sunday his musical director, Homer Rodeheaver, proved entertaining to his unusual audience with his song of "Brighten the Corner." Advocating purchase of the Liberty Loan bonds, Sunday said:

"Wealth does not satisfy. Fame does not complete our happiness. We may climb the ladder of wealth, fame, and power as high as they reach, but they will not bring you one inch nearer heaven without Jesus Christ. We are living too fast."

Then he expressed the fear that if the present ratio of insanity kept pace with increasing population the country would be a madhouse, but he did not expect total madness for 217 years. Describing political ambition to be simply "one higher office after another," Sunday continued:

"Let him be elected Governor and he wants to be President, then President twice." Interrupted by laughter, Sunday added: "Our President is there twice, but he didn't get there by my vote, because I'm a Republican; but I'm going to stand by him to the last ditch," and he was applauded.

During his afternoon sermon at the Tabernacle, on the subject of "The Kingdom," Sunday discussed "worldly Kings and their failures," and declared the "King business was doomed for oblivion by democracy." The time is coming when there will not be a King or Emperor on earth. Uncle Sam has got into this war, and he will use his army and navy to yank the crowns from some of them."

At the Tabernacle last night Sunday made this reference to an incident of his visit to the Plaza ballroom meeting:

"One of the women told me that she had often criticised me and felt that she had been unjust. Would I forgive her? I replied: 'Forget it.' The woman was scintillating with diamonds. My eyes are batting yet from looking at them."

When a group of sailors and marines from the Brooklyn Navy Yard and three Indian girls of the Sioux Tribe, who are students at a school here, were seen among the throng of trail hitters, Sunday smiled happily, and remarked: "Ah! They make a more pleasing picture to my eyes on the trail here than all the diamonds in the world."

Among the audience last night were 1,500 employes from the store of James McCutcheon & Co., a delegation with the "Milkmen's Band" from the Sheffield Farms-Slawson-Decker Company, and a delegation of New York Telephone girls, the leader of whom presented the evangelist with a floral piece fashioned like a telephone, with the request that he give the flowers to Mrs. Sunday.

Sunday last night based his religious talk on Stevenson's novel of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," which he used as an illustration to show the good and bad in human nature.

"Life is not a game of chance," asserted Sunday. "We make our own fortune, then name it chance or fate. Every man is the architect of his own fate."

There were 1,395 trail hitters at the two tabernacle meetings yesterday.

This afternoon and evening Sunday's sermons will be exclusively for women.

The Character of Management in Real Estate is the vital point. Almost any one can collect rents, but it takes an experienced organization to cope with the bigger problems of ownership today.

WANT SALVARSAN PATENT SUSPENDED

Physicians in Movement to Make Full Supply Available Here During the War.

DR. WALKER TELLS OF LACK

Herman A. Metz, Who Controls American Rights to Product, Makes Offer to Government.

Medical societies and academies of medicine all over the United States, including those in New York, are practically unanimous, according to information obtained yesterday, in a movement to persuade the Government to abrogate, or at least suspend for the duration of the war, the patent rights of medicines held by German corporations. Salvarsan and Neosalvarsan are among the most important medicines affected by German patents, and the movement is principally concerned with them. The Council of National Defense has come out in support of the movement, as have the New York County and State Medical Societies. A bill providing for suspension of the German patents during the war has been introduced in Congress.

Although Herman A. Metz, who has the sole right in America to import these medicines, has opened a factory in Brooklyn for their manufacture and promises to let the Government have them at cost and the medical profession at only a fair profit to himself, physicians, it is said, still believe that the Government should take control of the patents and permit their manufacture on lease to private individuals, or make public the formulae and processes by which they are made. Several manufacturers in America, by infringement of the German patents, are reported to be making Salvarsan, but, it is said, they will not be able to supply as much of the medicine as is needed at a price within the reach of all.

Dr. George Walker of Johns Hopkins University is one of those interested in the movement. In a letter to THE NEW YORK TIMES he said that there were at least 6,000,000 persons in the United who needed Salvarsan and that the majority of them could not obtain it.

"The retail price of an ampule containing six decigrams of Salvarsan," wrote Dr. Walker, "has varied from time to time. At present, when obtainable, it sells at $4.50. While the cost of such an ampule cannot be specifically stated, it has been estimated to be from 14 to 35 cents.

"We submit that no Government should permit the patenting and therefore the private control of an agent which is of such great value to the welfare of its people and so strikingly needed by so many of its poor. This is an instance in which property rights are held higher than fundamental human rights; nay more, where the health and even the lives of citizens are allowed to be sacrificed rather than interfere with an alien's claim. Is it not time for Congress to adjust this matter and not allow this iniquitous condition longer to survive?"

Several prominent physicians, interviewed yesterday, who did not wish their names used, said that, while they had been able to obtain Salvarsan, they had to pay what they considered unjustifiable prices for it, and that some members of the medical profession had been unable to get the medicine when they needed it.

Mr. Metz said there was no occasion for the movement among the doctors and that it was merely the result of propaganda by physicians seeking to advance their own interest.

"Shortly after the war began, in 1914," he said, "I found it necessary to advance the price of Salvarsan slightly, but since that time my price has not been raised a cent. I have restricted the sale of the medicine to doctors, offering it to them continuously at the unchanging price, which afforded me only a reasonable profit. But many of the doctors who have bought from me have retailed the medicine themselves, getting for it what they could. I have refused to sell to such doctors whenever I have detected them.

"Appreciating the need for a greater quantity of Salvarsan than is now obtainable, I have built and opened a factory in Brooklyn for its manufacture and will be able to supply what is needed by the United States Government, the medical profession, and hospitals. I have notified the Government that I will supply it at cost or turn over to it my Brooklyn factory, so that every man in the army and navy who needs it may be treated with Salvarsan. I will sell the medicine to doctors and hospitals at cost plus a small profit, and I assert that no one would be able to manufacture and sell the drug cheaper than I.

"My offer to the Government has no strings to it. But I want to say that in my opinion the Government should not single out Salvarsan for confiscation at the behest of the doctors. Many manufacturers of medicines have raised their prices to the sky since the beginning of the war, and the Government ought to go after them if it deprives me of what I have a right to. I am not seeking to get rich out of Salvarsan. I am going to manufacture it and sell it for the public interest, accepting from private agencies only a fair profit."

MARRIED AT 4 A. M.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., May 31.—Mary A. Smith, who is said to have inherited $1,000,000 from the estate of her father and was wedded seven years ago to his chauffeur, Arthur Woodcock, whom she divorced a week ago, was married this morning to Clifford R. Wilmot by Justice Malcom Merritt at Port Chester, N. Y. It is said Mr. and Mrs. Wilmot have gone to the bride's bungalow at Sea Gate, L. I., for their honeymoon.

Wilmot and Mrs. Smith-Woodcock were dining and dancing last night at the Cos Cob Inn when they decided to marry. They drove to Port Chester and aroused Justice Merritt from sleep. He married them at 4 o'clock this morning.

ARMOUR TO BUILD FOOD BRANCH HERE

SAVING IN HANDLING MEAT

Freight Cars to Run Into Second Floor as Part of West Side Improvement.

An entire block in the lower west side shipping district has been purchased by Armour & Co., and it was announced yesterday that a building will be immediately erected there which will be the largest food distributing branch house in the world. The block is bounded by Fourteenth and Fifteenth Streets, Tenth Avenue and the Marginal Way facing the big steamship piers. Armour & Co.'s purchase was influenced by the immediate need for increased facilities for the distribution of food products and also to relieve the present railroad congestion.

Plans for the new food distributing building will permit freight cars to run into the second floor of the structure from the proposed west side elevated improvement plan, thus eliminating the necessity of unloading quantities of food products in Jersey City for distribution in New York, as is now the case with the limited shipping facilities.

Until the plans of the New York Central track system are approved, temporary sidings will be used, similar to those in use by the National Biscuit Company and other big houses in the vicinity. The National Biscuit Company occupies the larger block to the north.

The property bought by Armour & Co. has a frontage of 221 feet on the Marginal Way, 160 feet on Fifteenth Street, 74 feet on Fourteenth Street and 205 feet on Tenth Avenue. It is assessed at $201,000. It was purchased from the Chanler estate, through Horace S. Ely & Co. The land has been owned by the Chanler family, who are related to the Astors, for nearly a century.

The height of the new structure has not been decided, but it will be fireproof, and will contain all of the latest details for the sanitary handling of food products. It will be erected under the general supervision of the Bureau of Animal Industry of the Department of Agriculture, and the plant will be operated under Federal Government inspection. Several old frame buildings are now on the block. The piers of the Cunard, French and White Star lines are opposite.

COCCHI FOUND IN ITALY.

Ruth Cruger Witness, Sought by Police, Is Living in Bologna.

Alfredo Cocchi, whom the District Attorney and the police have been seeking in connection with the disappearance of Ruth Cruger, the Wadleigh High School girl who was last seen on Feb. 11 last, has been found in Bologna, Italy, according to information received by District Attorney Swann yesterday from S. S. Dumont, United States Consul at Florance. Cocchi was proprietor of a motor cycle repair shop at 542 West 127th Street, which was the last place the Cruger girl is known to have visited. Two days after he had been questioned by the police as to his knowledge of the girl's whereabouts, Cocchi vanished, abandoning his wife and small baby.

In his letter the Consul said that Cocchi gave "incompatibility of character" as his reason for fleeing the country. The Consul stated that his investigation disclosed that Cocchi arrived in Italy in the latter part of February without any female companion and was living with his parents. District Attorney Swann was unprepared to say last night just what course he would pursue in the matter of extraditing Cocchi.

ZIONIST FLAG UNFURLED.

Double Triangle Flies with Stars and Stripes at Headquarters.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., May 31.—The double triangle or six-pointed shield of David, worked in pale blue on a background of white, was unfurled to the breeze along with the Stars and Stripes today at the National Zionist Convention headquarters here. The flag is the symbol of the Zionist movement.

The convention of Zionists to meet here on June 24 will consider the launching of the new nation from many angles. There are many details to be considered, but the flag is agreed upon and the constitution is available.

I. W. W. QUARTERS RAIDED.

Federal Officials Believe They Frustrated Strike Plot on Great Lakes.

DETROIT, May 31.—Federal officials announced today that an alleged plot to tie up Great Lake commerce through strikes was probably broken up by the raid laast night on the local headquarters of the Industrial Workers of the World. Two officers of the organization were arrested and considerable literature was confiscated.

J. Herbert Cole, special agent of the Department of Justice, said that an investigation of an attempt to disorganise service on the Great Lakes brought the Government agents to the I. W. W. headquarters.

Reformed Church Synod Election.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., May 31.—About 200 delegates attended the opening here this afternoon of the General Synod of the Reformed Church in America, which met in its 111th session. The following officers were elected: President, J. Preston Searle of New Brunswick Theological Seminary; Vice President, A. Addison Jones of Albany, N. Y. The selection of a President was made from among twenty-four candidates. Dr. Jones's vote was next to that of Dr. Searle.

SERVICE BOARD ASKS VETO.

Knight and Pratt Bills Called Blow at Control of Utilities.

Briefs urging the Governor to veto the Knight and Pratt bills, which would permit holding companies to own more than 10 per cent. of the stock of public service corporations, were filed yesterday in Albany by William L. Ransom, counsel to the Public Service Commission. The limitation in the present law was the result of efforts to prevent business corporations from manipulating the stock of public utility concerns for private advantage.

Mr. Ransom said that similar bills had appeared in the Legislature every year for a long period, the excuse for them being statements that their sole purpose wa sto strengthen small companies in scattered communities in the rural districts. The briefs declare that if this were the only reason for the bills their form should be materially changed. If the bills were signed by the Governor, the public service companies would pass out of the control of the commission, it was declared, and holding companies would have a free hand in exploiting them.

Advertising Men Leave for St. Louis

Two hundred advertising men of this city will leave the Grand Central Station at 5 o'clock this afternoon on a special train to attend the convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, which opens in St. Louis Sunday afternoon with an address by Hiram Johnson of California, and closes Thursday afternoon with another by Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo. The train will lie over in Detroit Friday night, when the New York delegates will be entertained by the advertising men of that city, a feature being an automobile trip through the beautiful lake front suburbs of the City of the Straits.

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS, FRANKLIN County, Ohio.—NEWTON J. CATROW, Plaintiff, vs. THE COLUMBUS, DELAWARE & MARION RAILWAY COMPANY, et al., Defendants.—No. 57,412.—Notice. SPECIAL MASTER COMMISSIONER'S SALE.

Pursuant to a judgment and decree of the Common Pleas Court of Franklin County, Ohio, entered May 4th, 1917, in Cause Numbered 57,412, entitled Newton J. Catrow, plaintiff, vs. The Columbus, Delaware & Marion Railway Company, et al., defendants, the undersigned, Eli M. West, Special Master Commissioner appointed by the court herein for the purpose of this sale, will offer for sale at public auction at the office of The Columbus, Delaware & Marion Railway Company at 100 West Gay Street, in the city of Columbus, Franklin County, Ohio, on the 11th day of June, 1917, at 10 o'clock A. M., the following described property, to wit:

All of the property of said The Columbus, Delaware & Marion Railway Company located in the counties of Franklin, Delaware and Marion, in the State of Ohio, and described in the mortgage or deed of trust of said Company as follows, to wit:

"All its railways, power houses, sub-stations, transmission lines, cars and equipment of every kind, and rights, privileges and franchises now owned or which may hereafter be acquired, and all and singular the real estate, lands, tenements and hereditaments of every name and nature which it now owns or may hereafter acquire; its tracks, road-bed and right of way, switches, bridges, culverts, poles and wires, overhead electrical construction, car houses, shops, boilers, engines, tools and supplies, dynamos, generators and electrical plants of every name and nature, electrical motors and motor cars, trailers, snow ploughs, wagons and other apparatus which it now owns or may hereafter acquire, and all and singular the tolls, earnings, income, revenues, rents, issues and profits from whatever source at any time derived. It is the true intent of the parties hereto that this indenture shall convey all the property, real and personal, of whatsoever kind, name or description now owned or that may hereafter be acquired and owned by said Railway Company. Also any and all other property of any kind, including bonds and other securities, claims and stocks which may from time to time hereafter be conveyed and mortgaged and pledged and delivered or by writing of any kind assigned or transferred to the Trustee hereunder by said Railway Company or by any one with the written consent of the said Railway Company."

Said property includes street railways now operated in the city of Marion, Marion County, Ohio, and Delaware, Delaware County, Ohio; the electric light, heat and power properties now being operated in the city and County of Marion, Ohio; the interurban electric railroad property extending from the end of Summit Street in the city of Columbus, Franklin County, Ohio, through the counties of Franklin, Delaware and Marion to the intersection of David and Center Streets, in the city of Marion, Marion County, Ohio, the power house property located at Stratford, Delaware County, Ohio, and includes the electric light, heat and power and the street and interurban railway businesses as a going concern, together with all the property, real and personal, tangible and intangible, including accounts receivable and cash in the custody, possession or control of Eli M. West, Receiver herein, or to which he is entitled, and which shall, up to the time of the sale to be made hereunder, come into the custody, possession or control of Eli M. West, Receiver herein, or to which he may at the time of such sale be entitled, and embraces the entire trust estate.

Said property shall be sold free and clear of all incumbrances, except that same shall be sold subject to, but the purchaser shall not assume the mortgage claims of The Cleveland Trust Company as Trustee under the mortgage or deed of trust of The Columbus, Delaware & Marion Electric Railroad Company, to The Western Reserve Trust Company, Trustee, dated May 1st, 1901, and subject to, but the purchaser does not assume the mortgage claims of The Guaranty Trust Company of New York, as trustee under the mortgage or deed of trust of The Marion Railway, Light & Power Company to The Standard Trust Company of New York, Trustee, dated October 27th, 1904, and subject to, but the purchaser does not assume the mortgage claims of The Guaranty Trust Company of New York as trustee under the mortgage or deed of trust of The Columbus Northern Railway, Power & Equipment Company to The Standard Trust Company of New York, trustee, dated October 24th, 1904, and subject to, but the purchaser does not assume the lien, if any, (which is not determined by the court) of a certain mortgage or deed of trust of The Columbus, Delaware & Marion Electric Railroad Company to The Standard Trust Company of New York, trustee, dated October 24th, 1904, and subject to, and the purchaser shall assume all claims for damages against the Receiver arising from the operation of said property by the Receiver herein, as the same may be hereafter adjudicated by this court.

Said property has been appraised as an entirety as a going concern at the sum of $2,000,000, less the amount remaining unpaid on the claims or obligations secured by said aforesaid deeds of trust, amounting at the date of appraisement May 8th, 1917, to the sum of $1,582,505.14, and less said damage claims estimated at the sum of $50,000.00, making the total deduction at $1,632,505.14, and leaving the difference between said total appraised value and the claims to which said property is sold subject, the sum of $367,494.86.

Terms of said sale shall be cash.

Said property shall be sold as an entirety for not less than the sum of $250,000, being the upset price which has been fixed by the court, and being not less than two-thirds of said net appraised value.

Any purchaser, for the purpose of making settlement or payment for the property purchased, shall be entitled to use and apply any bonds and any matured and unpaid coupons secured by said deed of trust of The Columbus, Delaware & Marion Railway Company by presenting such bonds and coupons in order that there may be credited as paid thereon the sums applicable to the payment thereof out of the net proceeds of the same after making the deductions which this court shall make from such net proceeds; and such purchaser shall thereupon be credited on account of the purchase price, payable by him, with the sums applicable out of such net proceeds to the payment of and credited on the bonds and coupons as presented.

And at such sale any bondholder may bid for, and purchase said property and may make payment therefor as aforesaid, and upon compliance with the terms of sale, shall hold, retain and dispose of said property without further accountability.

Persons desiring to bid at said sale shall, prior to the sale, deposit with the said Special Master Commissioner a check in the sum of $50,000.00, duly certified by a solvent bank, or shall pay the Special Master Commissioner in cash the sum of $50,000.00 as a deposit, and no persons who have not made such deposit shall be permitted to bid at said sale. The deposit made by the successful bidder, shall be held by the Special Master Commissioner as a payment upon account of the purchase price, and the remaining deposits shall forthwith, after said sale, be returned to the respective depositors.

ELI M. WEST,
Special Master Commissioner.

A New Gray Goods Record.

What is thought to be a new record for contract deliveries of gray goods was established in the local market yesterday, when business was closed on 36-inch sheetings for shipments running through the first five months of 1918. Some of these shipments will therefore be made about a year hence. The seller was unwilling to give out the constructions or prices for publication, but the figures paid for the goods were said to be "top."

Specially Designed Clothing.

A mill salesman told of a merchant tailor who is making quite a hit by providing certain features in the garments he makes that his customers like. This tailor's patronage is composed mostly of those in a few particular branches of trade, and he has specialized on pockets. There is a long narrow pocket for the man who must have a receptacle for an ever ready pencil. For the man who must carry a rule there is another pocket built to fit the rule. In the same way, a man having a preference for a particular sort of wallet gets the pocket where he wants it and just the right size.

Staples for the Time Being.

During the unsettled period that has followed the declaration of war, trade in general is finding a greater demand for staple merchandise. This in substance was the statement yesterday of a resident buyer. He said that, until the public becomes used to war-time conditions, there will not be much call for goods of a novelty character. "After we have been familiar with khaki for some months," he added, "the reaction toward fancy goods and luxuries will be just as marked as the tendency toward staple merchandise is now. The period of transition should come about some time in the late Fall or next Winter."

Bleached Goods Demand Active.

With well-known brands of bleached cottons now held at record levels as a result of the remarkable rise in these cloths in the gray, buyers are said to be taking goods as fast as they can get the orders accepted. It is no longer a question of the seller's selling goods to the buyer, but of the buyer's "selling" his needs to the seller. The 15-cent price very recently put on "Fruit of the Loom" 4-4 bleached goods, which is 3 cents a yard above the highest figure quoted in the 1907 boom period and the highest quotation on the goods since the civil war, is already a thing of the past, and orders are being taken "at value." Announcements of advances of a cent a yard on other well-known brands are now almost daily occurrences.

Making Another Spring Drive.

With sport hats for the better class of trade killed off either by use at the Winter resorts or by too early showings in this part of the country, caterers to the millinery whims of wealthy women are now making a play on felt shapes for athletic wear. These are among the felt things seen in shops of this kind by the "observer" for the Retail Millinery Association of America: White sailors, white tams, white and navy sailors, (combination,) white mushroom shapes interlaced with navy ribbon, and mushroom sailors with felt crowns and lisere brims in self or contrasting colors. Tailored velour hats are shown also in gold. Copenhagen blue, and shadow lawn green. All of these styles are reported to be selling.

Almost Tired of Seeing Checks.

One of the best-known manufacturers of women's high-grade dresses in the local trade said yesterday that collections are the best he has seen in the last five years. On the other hand, immediate business is so quiet with him that he has almost reached the point where he would rather see an order come in than a check. Despite the immediate dullness, the manufacturer in question is looking forward to the best Fall business in years. He cites as one of his reasons the "clean" stocks with which ready-to-wear departments all over the country will go into the new season as a result of the sacrifices the weather has forced them to make on Spring goods, and which have brought active buying by consumers whenever the sun has been out for an hour or two in succession. A second reason advanced is that there will be plenty of money left in the hands of consumers after the Liberty Loan is completed.

Printcloths Have a Good Day.

It did not take buyers long to recover from the influence of the holiday, and the result was further active trading in the gray goods market yesterday. Printcloths again were more or less in the centre of the stage, sales of about all the constructions given below having been made for deliveries to the end of the year at the prices given. Nearby goods are now practically impossible to obtain from first hands, and second hands are said to be offering them sparingly when they let them go at all. The result is that spot and nearby cloths are carrying a premium of a quarter of a cent a yard. Notable among the day's business were contract sales of 39-inch 80 squares at 12¼ cents; 72-76s at 12 cents; 68-72s at 11 cents, and 38½-inch 64-60s at 9¼ cents. Sheetings and other coarse goods also were active at prices that, if they are not actually new high records, are very close to that point. Closing prices on printcloths were:

39-inch, 68-72s	11c	38½-inch, 60-52s	8¼c
39-inch, 56-44s	7½c	38½-inch, 60-48s	8c
38½-inch, 64-64s	9½c	27-inch, 64-60s	*6½c

BUSINESS NOTES.

A meeting of the National Knit Goods Selling Agents' Association will be held at the Arkwright Club this afternoon at 3 o'clock. Several committees are expected to report on work accomplished since the last meeting.

Cooper & Grapes, manufacturers of suits and coats, will occupy new quarters at 302 Fifth Avenue on June 10. They are now located at 145 West Twenty-eighth Street.

Advances of a cent a yard were announced yesterday on the following Wamsutta 4-4 bleached goods by Watts, Stebbins & Co. of this city: CXX, CX/S, jeans, nightrobes, ICT twill, cambric, nainsook, longcloth, percales, and Burleigh longcloth.

Samuel Eiseman has been elected President of the corporation of Samuel Eiseman & Co., the other officers being as follows: Vice Presidents—Howard H. Vogel and Alfred S. Eiseman; Treasurer—Arthur L. Selig, and Secretary—Arthur C. Wolff. The officers, together with Robert Rosenthal make up the Board of Directors. The business was started by Mr. Eiseman in 1881 under the firm name of Eiseman Brothers. The name of Samuel Eiseman & Co. was assumed in 1898 and the business was incorporated recently in this State.

U. S. DISTRICT COURT, SOUTHERN District of New York.—Bankruptcy.—No. 23,410.—NOTICE is given that MARGARET A. COLGAN, a bankrupt, has applied for a discharge from all her debts. Creditors and parties interested are ordered to attend before this Court in Post Office Building, Manhattan, New York, on Monday, July 2nd, 1917, at 10:30 A. M., there to show cause why discharge should not be granted.

SEAMAN MILLER,

BUY A LIBERTY BOND

To the American Citizen

Liberty Bond—

Do you individually feel that your Government does not need, now, the fifty or one hundred dollars which you might loan? Do you feel it is too small a sum to count? Are you waiting for some one else with more money to subscribe for you?

Without Your Money—

the money of the average American Citizen taken in the aggregate — your Government cannot carry on this War in the defense of the Liberty for which we have always fought. You must realize that you have most of the money in this country.

The big institutions, the industries and the men of wealth who have purchased these bonds, have done so

BECAUSE

Patriotism so dictated;
The security is the best;
The salability is quick.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Prices React Shortly Before the Close After a Vigorous Advance.

The stock market opened yesterday with every appearance of the beginning of a new period of high records. For most of the session its strength bore out the early promise, but the final hour saw reactions sufficient to wipe out a large part of the gains. Before that time Steel common moved up to 136⅝, which compared with its previous high level at 135, but the close was made at 134⅛, at which figure the stock showed a net gain of only ⅝. A number of the specialties made very substantial gains, among them Industrial Alcohol, Tobacco Products, Superior Steel, Barrett Company and American Tobacco. The automobile issues declined, Chandler dropping 2 points and General Motors 2½, with the other issues selling under Tuesday's final figures. Traders paid less attention to the rumors of the proposed tax on cars and more to the reports from steel centres of a falling off in the purchase of steel for automobiles. It is understood that a number of the leading makers are converting their plants in order to be able to devote a larger proportion of their capacity in the future to the manufacture of automobile trucks. One of the largest plants expects to end the production of pleasure cars as soon as parts on hand are used up. The war promises to bring a large increase in the demand for trucks for use in Europe.

The hope was expressed in promient banking circles yesterday that indications of the success of the Government bond offering will shortly be so marked that Congress will look more favorably upon the suggestion that it reduce the share of the estimated year's expenditures to be borne by taxation and increase that provided for through the sale of bonds. The men who pay the largest income taxes, and who for that reason can hardly be credited with holding entirely disinterested views, think that the Government should effect the increase in surtax more gradually in order to allow a time for the readjustment of the individual program. There was also heard yesterday vigorous criticism of the suggestion that as a base for computing the average profits from which to figure excess profits for taxation the Government may go back prior to 1914. It is argued that business has so completely changed since the outbreak of the war that in many cases companies have been practically reborn and that it would not be fair to exclude the first two years of war from any series of years designed to establish a fair average.

LONDON MARKET IS FIRM.

American Securities Are Dull Throughout the Day.

LONDON, May 31.—Money was more plentiful and easier today. Discount rates were quiet. Petrograd exchange closed weak.

The investment and industrial sections of the Stock Exchange were firm and hardening on the assumption that a portion of the £40,000,000 distributed as a war loan dividend will be reinvested.

Foreign issues were steady and Spanish and Brazilian bonds had a better tone. Shipping shares were in good demand. Peninsular & Oriental and Union Steamship Company of New Zealand were firm on the amalgamation of the two companies. Russian bonds and mine and oil shares were weak, and American securities ruled dull throughout the day.

Lehigh Valley's April Earnings.

For the month of April the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company reports operating revenues of $4,092,017, an increase of $400,016, and a net operating income of $769,090, a decrease of $255,290. For the four months ended April 30, the net operating income amounted to $2,045,053, a decrease of $1,415,394 compared with 1916.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Deposit of Government Funds.

Just as the banks which invested in Treasury certificates of indebtedness have received part of the proceeds of their purchases as Government deposits, so it is expected that the redeposit of the funds received in payment of subscriptions to the Liberty Loan will be governed by the size of the subscriptions filed by each bank. With the expectation that the larger the subscription the larger the deposit, it is understood that large private banking houses will adopt the policy of filing subscriptions collected by them through banks in which they are interested. In this way these private bankers will aid their affiliated institutions in getting larger deposits.

Falling Off in New Financing.

Owing to the concentrated efforts of all bankers and banking institutions to push the Liberty Loan, there was a substantial decrease last month in new financing of railroad and industrial corporations. The total, according to The Journal of Commerce figures, was $48,320,000, compared with $192,000,000 in May, 1916. Of the total $15,305,000 was for railroads, and $33,015,000 for industrial companies. Last year railroad financing amounted to $91,000,000, and the industrial concerns issued securities amounting to $101,000,000. For the five months ended May 31 new financing operations aggregated $887,000,000, as against $1,184,500,000 for the same period last year.

A Happy Decision.

Stockholders of the Lehigh Valley Railroad who elected in 1912 to take stock of the Lehigh Valley Coal Sales Company, instead of a 10 per cent. cash dividend have had no cause to regret their decision. Yesterday the Coal Sales Company Directors declared a cash dividend of 30 per cent., which holders of the shares may use in paying for new stock at par. Three years ago a 25 per cent. cash dividend was ordered under similar terms and all along the stockholders have been getting 10 per cent. dividends annually. The new stock issue will put into the hands of the public practically all the company's $10,000,000 authorized shares. At its formation, the railroad stockholders received an offer of $6,060,800, and the second issue brought the total up to $7,575,225.

$100 Steel and $50 Iron.

Only a little more strength is needed in steel prices to lift the average quotation of a group of the leading products to $100 a ton. The sharp rise of tank plates and Bessemer billets at Pittsburgh this week helped to raise eight major products, whose course is followed by Dow, Jones & Co., to an average price of $97.97 per ton. Six months ago many iron makers were skeptical of predictions that pig iron would go close to $50 a ton, and there were steelmakers who thought talk of $100 steel was the offspring of a fevered imagination. Both predictions have already come close to realization and the promise of higher and higher quotations is not yet dissipated.

Zinc Prices and Earnings.

The decline in the price of zinc in recent months was reflected in the March quarter's figures of the Butte & Superior Mining Company. Profits in the quarter amounted to $1,061,020, against $2,309,068 in the last three months of 1916 and $3,554,939 in the March quarter of last year. The average price of zinc in the March quarter this year was 9.59 cents a pound, compared with 9.75 cents in the preceding quarter and 16.1 cents in the March quarter, 1916. The company's major production is of zinc, although it was formed to mine copper, and tremendous earnings were made in 1915 and the forepart of 1916, when the metal was in unusual demand for war purposes.

The Dividends Off Steel Common.

Steel common will be relieved of the 4¼ per cent. quarterly and extra dividend today, and a new influence enters the immediate speculative situation in respect to the shares. Never before has Steel been "ex" so large an amount at any one time, and the discussion of the possible effect occupied many traders yesterday. The heavy buying and strong upward movement of the stock to a new high record of 136⅝ in the fore part of the session seemed to indicate that considerable ninth-hour short covering was put through. Timid shorts were not anxious to pay out so large an amount to the holders of the stock they sold with the market displaying so much vigor. Steel should open today 4¼ points under yesterday's close if the price is affected by nothing except the subtraction of the dividends. The rapidity with which Steel and other active issues sold down in yesterday's late trading persuaded the bears that something more than the dividends would be marked off in the early transactions. The bulls, intrenched in their opinion that the Steel stocks have a lot of "kick" in them yet, professed indifference as to what might occur today.

HOCKING VALLEY EARNINGS.

Gross Receipts for 1916 $8,200,000, an Increase of 27 Per Cent.

The Hocking Valley Railway Company, which is controlled through ownership of a majority of its capital stock by the Chesapeake & Ohio, made public yesterday its annual report for the twelve months ended Dec. 31 last. In this period gross earnings were $8,200,000, an increase of $1,758,000, or 27 per cent. Operating expenses increased $1,525,000, or more than 37 per cent., and net earnings $233,000, or 10 per cent. The year's income available for interest payments was $2,588,000, or $1,376,000 above the requirements. The company paid dividends totaling 4 per cent., and had a surplus of $936,000 remaining from the year's operations.

The Hocking Valley earned a return of 6.75 per cent. upon its investment in road and equipment last year, against 4.56 per cent. in 1915, and 3.68 per cent. in 1914. For the last five years the company has averaged 5.57 per cent.

PENNSYLVANIA INCOME LESS

A decrease of more than $1,000,000 in operating income for the month of April is reported by the Pennsylvania System. The decrease in earnings for the four months of the current year compared with corresponding period in 1916 totals $8,430,173. The reason for the falling off in earnings is that the increase in expenses has been so much greater than the increase in operating revenues. Thus, while in April, the operating revenues were larger by $4,000,000 compared with April, 1916, the operating expenses were larger by more than $5,000,000.

The increase in revenues for the first four months of the year amounted to $10,950,334, while the increase in expenses totaled $19,410,507.

WESTERN STATES OBJECT.

Railroad Commissions Would Increase Passenger, Not Freight, Rates

WASHINGTON, May 31.—Contending that freight is paying a higher proportionate rate than passenger traffic, representatives of Western State Railroad Commissions today urged the Interstate Commerce Commission to raise passenger fares instead of granting the 15 per cent. general interest in freight rates for which the railroads are applying.

Data prepared by the commission showing earnings, expenditures, dividends, and depreciation of the roads were filed, with intent to show that the roads are in fair financial condition, with business on the increase and credit unimpaired.

Shippers' witnesses assert that for carriers west of the Mississippi and north of the Missouri Rivers, no emergency exists requiring a rate increase.

DIVIDEND BY FEDERAL SUGAR

Directors Declare Distribution of 1¾ Per Cent. on Common Stock.

The Federal Sugar Refining Company resumed yesterday the payment of dividends upon the common stock, the Directors declaring a distribution of 1¾ per cent. on June 15 to holders of record May 29. Claus A. Spreckels, the President, in his letter to stockholders last week regarding the retention of the present management, called attention to the fact that the company was in much improved condition and that the payment of dividends could be resumed. The last time the Federal Sugar declared a dividend was on Oct. 30, 1913. Dividends were begun on the issue on Feb. 1, 1912, at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum and were paid quarterly to and including Oct. 30, 1913.

BUY A LIBERTY BOND

Liberty Bond—

Do you individually feel that your Government does not need, now, the fifty or one hundred dollars which you might loan? Do you feel it is too small a sum to count? Are you waiting for some one else with more money to subscribe for you?

Without Your Money—

the money of the average American Citizen taken in the aggregate — your Government cannot carry on this War in the defense of the Liberty for which we have always fought. You must realize that you have most of the money in this country.

The big institutions, the industries and the men of wealth who have purchased these bonds, have done so

BECAUSE

Patriotism so dictated;
The security is the best;
The interest return is fair;
The salability is quick.

New Year's Day 1777

It was then that Robert Morris, the financier, went from house to house to borrow money to uphold the patriot cause. Without money the fight for Liberty and Independence would have been lost.

Today, the Liberty Loan is making its appeal to every American freeman who would aid in upholding the rights of Democracy throughout the world.

If the freeman of today fails to subscribe to this Loan, he is aiding the cause of that nation, which, in its ruthless warfare, spares neither man, woman or child, and refuses even to recognize as sacred the insignia of mercy of the Red Cross Flag.

COTTON IRREGULAR

Trading on an Evening-Up Basis Prior to the Government Report.

The cotton market yesterday was nervous and irregular, and trading seemed to be largely in the way of evening-up for over the Government report which is to be published at 11 o'clock this morning. The opening was firm, with some positions making new high records for the season, owing to the strength of Liverpool over the local holiday and the appearance of additional low conditions figures. It met heavy realizing, however, and after selling at 21.40, October contracts broke to 21.14, closing at 21.20. The general list closed irregular at a net advance of 11 to 24 points.

Two private crop reports were published, one showing a condition of 70 and a decrease of 2.6 in acreage. The other made the condition 69.3 and the reduction in acreage 8 per cent. There were rumors of a third report placing the condition at 70.9. Private reports issued during the last week have indicated a condition of 71.8 on the average, while they have ranged from 2.6 to 5 per cent. in estimates of reduced acreage. The Government report this morning will give the condition of the crop as of May 25. No official estimate of this year's acreage will be made until July 2, but today's report will give final figures on the acreage picked and planted last year and also give the amount of lint cotton produced per acre last season. This latter data will be used in connection with official crop indications during the balance of the season.

Exports for the day were 10,535 bales, making 4,874,486 so far this season.

The New York Cotton Exchange has decided to close on Tuesday, Registration Day.

WHEAT.

The wheat market was again under pressure of liquidation of outstanding contracts and sentiment was bearish owing to favorable crop advances and a poor demand for cash articles. Prices in Chicago sold down to new low records for the movement which represented net losses of 66c to 81½c from the high point of the season, in force when restricted operations were decided upon. The demand for cash wheat was very slow in practically all the markets and prices were lower, with losses of 4½c ot 9c in Minneapolis, and 10c to 12c in Kansas City. Exporters were out of the market, and the impression prevailed that little export buying is likely to take place until the new crop wheat is available.

RYE—Market, easy; No. 2 Western, $2.35, cost, insurance and freight, New York.

CORN.

Continued cool weather over the northern half of the corn belt and a prevailing belief that the market had been oversold on the recent decline caused an early upturn of 1⅝c to 3c in the corn market, with shorts disposed to cover. When the buying movement had spent itself, however, commission houses sold freely and the market developed weakness, selling down 2⅝c to 7c from the top and closing with a partial rally at 1⅝c to 3⅝c net decline. The cash demand was slow, with rumors of reselling by exporters. In the local cash market No. 2 yellow corn was quoted at $1.65½, cost, insurance, and freight New York.

OATS.

The rains over the West were looked upon as highly favorable for the new oats crop, and after a slight early advance prices developed weakness, closing 1½c to 1⅝c net lower. The local cash market was easier; standard quoted at 67½@68½c; No. 2 white, 69c; No. 3 white, 67@68c; No. 4 white, 66½@67c; fancy clipped white, 70@71c; ordinary clipped white, 69@70c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

The provision market was weak in the early part of the season in sympathy with the decline in grain, but rallied a little near the close on covering and support from packers. Clearances were heavy again, and some confidence was established among traders by the recent Government inquiry, although outside speculative interest was rather light. Chicago receipts were 14,000 hogs with 15,000 expected on Friday. Kansas City had 6,000 and Omaha 7,000, and the West 75,000 hogs.

COTTONSEED OIL.

Operations in the market for cottonseed oil were of limited volume, total sales amounting to only 10,600 barrels. Prices early were comparatively firm, owing to a scattered demand, but late in the session there were increased offers as a result of the weakness in grain and lard, and final quotations were 1 to 5 points net lower. COFFEE.

The coffee market fluctuated within a range of 4 or 5 points yesterday. About half the business was in the way of switching, and, including the Exchange sales, amounted to 35,750 bags. Closing prices were 1 to 3 points lower. The local spot market was dull and unchanged at 10¼c for Rio 7s and 10½c for Santos 4s. Range of prices:

SUGAR.

The market for sugar futures was comparatively quiet, total transactions amounting to only 4,200 tons. The opening was pretty steady and prices showed advances of 1 to 2 points for the active positions on covering and a little demand from outside sources, but toward the close offerings increased, and under selling by leading Cuban interests and liquidation by commission houses prices eased off, closing at a net decline of 2 to 4 points.

The market for refined sugar was steady and unchanged at 7.50@8c for fine granulated. Business was light, although it was said that old business was gradually being cleared up and that all refiners would soon be in a position to make new commitments more freely. The local market for raw sugar was very quiet, with buyers inclined to hold off and await developments. The undertone, however, was firm, and Cuban holders were not pressing supplies. On the basis of last sales, prices were quoted at 4⅞c for Cubas, cost and freight, equal to 5.96c for centrifugal and 5.98c for molasses.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts, two days, 15,398 packages. Weakness was shown at the opening, and before any business could be accomplished prices had declined fully ½c, in some cases a little more. The fresh creamery grades, which comprise the larger part of the offerings, showed the most weakness. Renovated held up fairly well, and ladles and packing stock in such small supply that values are firm. Creamery, higher than extras, per pound, 43½@44c; extras, (92 score,) 42½@43c; firsts, (88 to 91 score,) 41½@42c; seconds, (83 to 87 score,) 39½@41c; thirds, 38@39c; creamery, unsalted, higher than extras, 44½@45c; extras, 43½@44c; firsts, 42@43c; seconds, 40@41½c; State dairy, tubs, finest, 42@42½c; good to prime, 39½@41½c; common to fair, 35@39c; renovated, extras, 39½c; firsts, 38@39c; lower grades, 34@37½c; imitation creamery, firsts, 36@37c; ladles, current make, firsts, 35c; seconds, 34@34½c; lower grades, 32½@33½c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 33½c; No. 2, 33c; lower grades, 31@32½c.

EGGS.—Receipts two days, 35,117 cases. The tone of the market is still irregular. Trading on the whole was not active today, but buyers on the market are very particular and the demand is chiefly for very fancy eggs, offerings of which are moderate. Cost prices of many of the finest storage packings are fully up to and in instances higher than prompt selling values here. Medium and low grades are irregular and somewhat in buyers' favor. Fancy nearby eggs steady. Fresh gathered, extras, per dozen, 38½@39c; storage packed firsts, 37@38c; seconds, 36@36½c; fresh gathered, firsts, 36@37½c; seconds and lower grades, 32½@35½c; dirties, No. 1, 33½@34c; No. 2 and poorer, 30@33c; checks, good to choice, dry, 32½@33c; undergrades, 30@32c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby Western, hennery whites, fine to fancy, 39@40c; ordinary to good, 38@38½c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 37½@39c; Western and Southern, gathered whites, 37@38½c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby, hennery browns, 38½@39½c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 36@38c. Duck eggs, Indian Runner, 42c; Baltimore, 38@40c; Western and prime Southern, 36@38c.

THE WHEELING AND LAKE ERIE RAILROAD COMPANY PLAN AND AGREEMENT OF REORGANIZATION AND REORGANIZATION SYNDICATE

To Holders of Certificates of Deposit of Central Trust Company of New York, as Depositary under said Plan and Agreement, for First Preferred Stock, Second Preferred Stock and Common Stock of The Wheeling and Lake Erie Railroad Company, who have availed themselves of the advance on account of the assessment on their stock, and

To Holders of Syndicate Instalment Receipts issued by Central Trust Company of New York in respect of Wabash Pittsburgh Terminal Railway Certificates of Interest specifying the above-mentioned stock:

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that holders of the Certificates of Deposit above mentioned who availed themselves of the advance of $15 for each share of such stock represented by their Certificates of Deposit on account of the assessment on such stock pursuant to said Plan and Agreement, and holders of the above-mentioned Instalment Receipts, must pay, on or before June 8, 1917, the amounts of said advances and the final instalment due on their Instalment Receipts respectively, with interest thereon at the rate of 6% per annum from December 8, 1916, to the date of payment.

Failure to make such payment within the time aforesaid renders the interests of defaulting holders of such Certificates of Deposit subject to sale to satisfy the advances to them, and forfeits the interest of defaulting holders of said Instalment Receipts.

Dated, New York, May 29, 1917.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

United States Steel common established a new high record price on the Consolidated Stock Exchange of 136¾. More than 91,000 shares changed hands. Profit taking in heavy volume brought about a sharp setback in the late afternoon, with the stock closing at 134¼, its lowest for the day. The market, as a whole, was strong early, but there was a general reaction with Steel toward the close.

TO THE CREDITORS AND STOCKHOLDERS and all other persons interested in the affairs of the CASUALTY COMPANY OF AMERICA:

Notice is hereby given:

I. That the undersigned, Jesse S. Phillips, as Superintendent of Insurance of the State of New York, has been directed, by order of the Supreme Court, this day made and entered in the office of the Clerk of the County of New York, to take possession of the property and liquidate the business of the Casualty Company of America, pursuant to the provisions of Section 63 of the Insurance Law, and that the undersigned has, pursuant to said section, duly appointed Moses James Wright, a Special Deputy Superintendent of Insurance, as his agent to liquidate the business of the said corporation.

II. That all persons having any unsatisfied claim or demand of any character against the said the Casualty Company of America are hereby required to file a written statement thereof, verified under oath, with the said Moses James Wright, Special Deputy Superintendent of Insurance in charge of the liquidation of said company, at his office, No. 68 William Street, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on or before the 15th day of August, 1917.

III. That all stockholders of said company are hereby required to file the respective certificates of stock held by them with the said Moses James Wright, Special Deputy Superintendent of Insurance, at his said office on or before the said 15th day of August, 1917. Proper receipts therefor will be given.

IV. That the claims presented against the said company will be determined, the creditors of the company paid and its assets distributed, without other or further notice to persons failing to comply with the above directions.

V. That all communications, relating to the said company, should be addressed to the said Moses James Wright, Special Deputy Superintendent of Insurance, at his said office, No. 68 William Street, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York.

JESSE S. PHILLIPS,
Superintendent of Insurance.

Dated, New York City, May 4, 1917.

$4,000,000 MORTGAGE OBTAINED BY TRINITY

The Only One on Any of Church Corporation's Valuable Holdings.

DEBT WILL BE REFUNDED

Large Deficit for Past Year to be Met by New Policy of Making Properties Pay Better.

A new departure in its finances was made yesterday by the Trinity Church Corporation when the Trustees obtained a mortgage loan of $4,000,000 on some of its most valuable properties in the lower commercial district west of Broadway. As announced from the office of the controller of the corporation, it is the only mortgage on any of its valuable holdings on Manhattan Island.

The loan, which was obtained from the Mutual Life Insurance Company, is due in five years and bears interest at 4½ per cent. The money is to be used in refunding the floating indebtedness of the corporation. In the annual report issued a week ago by Trinity Church, the Rev. Dr. William Manning, rector of Trinity, called attention to the large deficit for the last year, saying that the net income, together with offerings of the people, was insufficient to meet the demands for the religious, educational and charitable work of the church. The liability of the corporation for notes payable was placed at $4,350,000. In the controller's statement, it was said that the floating indebtedness of Trinity Corporation was incurred mainly in the erection of new business buildings, and heretofore this item has been financed through the medium of bank loans, but the new arrangement was believed to be wise in view of the existing international situation.

None of the properties covered by the blanket mortgage is used for religious or school purposes. They include over twenty large parcels, most of which have been improved within the last few years with modern loft buildings and warehouses for the wholesale trade. Most of them are within the area west of Varick Street from Desbrosses to King Street, in the lower Greenwich Village area. The largest single plot is the entire block bounded by Spring, Vandam, Varick, and Hudson Streets, the greater part being covered with the big buildings used by the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company. Other parcels are the eight-story loft building at 181 and 187 Hudson Street, the seven-story loft at 12 to 16 Vestry Street, running through to Canal Street; the six-story loft at 16 Desbrosses Street, the seven-story building on the southeast corner of Greenwich and Vandam Street, occupied by the New York Edison Company; an eight-story printing building on the block front on the west side of Hudson Street, between Clarkson and Leroy Streets; a five-story warehouse at the northeast corner of Spring and Hudson Streets, an eight-story loft on the east side of Hudson Street, between Vandam and Charlton Streets, and other warehouse properties on Greenwich, Watt, King, and Clarkson Streets. The only Broadway parcel in the list is the plot on the northwest corner of Murray Street, occupied by the fourteen-story Postal Telegraph Building.

The giving of so large a mortgage to wipe out Trinity's floating indebtedness, which has been increasing for many years, is part of the new policy inaugurated a few weeks ago, when William H. Wheelock, Vice President of the Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown realty firm, was made general manager of all the Trinity properties, with the idea of making them more remunerative. As existing leases expire, it is the intention of the Trustees to sell off old properties or improve them so that they may bring in a more adequate return. Several plots in Varick and Charlton Streets were sold a few days ago. Trinity's $4,000,000 mortgage was recorded in the Register's office yesterday, Frederick L. Allen acting as the attorney.

Benjamin Strong Returns to Work.

Benjamin Strong Governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, returned to his desk yesterday. He had been away for a year, the Directors having granted him a leave of absence for that period on account of ill-health. Mr. Strong is feeling well now, and said he was glad to be back "on the job." A few weeks ago, upon the arrival in this country of Lord Cunliffe, Governor of the Bank of England, Mr. Strong made a hurried trip from Denver to New York, but he remained in this city only a few days.

FOR BUYERS.

Country buyers should consider the advisability of replenishing stores by a small advertisement on the Business Page of The New York Times. The contents of a prepaid day lettergram detailing buyers' needs will be adjusted to form an advertisement appearing the next morning and read by thousands of wholesalers. Cost for this service is 50 cents for each line of six words.—Advt.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Several good apartment house transactions, the purchase by Armour & Co. of the block bounded by Tenth Avenue, Marginal, Fourteenth, and Fifteenth Streets for the erection of a great food distributing building, the recording of a $4,000,000 mortgage by Trinity on its lower west side property and a mortgage of $2,100,000 for fifty years on the Almy G. Gallatin estate properties, given by the executors—all combined to add a touch of activity and interest to the realty market yesterday. Among the Gallatin properties covered by the mortgage are 739-741, 813 and 890 to 896 Broadway.

Among the good west side deals was the sale of the nine-story apartment house at 250 West 104th Street, on a plot 75 by 100, between Broadway and West End Avenue, by the Bloomingdale Construction Company. It was purchased for investment, the buyer giving other property in part payment. The 104th Street house was held at $400,000. It is well rented. The deal was closed through Nassoit & Lanning and they will act as agents of the property.

Operator Buys $200,000 Heights Apartment House.

Frederick Brown, operator, purchased from Weil & Mayer the Hudson-Overlook, a six-story apartment house on the southeast corner of Pinehurst Avenue and 180th Street. The structure occupies a plot 100 by 102 and was held at $200,000. In exchange the buyer gave cash and two small properties.

Buys $375,000 Dyckman Apartments.

The six five-story apartment houses in the Dyckman section, on the southwest corner of Post Avenue and 204th Street, have been purchased by W. F. Kenny from Frederick F. French, who built them about a year ago. They are among the finest houses of their kind in that section and have been held at $375,000. They cover a plot of about seventeen lots, being 250 feet on Post Avenue and 200 feet on 204th Street.

In part payment the buyer gave a plot of six lots on Southern Boulevard, 200 feet south of 149th Street. Byrne & Baumann were the brokers in the deal. Clifford C. Roberts represented Mr. French as attorney, and Beardsley, Hemmens & Taylor represented the buyer.

Columbia College Realty Figures in Two Deals.

Daniel Birdsall & Co. have sold for the estate of Frances Livingston the five-story and basement building, 63 Barclay Street, extending through to 64 Park Place, and the property owned by the Trustees of Columbia College.

The purchaser is the C. L. Flaccus Glass Company, tenant of the store and basement, which will remodel the building and continue to occupy a portion of it for its own use.

Columbia has also leased 620 Fifth Avenue, through F. W. Sharp as broker, for a term of twenty-one years at an aggregate rental of $550,000, to Brazier & Co., who will conduct a hat shop for men and women. McKim, Mead & White are preparing plans for altering the structure.

$35,000 Deal on East Nineteenth St.

William A. White & Sons sold, in connection with Elem L. Bohanan, 134 East Nineteenth Street, a three-story and basement dwelling, on a lot 23 by 95, to a client for investment. The property has been held at $35,000.

Recent Buyers.

Patrick Carey is the buyer of the five-story apartment house on the northeast corner of 177th Street and St. Nicholas Avenue.

Bronx Sales.

J. Clarence Davies sold for Charles J. Crowley a plot of lots on the west side of Westchester Avenue, 25 feet south of Freeman Street, 76 by 112, with an L of 35 feet on Freeman Street. This plot lies opposite the proposed Whitlock Avenue station of the Lexington Avenue subway and also the station of the New York, New Haven & Hartford and Westchester & Boston Railroads.

Brooklyn.

The three-story store and dwelling at 3,295 Fulton Street, 20 by 95, has been purchased by Joseph Judas, who owns adjoining property, from Louis J. Becker. Eduoard C. Panitz was the broker. He has also sold for Fannie M. Sandberg, two-story dwelling 20 by 100 on the northeast corner of Enfield Street and Eldert Lane, for Edwin R. Struse, the two-story dwelling at 139 Wierfield Street, 18 by 100, to William Henry Miller, and the two-family house at 536 and 538 Glenmore Avenue, 50 by 100.

Long Island.

L'Ecluse, Washburn & Co. sold for Francis D. Jackson a fireproof house on a plot 150 by 200 at Plandome on Manhassett Bay to C. W. Harrison of New York. The property has been held at $21,000.

A. F. Mathews sold the following six-family brick houses: 1,864 Cornelia Street, Ridgewood, Brooklyn, held at $10,800, to Henry Burmaster; 1,866 Woodbine Street, Ridgewood, Brooklyn, held at $11,300, to C. L. Muller; 1,864 Woodbine Street, Ridgewood, held at $11,300, to John L. Witke; 67 Eighteenth Avenue, Long Island City, held at $12,000, to Mrs. Pauline F. Winters, and 77 Eighteenth Avenue, Long Island City, held at $12,500, to Eugene Walters.

The Jamaica Hillcrest Company sold at Jamaica to B. Lax, the house 40 by 100 on the south side of Wyckoff Place, 200 feet west of Hilldale Avenue, to D. Gunther, the house 40 by 100 feet on the southeast corner of Briarwood Road and Hillcrest Road, and to J. E. Tennis, the house on plot 100 by 100, on the north side of Briarwood Road, 160 feet west of Hilldale Avenue.

The New York County National Bank has sold through Lewis B. Preston, the plot at 174 Academy Street, Long Island City. It is two blocks from the Queens Borough Plaza. Giacinto Morfesi was the buyer.

M. Keenan purchased the property, 50 by 119, on the southeast corner of Boulevard and Grove Avenue, Rockaway Beach.

A. H. Ackerman sold to J. A. Lasher, 101 by 108, on the southeast corner of Channel Drive and Essex Avenue, Belle Harbor.

$35,000 Stamford Sale.

Fish & Marvin sold for Miss Florence Dean her Stamford property, on the West Hill Road, adjoining the Havemeyer estate, to William R. Knobloch of New York City. The property consists of thirty-five acres, with a large house and outbuildings. It was held at $35,000.

Factory Sale at Taunton, Mass.

The Miehle Printing Press and Manufacturing Company's plant at Taunton, Mass., has been sold by Joseph P. Day to Arthur H. Weed of Boston. It consists of about six acres. The new owner will use the plant for general manufacturing purposes.

Broadway and Fifty-seventh Street Motor Lease.

An important Broadway rental, in the automobile section, was closed through the Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company, who leased to the Kaufman-Morris Company, Eastern distributors for the Premier Motor Company and agents for the Peugeot car, the four-story building at the northeast corner of Broadway and Fifty-seventh Street. It covers a plot 54 on Broadway by 91 on the street. It was leased on a long term for Benjamin Eichberg and Joseph S. Joseph, who bought the property in 1905 for about $280,000. The new tenants will pay a rental of about $50,000 a year. At the northern end of the block, on the southeast corner of Fifty-eighth Street, is the twenty-story United States Rubber building.

Commercial Leases.

Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company leased for Edward C. Rice, Jr., 20 and 22 East Sixtieth Street to the Proudman Realty Company.

Slawson & Hobbs have leased for David Wright the property at 549 West Fifty-seventh Street.

William A. White & Sons leased for the estate of Henry Welsh the seven-story loft building at 18 Desbrosses Street, between Hudson and Greenwich Streets, for a term of years, to Archibald & Lewis Company.

Lakin & Dinkelspiel have leased the parlor store at 12 West Forty-fourth Street to Benjamin Baldinger, tailor.

The Rowantree-Schley Company has leased for the Bush Terminal Buildings Company to the Lamson & Hubbard Company of Boston 20,000 square feet at 327 to 335 East Twenty-ninth Street for the manufacture of men's hats. The same brokers have also leased for the Matthew H. Beers estate the store at 7 East Seventeenth Street, extending through to 10 East Eighteenth Street, to the Trorlicht-Duncker Carpet Company of St. Louis. William C. Walker's Sons represented the Beers estate.

Mortgage Loans Placed.

Leon S. Altmayer negotiated a first mortgage of $14,000 at 5 per cent. on 925 Third Avenue, a four-story and basement building, on lot 20 feet by 110 feet.

Rice & Hill have procured for the Broadway-John Street Corporation, Elias A. Cohen, President, a mortgage of $165,000 on the old Evening Post Building, at the southeast corner of Broadway and Fulton Street. This is a ten-story office building, on lot fronting 62 feet on Broadway by 160 feet on Fulton Street. The property is a Dutch Reformed Church leasehold, purchased by the Broadway-John Street Corporation about seven months ago.

It is being very extensively altered, nearly all of the altered space having already been rented from the plans. The building will show a gross rental of $150,000, an increase of approximately 50 per cent.

Hearing This Morning on Extension of Motor Bus Service.

The Board of Estimate and Apportionment will hold a public hearing at 10:30 this morning in the Council Chamber, City Hall, relative to the application for the extension of motor bus service in the upper section of Manhattan and other parts of the city.

From all indications the board will make a final disposition of this matter now on its calendar for the last four years at this hearing.

In addition to a large delegation from upper Manhattan that is expected to attend, representatives of the following organizations will also be present to urge the final disposition of this important transit relief question: Washington Heights Taxpayers' Association, Harlem Board of Commerce, Yorkville Association, Real Estate Owners of Twelfth and Nineteenth Wards, West End Association, Central Park Civic League, West Side Taxpayers' Association, Builders Association of Manhattan, Bronx Board of Trade, Broadway Association, City Club of New York, and the Fifth Avenue Association.

Public Hearing on Water Meters.

The Committee on General Welfare of the Board of Aldermen will hold a public hearing on Thursday, June 7, at 8 P. M. in the Local Board Room, Borough Hall, Third and Tremont Avenues, Bronx, in regard to the request of the Commissioner of Water Supply, Gas, and Electricity for authority to install water meters in apartment houses.

TO THE PUBLIC—

YOU WON'T GO!

With the consent of the Supreme Court, it's going to be sold at auction for whatever it will bring.

This statement is true, whether you believe it or not.

It's being sold by the trustees to carry out the provisions in the will.

The money goes to the heirs and the N. Y. Public Library.

IT'S A CHANCE FOR YOU TO MAKE MONEY OUT OF THEM.

It's splendid property—right on or near the new Subway line—property that should increase tremendously in value.

Real Estate is now at rock bottom;

nobody wants it—this is the time for people with brains to buy it. Every commodity has gone up—

Real Estate must go up too.

THESE LOTS ARE GOING TO BE SACRIFICED,
BUT WE HAVE GOT TO SELL THEM.

But never before one like this.

IT'S UP TO YOU—

Can you make a mistake—
By buying Lots at or near the Subway
On the direct line of the city's growth

CADILLACS.

EXCEPTIONAL USED CARS.

Some of the handsomest Cadillacs ever sent to us to be disposed of are now on exhibition on our show room floors. These cars have seen very little use, have been gone over mechanically and refinished so that they all have the appearance of being new.

A 1916 VICTORIA, 3-PASSENGER.

Cost $2,500 and has scarcely been used. Motor is perfect and absolutely noiseless. Is nicely equipped with shoes and has one extra mounted. Has been revarnished and looks brand new. Price $1,500.

A 1916 TOURING, 7-PASSENGER.

Model 53. Practically new. Used very little. Exceptional shoe equipment, extras, &c. If you are in the market for a real high class car see this immediately. Price complete, $1,590.

A 1915 TOURING, 7-PASSENGER.

Delivered 10 days before the 1916 Models were shown. This car has been used 8,000 miles and is like new. Has been looked over and refinished. A very handsome car. Price complete, with 1917 license numbers, $1,000.

A 1914 TOURING, 5-PASSENGER.

Used in a private family only in the Summer. Has been used less than 8,000 miles. Has just been refinished by Brewster and looks brand new. Motor and shoe equipment very exceptional. Is considered by those who know a real good bargain at $650.

A 1913 TOURING, 7-PASSENGER.

Nicely painted, good shoes, one extra. Makes an ideal family touring car or the real thing for the mountains. Is at the right price—$450.

A 1913 LIMOUSINE, 5-PASSENGER.

Property of a private family. Exceptional condition. Ready to be used immediately without spending a penny for anything. Is offered for sale at the right price—$475.

THE WEATHER

WASHINGTON, May 31.—The Western disturbance of the last two days is central tonight over eastern Lake Superior with diminished intensity and the attendant rain area during the last twenty-four hours covers the lake region, the Upper Mississippi and the Ohio Valleys, Tennessee, interior Alabama, and the South Atlantic States.

There is another disturbance, the fifth of the present series, over Central Texas with high pressure to the northward, accompanied by local rains in the Rocky Mountain region, Utah and Arizona, and with some snow in Southeastern Wyoming.

In New England and the Middle Atlantic States the weather was fair with high pressure and it was also fair in the Missouri Valley, the Western Gulf, the Plains, and the Pacific States.

Temperatures are still much below the seasonal average in the Rocky Mountain and east plateau regions, with a further decided fall since Wednesday night in Colorado. Elsewhere temperature changes were irregular with quite warm weather in the Gulf States.

There will be showers and thunder storms Friday in the eastern lower lake region and the Atlantic States, and probably on Friday night or Saturday in the Lower Ohio Valley, Western Tennessee, and the Eastern Gulf States. The weather will be fair Friday and Saturday in the upper lake and western lower lake region and the Upper Ohio Valley, and fair Saturday in the Atlantic States. Temperature changes will be unimportant.

Winds for Friday and Saturday along the North Atlantic Coast will be fresh south, increasing cloudiness, followed by showers Friday night; Middle Atlantic Coast, fresh south, showers by Friday night; South Atlantic Coast, moderate south, except east off the Southern Florida coast; thunder showers.

FORECASTS TO-DAY AND SATURDAY.

Eastern New York, New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania—Showers Friday. Saturday, fair.

Southern New England—Showers Friday or Friday night, warmer on mainland. Saturday, fair.

Western New York—Showers and cooler Friday. Saturday, fair.

Northern New England—Increasing cloudiness Friday, showers by night. Saturday, fair, except showers in Maine.

3 A. M.	61	55	4 P. M.	69	63
6 A. M.	60	51	6 P. M.	71	60
9 A. M.	63	57	9 P. M.	64	57
12 M.	66	61	11 P. M.	59	55

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 59; for the corresponding date last year it was 64; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 64.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 55; at 8 P. M. it was 58. Maximum temperature, 64 degrees at 1:15 P. M.; minimum, 51 degrees at 6 A. M. Humidity, 87 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 74 per cent. at 8 P. M.

The barometer at 8 A. M. yesterday registered 30.26 inches; at 8 P. M. it stood at 30.19 inches.

The Civil Service.

City.

Applications for mechanical engineer, Grade D, will be received until 4 P. M. on June 13. The subjects and weights of the examination are: Technical 5, experience 3, mathematics 2. A qualifying physical examination will be given. The duties are to perform engineering work in connection with power or heating plants, the mechanical equipment of buildings, or the design of machinery. Candidates must be at least 21 years of age on or before the closing date for the receipt of applications. The salary is from $1,800 to but not including $2,400 a year. There is one vacancy in the office of the President of Brooklyn at $1,800 a year.

United States.

The commission announces an examination for assistant chemist, for men only. Several vacancies at the Picatinny Arsenal, Dover, N. J., at $1,350 to $1,500 a year, and future vacancies requiring similar qualifications, at the Picatinny Arsenal or elsewhere, will be filled from this examination. During the present international situation the arsenals are working on a ten-hour basis, and as long as this situation exists the above salary will be increased by 30 per cent. There is an urgent need for chemists to fill the above vacancies, and as an insufficient number of eligibles have been obtained from recent examinations, qualified persons are urged to apply without delay. The duties will be the testing and analysis of explosives and the carrying on of some investigational work. Experience in the school or works laboratory in the testing, analysis, or manufacture of explosives is a very desirable but not an essential qualification. Competitors will not be required to report for examination at any place, but will be rated on physical ability, education, and experience. The applicant must show that he has graduated from a four years' course in chemistry or from a course including three years of chemistry in a college or university of recognized standing, including at least a full year's course in theoretical and practical organic chemistry, or that he is a senior student in such an institution and expects to graduate within three months from the date of making oath to the application. The names of senior students will not be certified for appointment until they have furnished proof of actual graduation. It is understood that some colleges have expressed willingness to graduate senior students upon their being offered appointment by the Government. Applicants must not have reached their forty-fifth birthday on the date of making oath to the application. Applications should be filed at the earliest possible date. They will be rated immediately upon the receipt and appointments made promptly. Further information may be obtained from the commission, Washington, D. C.

Education Notes.

The Professional Elementary Teachers' Association will hold a meeting at the World Building, Assembly Hall, at 8 P. M., on June 5. The facts with regard to the recent election of teacher-members to the Board of Retirement will be stated.

The Meeting of the Women Principals' Eligible List Association scheduled for today has been postponed to June 15.

Applications from men for license as Principal in a truant or parental school will be received until June 15. Applicants must be at least 25 years of age, but not more than 45, except that those who have been ten years in the supervising or teaching force of the public schools of this city may be regarded as eligible up to the age of 55 years. The present salary schedule for Principal of a parental school who is provided with lodging and maintenance is minimum salary $2,700; annual increase, conditioned upon satisfactory service, $200; maximum $3,500. There is a prospect of one vacancy in the Fall, and it is proposed to place upon the eligible list only those candidates, not exceeding five in number, who receive the highest ratings in the examination.

Applications will be received until June 21 from men and women for license as Medical Inspector of classes for the instruction of mentally subnormal pupils. There are at present two vacancies in this position. It is proposed to establish eligible lists, containing a limited number of names. The schedule of salaries is $1,800 for the first year of service and an annual increase of $100 until the maximum of $2,200 is reached, which shall be the salary for the fifth and succeeding years.

The Joint Committee of the Board of Education have decided not to insist that funds for new school buildings be granted, but to accept instead funds to put a large number of schools on the duplicate school or Gary plan. This report will probably be presented at next Wednesday's meeting of the Board of Education.

The State Military Census will be taken in the public schools of this city from June 11 to 25 inclusive.

FIRST OREGON SHEEP TO ARRIVE ON JUNE 6

Of 6,000 Animals Bought by Food Committee 4,000 Have Been Taken.

BOYS TO STUDY FARMING

Will Cultivate Ninety-nine Acres on Staten Island—Park Department to Direct Work.

Mayor Mitchel's Food Supply Committee announced yesterday that 6,000 of the sheep recently bought in Oregon to carry out the plan for the rehabilitation of the sheep industry of New York were now in transit, and that on the arrival of this first consignment the animals would be disposed of to farmers and stockmen at cost. At the office of the Chairman of the committee, George W. Perkins, this statement on the subject was given out:

"This committee is not making any money out of this transaction. It has gone to considerable expense and trouble to bring to this State the best sheep to be found anywhere in the country, with the idea of rehabilitating the sheep industry of New York. We believe that right now is an opportune time to do this. The Governor has signed the Wicks Dog bill, which, it is believed, will help to eliminate the great menace to sheep raising which has existed through allowing dogs to run loose."

About 4,000 sheep have already been contracted for, it was said, and after these farmers are supplied, the rest will be sold for $14 each. Application may be made to George W. Perkins, 71 Broadway.

It is said the sheep are shorn yearling Lincoln-merino ewes, which have been pronounced by experts to be especially well adapted to New York State conditions.

Commissioner Hartigan of the Bureau of Weights and Measures and other organizations and individuals engaged in work relating to the general food problem are waiting for legislation at Washington to indicate in what way their co-operation may be best applied.

The Greenwich Settlement House at 26 Jones Street has undertaken a community farming plan on Staten Island, which is expected to provide sufficient products for a number of families in Greenwich Village. A farm of ninety-nine acres, known as the Lataret estate, situated near the town of Richmond, S. I., has been lent free of charge to the city by Joseph Personeni of 496 Broadway. It will be farmed by the boys of the Settlement House under the supervision of an agricultural expert.

With the aid of the Park Department twelve acres have already been planted in peas, carrots, and corn, and more of the land will be planted as rapidly as it is broken. A part of the produce goes to the city as payment for the work of the Park Department. Another share will go to the boy workers for the use of their parents, and the remainder will be sold to the housewives in the settlement community.

A number of plots on the farms may be had by individuals for private cultivation on shares. Application should be made to the Settlement House.

The Food Battalion of the Long Island Railroad Company has purchased two carloads of hand-picked beans, to be sold at cost for seed. A sack of 165 pounds may be bought for $31.63, providing sufficient seed for three acres. Application may be made to A. A. Johnson, director of the Food Battalion, Farmingdale, L. I., whose telephone is Farmingdale 21.

In the market food report issued yesterday by the Bureau of Public Health Education of the Department of Health announcement was made of the sale of horse meat at 8 to 14 cents a pound retail.

VERNON CASTLE NEAR DEATH

Dancer in an Airplane Accident in Canada—His Companion Killed.

DESERONTO, Ontario, May 31.—While flying with Vernon Castle at Camp Mohawk yesterday Cadet W. E. Fraser of Winnipeg, Manitoba, was burned to death. Castle escaped with slight injuries.

The two were ascending for instructional purposes when Fraser was seized with nervousness and lost control. The machine swept backward into the hangar and the gasoline tank exploded, setting fire to the hangar. Castle was thrown out when the airplane hit the shed.

SEES AIR COMMERCE AHEAD.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 31.—At a meeting of the Aeronautical Society of Great Britain tonight a paper on "Commercial Aeronautics," was read by G. Holt Thomas, one of the pioneers of aviation in this country. Mr. Thomas said that in his opinion aeronautics would revolutionize the world not only from a commercial point, but also from a humanitarian point much more than it had revolutionized war. He said he was not one of those who thought commercial aeronautics were going to beat out of existence the railroads and other forms of transport, but rather that flying would act as an adjunct to present modes of transport.

From a business point of view speed was everything. The airplane would enable a business man to leave London in the morning, go to business in Paris and be home again to dinner. It would take him to Bagdad in a day and a half or to New York in two days. Ceylon would become 2¾ days from London, Tokio 4½, Sydney five, Cape Town 3½, and Vancouver 3.

As for the question of cost it would be possible to run a profitable air service between London and Paris at $25 a passenger, a cent an ounce for mails and 50 cents each for parcels of three pounds. A Constantinople or Moscow journey of twenty-four hours might involve a cost of $125 a ticket.

Mr. Thomas expressed the view that it would be necessary to establish landing grounds all over the world at distances of ten miles apart. Forced landings would thus be avoided as a pilot at a height of 3,500 feet or over could, if his engine stopped midway between two landing grounds, arrive at either of them. A long distance, as from London to Tokio, would really be made up of ten-mile stages, and the journey would be aerodrome flying, the pilot always having a flying ground on which to alight.

Fog would certainly be overcome, as some form of mark would be easily developed. The question of night flying would also be solved, since with a searchlight every ten miles a pilot could fly. Once this principle was accepted, even the crossing of the Atlantic would become feasible. What was there to prvent the keeping of a ship, not necessarily anchored, but always cruising, say every fifty miles from the Azores to Newfoundland. Compared with the enormous scheme that an air mail between London and New York would present, the cost of ten or twenty ships was infinitesimal.

PAY INCOME TAX BY CHECK.

Collector Asks That Remittances Be Mailed and Not Made in Person.

Mark Eisner, Collector of Internal Revenue for the Third District, which includes upper Manhattan, said yesterday that taxpayers who had not paid their income tax would confer a favor upon the Collector by mailing certified checks instead of presenting them in person.

"The Third District has the largest number of taxpayers in the United States," Collector Eisner said, "but can easily handle remittances by mail. The usual attendance of several thousand persons in the office in the last few days within which to pay the tax results in a great burden upon the clerks, as well as possible confusion.

"In remitting, it is requested that the bill accompany the check. Some taxpayers have not as yet received their bills. They are advised that all bills will be issued in ample time for payment by June 15."

The Collector said he desired to thank the thousands of taxpayers who remitted promptly upon receipt of their bills, in response to Commissioner Osborn's appeal to assist the Government by making advance payments.

STATE OF IRELAND UPSETS CONFERENCE

GREECE ADDS TO TURMOIL

Defender of "Submerged" Nation Accused of Being Propagandist for Royal Government.

Special to The New York Times.

LONG BEACH, N. Y., May 31.—The rights and wrongs of "submerged nationalities" made today's sessions of the Conference on Foreign Relations of the United States a series of acrimonious bickerings. Ireland and Greece were the main subjects. The history of Ireland was given piecemeal through all the sessions of the day. At the afternoon session Francis Hackett, of the New Republic, read a paper on "The Wrongs of Ireland." Then there was introduced a resolution which would have put the United States Government on record "for a statement by all our allies which will repudiate the spirit of autocracy, disclaim conquest, and will focus the liberal forces of all the nations on a democratic organization of the world." Immediately George L. Fox of New Haven was on his feet saying:

"I don't believe in any such resolutions and offering unsolicited advice to our Government. Do not hamper the authorities at Washington." Mr. Fox had to discontinue his speech, but at the close of the night session he got a chance and said:

"Ireland is not oppressed by England. If Ireland is oppressed by England, you might as well say that Porto Rico, Hawaii, Santo Domingo, and the Philippines are oppressed by the United States. (Cries of "They are!") Then he said he would like to tell the true story of the Dublin revolt. He quoted ex-Ambassador Gerard as saying "American friends of the Sinn Feiners are Prussianized Americans."

"These Irishmen," he said, "care not for justice or truth. The Sinn Feiners are accursed in Ireland, accursed in England, and accursed in the United States." (Hisses and cheers.)

Greece in the Discussion.

Greece came into the discussion largely through an attack upon Paxton Hibben, a former newspaper correspondent at Athens, who was accused of being over-friendly to Constantine. Mr. Hibben started off by attacking the allied treatment of the Royal Government, and asserted that 90 per cent. of the Greeks were back of the King. He was followed by Dr. Theodore P. Ion, who said he understood Mr. Hibben was a propagandist in this country for the Royal Government of Greece. Mr. Hibben demanded proof, and at the night session a letter was read from S. X. Constandinidi, Secretary of the Greek Legation in Washington, saying "Mr. Hibben, who was formerly in Greece, is receiving from the present Greek Government a monthly allowance, the amount of which I do not exactly remember, so as to influence public opinion in the United States in favor of the policy followed by the Greek Government." Maurice Leon attacked Mr. Hibben at the night session.

"That correspondent," he said, "I am sure from purely altruistic motives, is an upholder of the Kaiser's brother-in-law. I heard him speak, and I thought I detected a slight German accent. Here we have a practical instance of how Greek news is gathered for the American public."

Mr. Hibben told reporters that he had received a lump sum of $300 from the Greek legation for doing some translations, and that was the only money he had been paid by that Government. In an address tonight Dr. Fabian Franklin said that if Mr. Hibben thought the truth had not been told about Constantine, it was to be regretted that when he had the opportunity he had not given some of those truths.

No Resolution Wanted.

It was at an after meeting of the afternoon session that Robert W. Babson offered his resolution "to suggest a course for the Government at Washington," which brought on the Irish and Greek debates. There were fiery speeches which referred to American lynchings and other unpleasant phases of this country's history. Eugene A. Bester, head of the Chautauqua Institute, finally moved that no resolution be passed and that those present who wanted to circulate their ideas get up a petition.

This was supported by Dr. Samuel McCune Lindsay, Chairman of the committee in charge of the conference, and was adopted. Mr. Babson thereupon started the circulation of his petition and obtained a large number of signatures, including those of most of the pacifists present. But before the debate was over S. K. Ratcliffe of The Manchester Guardian made a plea not only for England, but specifically for old-fashioned liberalism in England, and in other countries as well. He referred to England as the country "which makes all the blunders that can be made, but rights them in the end," holding out the examples of Canada and South Africa as instances of the liberal treatment of "submerged nationalities."

Professor Stephen B. Duggan of the College of the City of New York, head of the Program Committee, read a paper on "Annexation and the Principles of Nationality," in which he said that the troubles of the Balkan countries could be settled by a plebiscite in the disputed territories. He said this implied the dissolution of Austria-Hungary and a more vigorous plea for this operation was made by Charles Pergler of the Bohemian National Alliance.

The subject at the night session was "The United States in the Far East." V. K. Wellington Koo, the Chinese Minister, and J. Takamine spoke on "American and Japanese Co-operation." Professor H. I. Mussey of Columbia University said that America had reason to rely on the common sense of Japanese statesmen to avert a conflict. At the close of a discussion of the Japanese question in California General Peter W. Meldrim of Savannah, former President of the American Bar Association, said:

"We have heard little at this conference of the spirit of loyalty to our country. We want to do what is right in our relations with the Japanese and Chinese, we invite you to join hands with us, but don't threaten us as to consequences."

Japanese diplomacy and Japan's own land policy were attacked by Hans Von Kaltenborn, who declared that the Japanese were an unassimilable race with standards of living far below ours. He called for a conference with Japan, China, and India, at which the facts of race difficulty with those peoples should be frankly faced and thrashed out so as to remove misapprehensions. The members of the conference will arrive at the Pennsylvania station in Manhattan at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning, and at 10:30 o'clock will hold a session in the Chamber of Commerce for the discussion of "The International Aspect of Investments and Concessions." This will close the conference.

MAYO TO REMAIN IN ATLANTIC FLEET

Secretary Daniels Denies Report That Winterhalter Will Be New Head of Battleship Squadron.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 31. — Secretary Daniels today denounced as unfair and unjust the intimations and insinuations that had come to him in various ways that officers of the United States Navy bearing German names might be lacking in loyalty. Picking up a naval register and reading the names of many prominent officers who bear German names, the Secretary asserted that he knew a number of them personally and had found them to be most loyal and patriotic in their service in the nation's interests.

"I am getting pretty tired," said the Secretary, "and much disgusted over the attempts that have been made to doubt the loyalty of hundreds of men of German name in the navy just because they bear German names. I have found them to be men of true American ideals, loyal in their service to the Government, and ready to sacrifice their lives for their country. It is an outrage, almost treason, for persons to cast reflections upon these officers."

Secretary Daniels's defense of the loyalty of officers of German name was drawn out by the publication of a report that Admiral Mayo was to be displaced as Commander in Chief of the Atlantic Fleet by Admiral Winterhalter, until recently in command of the Asiatic Fleet. In connection with this report it had been intimated in a newspaper that Admiral Winterhalter had entertained pro-German sentiments until just before this country's declaration of war against Germany.

"I have a telephone and can be reached any hour of the day or night," said Mr. Daniels. "There is no justification for the publication of such a report as that to the effect that Admiral Mayo would be succeeded by Admiral Winterhalter. Admiral Mayo is not to be displaced. There is no foundation of truth for the report. Admiral Mayo has been filling his post of duty as Commander in Chief of the fleet with fullest satisfaction, and has been measuring up to the great responsibility of that position. He is not to be succeeded by Admiral Winterhalter.

"Admiral Winterhalter had finished his duty afloat and was ordered to duty on the General Board, just as other fleet commanders, like Admirals Badger and Fletcher, were ordered to duty with the General Board to enable the navy to get the benefit of their experience in the work of the General Board."

UNIFY JEWISH CHARITIES.

All Brooklyn Philanthropies to be Operated Under Federation.

The unification of all the Jewish charities of Brooklyn was announced at a dinner given at the Unity Club, Bedford Avenue and Dean Street, Brooklyn, last night. The charitable organizations heretofore conducted by the orthodox Jews have been joined with those conducted by the reform Jews, and all will be operated under the Brooklyn Federation of Jewish Charities. A most important concession made by the reform Jews was that the orthodox dietary laws should be observed in all the Jewish charitable institutions and hospitals.

SOUGHT TO USE GORKY AS PEACE MEDIUM

Machinations of Bulgar Minister at Berlin Exposed by Novelist as His Answer.

PETROGRAD, May 31.—Maxim Gorky, the noted Russian author, publishes a sensational account of an attempt by D. Rizow, the Bulgarian Minister at Berlin, to inveigle him into clandestine negotiations for a separate peace. In the Novaia Zhizn, of which Gorky is the editor, he prints Rizow's secret dispatch, occupying three columns, with concrete peace proposals, and, although he himself is an almost fanatical advocate of peace, denounces Rizow.

The peace proposal was delivered to Maxim Gorky at Petrograd in duplicate by two German agents, acting individually. Rizow begins by proclaiming that already in January he had approached the Russian Ministers at Stockholm and Christiania with a proposal to conclude "an honorable peace" between Russia and her foes. He received a rebuff. Immediately after the revolution, Rizow renewed his attempt with the Russian Minister at Christiania, who was an old acquaintance, and got, through the Minister, a reply from Professor Paul Milukoff, then the Foreign Minister in the temporary Government, that there could be no question of a separate peace.

Notwithstanding his two repulses, Rizow, announcing himself as Russia's real friend, now approaches his acquaintance, Maxim Gorky. He attempts to refute successively the arguments customarily used by the Russians and the Allies against a separate peace. He offers to guarantee that Germany and Austria will not again undertake an offensive against free Russia, and adds that both powers are willing to evacuate the occupied territory without the expenditure of another drop of Russian blood. He declares that Germany and Austria in no wise menace Russia's new freedom. He accuses England of being the real militarist State, not Germany, and declares that Russia has no moral obligation to keep her treaty with the Allies, because treaty-breaking has been common in the present war.

The Provisional Government, adds Rizow, must be forced to answer the question: "Who, after three years' massacre, gave you the right to continue shedding Russian blood?" He then makes the following concrete proposal: "Russia to conclude an immediate armistice with her foes, both belligerents retaining their present fronts, and to summon immediately a Russian constituent assembly with the aim of deciding on peace or war."

In his newspaper, Maxim Gorky characterizes Rizow's dispatch as "base and stupid," and declares that his only reply will be its publication.
